TSN REPORT CARD

Coaching staff	B +	Vince Tobin walked into a cesspool and came out smelling like a rose. He assembled an impressive staff on short notice in 1996 that included offensive coordinator Jim Fassel. Then, Tobin took a team that hadn't won during its existence in Arizona to wins in seven of its final 13 games.
Offensive backfield	B -	The club would be better off if quarterbacks Kent Graham and Boomer Esiason could have coexisted peacefully. Now, Esiason is gone and they'll have a rookie backup, Jake Plummer. The ball carriers are small. There isn't an established every-down running back, not even Pro Bowler Larry Centers. But he can catch.
Receivers	B -	They generally catch everything thrown to them in short possession routes, but there isn't a blazing deep threat who can give a secondary pause. There isn't a great deal of depth among the wideouts, either. That might be minimized by an overabundance of tight ends and the coaches' desire to run more.
Offensive line	C	Maybe the grade should be incomplete. The Cardinals were effective as pass protectors but generally average at best opening holes for backs. But the test was somewhat unfair because the Cardinals often trailed early and had to pass. With the entire group back, potentially, the task of five working as one should become easier.
Defensive line	C +	It would have been worse if rookie end Simeon Rice had not shone with 12½ sacks, earning NFL defensive rookie of the year honors. There was not an overabundance of heat placed on the quarterback, nor a great deal of fear stricken in the hearts of opposing running backs.
Linebackers	C	It was as if average students suddenly found themselves in an advanced-placement class. The linebackers struggled to learn the new system. The zone coverages were especially troublesome after they'd been groomed on man-to-man. They're a year older, and perhaps smarter. There still is not a great deal of depth, and things will get worse if Seth Joyner is let go.
Secondary	C -	Anyone who missed breakfast might enjoy the toast here. Even Pro Bowl left cornerback Aeneas Williams wasn't immune. There is help coming at right corner from rookies Tom Knight, the projected starter, and Ty Howard. The safeties remain a big concern. They had to help on run support, often leaving the corners with no help.
Special teams	C -	Punter Jeff Feagles often had rushers in his face. Kicker Kevin Butler set a club record for field-goal accuracy but his kickoffs rarely got inside the 5. The Cardinals are looking for a punt returner to replace Marcus Dowdell. Kickoff returner Leeland McElroy should be more confident than he was as a rookie.

Coaching staff	B	Dan Reeves ranks 10th all-time in NFL victories, and his staff includes two former NFL head coaches in Rich Brooks and Art Shell. But Reeves failed in his attempt to land a creative offensive coordinator. Eventually, he'll need one.
Offensive backfield	C +	Quarterback Chris Chandler won't do anything electrifying, but he's better than most of the journeyman-types and will do as a temporary fix. Running back Jamal Anderson, a star in the run-and-shoot, should make the transition to a conventional offense. Rookie running back Byron Hanspard is an intriguing prospect.
Receivers	C	Bert Emanuel and Terance Mathis were acquired specifically for the run-and-shoot offense, which has been canned. They're talented and smart, but each lacks size. A player or two could be added to the group this summer. Tight end Ed West is 36.
Offensive line	C	Bob Whitfield has been a mild underachiever who has the potential to become an All-Pro. There are no other stars on the line, but no glaring weaknesses, either. Center Roman Fortin, tackle Antone Davis and guards Gene Williams and Robbie Tobeck figure to be the other starters.
Defensive line	D	Right end Chuck Smith's motor always runs, but he's undersized. The rest of the line is pretty pedestrian. Shannon Brown, a '96 draft pick who missed last season with a knee injury, could add bulk in the middle. Rookie Nathan Davis, a high second-round pick, also has size.
Linebackers	C	Cornelius Bennett still can cover and he loves the game. Middle man Jessie Tuggle plays the run as well as anybody, but he's average against the pass and is getting long in the tooth. There's no telling who will line up at the other outside spot.
Secondary	C	The cornerback position should be better than it's been in years, with the additions of free agent Ray Buchanan and rookie Michael Booker. Safety remains a trouble spot. Devin Bush probably will switch from strong to free safety, and former Chiefs backup William White may start at strong safety.
Special teams	B	Kicker Morten Andersen still has a strong leg, though he struggled with his long-distance accuracy last year. Dan Stryzinski is one of the better "hang-time" punters. Hanspard, Roell Preston and Todd Kinchen should make the return game respectable.

Coaching staff	C +	The offensive staff seems to be in good hands, but defensive coordinator Marvin Lewis and his staff have something to prove after last year's dismal effort that saw Baltimore lead the NFL in yards allowed.
Offensive backfield	B	If Bam Morris comes to camp in shape, this group should roll. Watch out for rookie runners Priest Holmes and Jay Graham. Vinny Testaverde is making up for lost time.
Receivers	B +	This corps, headed by wide receivers Michael Jackson and Derrick Alexander, has the potential to be one of the best in the NFL. If tight end Eric Green completes rehabilitation from a knee injury, the Ravens have the total passing package.
Offensive line	C +	Before center Wally Williams got hurt in the offseason, this group looked to be almost as good as last year's strong edition. With Williams out for the first six to seven games, the unit drops a notch. Tackles Jonathan Ogden and Orlando Brown are anchors.
Defensive line	C	There's good potential. Tackle Tony Siragusa, a free agent from the Colts, and end Rob Burnett are coming off major knee injuries. End Michael McCrary, a free agent from the Seahawks, should boost the rush.
Linebackers	C	The Ravens will start rookies Peter Boulware, a first-round pick who played end in college, and Jamie Sharper, a second-rounder, outside, and a second-year player (Ray Lewis) in the middle. Don't look for quick results.
Secondary	C -	The right cornerback position is shaky for the second consecutive year and the Ravens might start rookie Kim Herring, a second-round selection, at free safety. This unit would be helped by an improved pass rush.
Special teams	C -	Greg Montgomery is a great punter, but kicker Matt Stover has to rebound from an uneven 1996. Jermaine Lewis and Graham could make the return game formidable.

Coaching staff	C	The rebuilding chore might be more than Marv Levy can or even wants to handle at age 72 and with two years left on his contract. Levy likes to let his players lead themselves, though that approach might not be as effective with a younger team. The jury is out on whether Dan Henning can upgrade the offense. The defensive coaching remains outstanding.
Offensive backfield	D	An unproven quarterback is the biggest problem. Opponents will load up to stop the run, and force Todd Collins or Billy Joe Hobert to try to beat them throwing. If Thurman Thomas is still the featured runner, that could spell trouble. Rookie Antowain Smith should take over and Thomas should be a specialist.
Receivers	C	Given the offense's new power-oriented philosophy, one of the Bills' top three receivers figures to spend more time watching than catching. Andre Reed made a remarkable comeback last year from leg-muscle problems in 1995, but might not be as productive without Jim Kelly throwing to him. Quinn Early needs to step up to be the home-run threat the club was looking for. Eric Moulds must overcome off-field problems to take advantage of his considerable talent.
Offensive line	F	Kent Hull's retirement leaves a gaping hole in the middle that second-year man Dusty Zeigler or converted guard Jerry Ostroski will be hard-pressed to fill. Corey Louchiey probably will become the new right tackle, while Glenn Parker replaces Ostroski at right guard. The line must overcome all that disruption and still get much better play from left tackle John Fina and left guard Ruben Brown.
Defensive line	A	Right end Bruce Smith is, by far, the best player on the team and the only reason the Bills have any hope of making a playoff run. The next-most critical player is nose tackle Ted Washington, who consistently dominates the middle better than anyone else in the league at that position. Left end Phil Hansen is quietly effective as a pass-rusher and run-stopper. Rookie Marcellus Wiley could significantly upgrade the depth here.
Linebackers	B	With Washington in front of him, Chris Spielman lived up to his reputation as one of the foremost run-stuffing inside linebackers in the NFL. Left outside linebacker Bryce Paup is looking to rebound from groin-muscle problems that slowed him for most of last year. The other inside spot is a question mark, which could be filled by undersized Damien Covington or perhaps John Holecek, whose body has yet to survive an NFL training camp since '95.
Secondary	B	There are plenty of talented athletes in this group, and they do a wonderful job of covering receivers. What they don't do enough of, however, is intercept passes. The biggest question mark is at strong safety, where Henry Jones is trying to battle back from a shattered left tibia that he suffered last season. Matt Stevens struggled badly in his place, and a better replacement has yet to be found.
Special teams	A	The Bills continue to have arguably the best overall kicking game in the NFL. They have a reliable place-kicker in Steve Christie and a punter whose towering kicks enhance coverage and off-set the often difficult weather conditions of Rich Stadium. Moulds is a deadly kickoff-return threat, and cornerback Jeff Burris and Steve Tasker are outstanding on punt returns.

Coaching staff	A	In two years, Dom Capers and his staff took a group of players largely comprised of other clubs' rejects and transformed them into a team that won a division championship and came within a victory of the Super Bowl. The staff is intact, for now, but defensive coordinator Vic Fangio is a future NFL head coach.
Offensive backfield	B	Much of this season's success hinges on the left knee of Tim Biakabutuka, who missed most of his rookie year after surgery to repair a torn anterior cruciate ligament. But Anthony Johnson, a 1,000-yard rusher last season, provides solid insurance in case Biakabutuka falters, and Winslow Oliver is an exciting threat as a runner and receiver on third down.
Receivers	C	This group has been transformed from one of the slowest in the league to one of the swiftest. But what the older, departed receivers lacked in speed, they made up for in savvy and production. The new group, which includes first-round pick Rae Carruth, is inexperienced and basically unproven.
Offensive line	C +	Assistant Jim McNally deserves a gold star for keeping this unit together through an injury-riddled '96 season. But the overall consistency would improve if he could find five guys who could stay relatively healthy, which would enable him to cut back on the shuffling.
Defensive line	C -	One of the offseason priorities was to get younger. It didn't happen, which could hamper the plan to put a faster defensive unit on the field. One free agent was signed, but Ray Seals is 32 and missed last season with a rotator-cuff injury. As for the other top three linemen, Greg Kragen and Gerald Williams are older than Seals and Mike Fox turns 30 in August.
Linebackers	A	This group has no peer. Outside backers Kevin Greene and Lamar Lathon are pass-rushing forces who combined to collect 28 sacks last season. Inside, the Panthers have Sam Mills, 37, who continues to age gracefully, and Micheal Barrow, the former Oiler signed as a free agent. Mills, Greene and Lathon were Pro Bowl starters, and Barrow's presence should improve this group, if that's possible.
Secondary	C	Tyrone Poole enters his third season needing to prove himself at cornerback, and Chad Cota will have to step up as the starter at strong safety in place of the departed Brett Maxie. The other starters, cornerback Eric Davis and free safety Pat Terrell, are proven and solid. Second-round pick Mike Minter, a safety, adds speed and depth.
Special teams	A	Capers stresses special teams, and it shows. John Kasay was the top kicker in the league in production last year and Michael Bates was one of the best kick returners. Both made the Pro Bowl. In addition, Oliver is a quality punt returner. But what makes Capers most proud is the consistently superb performance of his coverage units.

Coaching staff	C	The Bears tend to be too predictable as games and the season progress. Play-calling on both sides of the ball has created some uncertainty at times. The staff needs to get young players on the field and producing faster.
Offensive backfield	B	There's excellent depth, but injuries have retarded development the past two years. The problem may be that there are a lot of good backs but no great one to establish a dominant running game. All eyes will be on new starting quarterback Rick Mirer this season.
Receivers	B	Curtis Conway is top-echelon and Bobby Engram showed rookie flashes. Ricky Proehl, who arrives from the Seahawks, is a quality No. 3 man, but there is no depth beyond that trio.
Offensive line	A	This underrated group is as good as there is at pass protection. Moving Chris Villarrial from guard to center muscles up the interior, but he needs to master the Bears' zone-blocking schemes the way former center Jerry Fontenot, a free agent not expected to return, did.
Defensive line	C -	If left end John Thierry can break through the way right tackle Carl Simpson did in '96, this group could become a force. Speed is not a problem; size is. The staff's schemes have not helped the pass rush.
Linebackers	C -	The changing of the guard makes '97 a pivotal year. Sean Harris finally starts after sitting two years and must provide impact to upgrade a solid, if unspectacular, unit.
Secondary	C	Tom Carter, signed from the Redskins, is not the tackler that Donnell Woolford, now with the Steelers, was. But if coaches allow Carter and Walt Harris to press and take advantage of their size and speed, the cornerbacks could be a factor.
Special teams	C -	The kicking has been above average, but the return and coverage units were adequate—at best. Tyrone Hughes, signed from the Saints, adds a home-run hitter to the kickoff return team.

Coaching staff	B	Players believe in Bruce Coslet, and they seem to be behind Dick LeBeau. Coslet, Jeff Blake and offensive coordinator Ken Anderson all seem to be on the same wavelength. Last year's second half went so smoothly; how will Coslet react to adversity?
Offensive backfield	C	Ki-Jana Carter really hasn't proven a thing, except that he can score on 1- or 2-yard runs and find his way to the edge of the stands to give the ball to his mom. Eric Bieniemy is a superior third-down back but too small to handle a greater role. Corey Dillon has potential but also must prove himself.
Receivers	B +	Carl Pickens is one of the best around, and Darnay Scott may yet develop into Pro Bowl material. Every team would like to have somebody like David Dunn to make the tough catches at crucial times. All this group lacks is a little overall speed.
Offensive line	C	Their problems appear to be solved, but like the running backs, they'll have to prove it first. At least depth shouldn't be a problem; four of the projected backups have started before, and the fifth, center Rod Payne, is a highly regarded third-round draft choice.
Defensive line	C	Lack of an experienced nose tackle hurts. In fairness, few of these animals exist. But it'll be a long year for the Bengals if Kimo von Oelhoffen or somebody doesn't emerge. John Copeland is certainly talented, but can he stay healthy? The move to end should only help Dan Wilkinson.
Linebackers	C	This grade will rise dramatically if Reinard Wilson handles the transition from end. Otherwise, the Bengals may wish they were still playing a 4-3. The new scheme could help James Francis have a career year. Steve Tovar has been dependable, but he's trying to overcome a major injury.
Secondary	B	Tremain Mack may have been the steal of the draft. He should make an immediate impact. Ashley Ambrose is excellent and improving. Deep balls occasionally give Jimmy Spencer trouble, but he's definitely capable. Still, depth at cornerback is a problem.
Special teams	B -	They were awful last year, but they appear on the road to recovery with new coach Al Roberts. Mack could lend some dash to the return teams and some big plays on coverage units. Kicker Doug Pelfrey and punter Lee Johnson are steady and solid.

Coaching staff	B	Judging from last year's effort, not a bad group, considering this club was one game away from its fourth consecutive NFC title game after all the injuries and suspensions. Addition of Jack Reilly should take some of the load off offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese.
Offensive backfield	A	When healthy, one of the best, if not the best, in football. What other team has a quarterback and running back the quality of Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith? A healthy Smith will put the Cowboys running game back on its steam-rolling track.
Receivers	C	Michael Irvin can't do it all, exemplified by the team's offensive woes in the playoff loss to Carolina when he was injured the first series of the game. The Cowboys must solve second receiver dilemma and hope the Eric Bjornson-David LaFleur combo does the job at tight end. Watch for Stepfret Williams to make a contribution.
Offensive line	B +	If the Cowboys find a center to their liking, this offensive line still can be one of the league's best at both run blocking and pass protection. But once you get past the starters, the talent drastically drops off. Guard Larry Allen has a chance to be the best in the league.
Defensive line	C +	This is one of those unknowns: If unproven youngsters come through, the Cowboys might be able to hold the fort until Leon Lett returns from suspension. If not, an inability to stop the run could be the Cowboys' downfall this year, as it was in the second round of last season's playoffs. Making up for Charles Haley's impending retirement also looms large.
Linebackers	B -	Two out of three isn't bad, and if you remember, the Cowboys got by with inexperience on the weakside in 1993 when rookie Darrin Smith was forced into the starting lineup, and fill-in Godfrey Myles in 1995 when Smith was a contract holdout. The other two starters, Fred Strickland and Randall Godfrey, will be strong. But again, no depth, especially after the losses of Jim Schwantz and Myles.
Secondary	A	This is one of the best in the league with Deion Sanders manning the right corner spot. But if baseball gets in the way in the first month of the season, the Cowboys will scramble to cover themselves on Sanders' side, and likely do the same if injuries occur.
Special teams	D	Totally incomplete. The Cowboys will go into training camp grading competition at both kicker and punter, and possibly even searching for kickoff and punt returners, depending on what happens in free agency. The coverage units, as usual, will be retooled again.

Coaching staff	B +	Mike Shanahan is an offensive whiz, and there was no better proof than last season, when Denver finished first in the league in total offense. Shanahan's schemes are complicated—and also hard to defend. Offensive coordinator Gary Kubiak will be an NFL coach someday. Greg Robinson is entering his fourth season as the defensive coordinator.
Offensive backfield	A	John Elway alone makes any group worthy of top-grade consideration, but Terrell Davis clinches it. Davis is the best running back Elway has played alongside and may be the best in team history. The Broncos don't expect any dropoff at fullback, where Howard Griffith replaces Aaron Craver.
Receivers	B	Willie Green and Ed McCaffrey are reliable possession-type receivers, but the gem of the group is tight end Shannon Sharpe. Sharpe has caught at least 80 passes in three of the past four seasons, and Elway loves throwing to him. Shanahan has high hopes for Rod Smith, a backup wide receiver/punt returner last season who figures to start in '97. Smith compensates for his lack of size with speed and good hands.
Offensive line	B	This unit is aging but still productive. Center Tom Nalen is considered one of the game's rising stars, and right guard Brian Habib is dependable. Left guard Mark Schlereth had five knee operations last season alone, but he's a gritty veteran. A big key for this season is how well Tony Jones—acquired from Baltimore in an offseason trade—can replace former Pro Bowler Gary Zimmerman at left tackle.
Defensive line	A	The Broncos think Neil Smith has a lot left. He will start at left end, with Alfred Williams starting at right end. Although Williams and tackle Michael Dean Perry made the Pro Bowl last season, the Broncos seldom dominated the line of scrimmage. The additions of Smith, tackle Keith Traylor and first-round pick Trevor Pryce will help.
Linebackers	B	The starting trio of Bill Romanowski, Allen Aldridge and John Mobley is better than most. Romanowski, signed as a free agent before last season, became a defensive leader and was a good mentor for Mobley, a '96 rookie who was making the difficult leap from Division II to the NFL.
Secondary	B	With right cornerback Lionel Washington, 36, expected to retire, the Broncos will get much younger fast. The new starter will be either Tory James, 24, or free-agent signee Darrien Gordon, 26. The other three starters all are over 30, and strong safety Tyrone Braxton are solid. Braxton tied for the league lead with nine interceptions last season.
Special teams	C +	The Broncos have no worries about kicker Jason Elam, but they do about punter Tom Rouen, who didn't finish in the top 10 in the AFC in net average. Gordon led the AFC in punt returns last year, and Vaughn Hebron finished third in kickoff returns. The coverage teams need work.

Coaching staff	B	Bobby Ross provides the stability and direction that was lacking in the former regime, but he has yet to prove he can do it with a first-place schedule. But that question will have to wait because the Lions are coming off a fifth-place finish and will have the league's softest schedule.
Offensive backfield	B	Barry Sanders is the best in the business and Tommy Vardell will add some versatility at fullback, but Scott Mitchell is the wild card. While Sanders will be more involved in the passing game, Detroit's success will be predicated on Mitchell's downfield accuracy.
Receivers	A	Herman Moore is one of the top receivers in the league and can be effective even against double teams. Johnnie Morton finally gets a chance to shine on the outside and tight end David Sloan will emerge as one of the league's best. This could be Glyn Milburn's last chance to prove himself in the slot.
Defensive line	C	Continuity has always been the biggest problem here and it continues. After two years of playing the aggressive one-gap style, they're reverting to a two-gap approach and they'll do it without Henry Thomas. Robert Porcher must have another big year and it's time for Luther Elliss to hit the big time.
Linebackers	D	There is a critical lack of experience at this position. Reggie Brown is entering his second year, but only has 10 starts. The middle linebacker position will be contested between a fourth-round rookie draft choice (Matt Russell) and a veteran who only has five career starts (Stephen Boyd). Antonio London is still learning the strong side position and will be backed up by 12-year veteran George Jamison.
Secondary	D	Another area with an alarming lack of playing experience. Rookie Bryant Westbrook will start at left cornerback with rookie Kevin Abrams the heir apparent on the right side. Free safety Van Malone switches to the strong side to replace Bennie Blades and that's a good move, but he's never had a start at that spot. Ron Rice is the No. 1 free safety, but has only two career starts.
Special teams	C	These units should be better across the board because an improved offense will give kicker Jason Hanson more chances, punter John Jett (signed from Dallas) is more accurate than his predecessor and Ross is paying more than lip service to improving the overall speed. With a little help, Milburn will become one of the league's most dangerous return specialists again.

Coaching staff	A -	Mike Holmgren and offensive coordinator Sherman Lewis are master strategists who embrace the West Coast philosophy and then structure it to fit their talent. Defensive coordinator Fritz Shurmur has been given a wealth of talent and makes it work as a unit.
Offensive backfield	A -	Any group that has Brett Favre in it can't possibly go wrong. Provided he has the longevity of guys like Dan Marino and John Elway, he'll be in the Hall of Fame someday. The backfield isn't overly talented, but Dorsey Levens has a chance to be a legitimate 1,000-yard rusher.
Receivers	B	The only question mark with the receivers is whether Robert Brooks will be 100% again. He was never the fastest receiver, so he can't afford to lose a step. Antonio Freeman has greatness written all over him; the only concern is his consistency. If Derrick Mayes reaches his potential this may be the best group Holmgren and Lewis have ever worked with.
Offensive line	B -	Without any stars on the line, the Packers rely on functioning as a unit. Early last season they struggled and Favre spent a good deal of the time running for his life. It just so happened he made a lot of plays doing so. Late in the year, however, the group jelled and especially excelled at opening running holes for Edgar Bennett and Levens. The addition of John Michels and Ross Verba gives the Packers three first-round picks among their top six linemen.
Defensive line	A	As long as Reggie White keeps getting double-teamed, the Packers are going to dominate up front. No team can double White and then expect to handle Gilbert Brown and Santana Dotson inside. If Gabe Wilkins can make plays on a consistent basis the way he did in spot duty he could wind up with double-digit sacks.
Linebackers	C	Re-signing Wayne Simmons would provide a lift for the defense, even if it meant having to deal with his volatile personality. Simmons adds some nastiness to a unit that is sometimes not aggressive enough. The absence of George Koonce in the early part of the season will hurt if Bernardo Harris doesn't come through. Depth will be a problem if the Packers don't add some veteran help.
Secondary	B +	The Packers were lucky they didn't sustain any injuries at cornerback last year, otherwise they might have been in trouble. They need Ron Davis and Darren Sharper to contribute at corner. With Leroy Butler and Eugene Robinson at safety and Craig Newsome and Doug Evans at corner, the Packers have a solid if unspectacular foursome.
Special teams	B -	The key to the Packers' great returns last year was the blocking. It just so happened that Desmond Howard turned big holes into touchdowns. This year they might have to settle for 20-yard returns instead of six points. Rookie Brett Conway will be under tremendous pressure to replace Chris Jacke, let alone kick for a defending Super Bowl champion.

Coaching staff	B	Lindy Infante did an outstanding job getting an injury-plagued team to the playoffs a year ago, and his delegation-of-authority approach seems to be working.
Offensive backfield	B	Forget last year's No. 25 offensive ranking. Injuries and an ineffective line were the primary culprits. Jim Harbaugh can deliver the goods, and Marshall Faulk, Lamont Warren and Zack Crockett are a solid group. The probable return of Roosevelt Potts only strengthens the unit.
Receivers	B	Good a year ago, better this year if for no other reason than experience. Marvin Harrison, Sean Dawkins and Ken Dilger are proven talents, but the key to a breakout season could be the long-awaited emergence of Aaron Bailey.
Offensive line	D	Ever-changing and ever-criticized, this group will remain a sore spot until it quiets its skeptics with improved play. Rookie tackle Tarik Glenn isn't expected to be a savior, but he's an immediate upgrade.
Defensive line	C	The unit must prove it will remain a force against the run without anchor Tony Siragusa. And one of these days someone other than right end Tony Bennett must be a pass-rush presence. Maybe newcomer Al Fontenot is the answer.
Linebackers	B	The unit is strong enough to absorb the retirement of Trev Alberts. Jeff Herrod and Stephen Grant are the blue-collar guys, but it's time for Quentin Coryatt to elevate himself to Junior Seau's level as an impact player.
Secondary	C	The key to success will hinge upon how quickly newcomer Carlton Gray and second-year pro Dedric Mathis gel as the starting corners. And while no one ever has questioned the safeties' ability to hit, they need to pick up their coverage game.
Special teams	A	Chris Gardocki and Cary Blanchard were just the third kicking tandem in league history to earn Pro Bowl spots in the same year. Blanchard arrived in town with a reputation for possessing modest range, but he has hit his last 10 attempts from at least 43 yards and nailed all five of his 50-yarders last year.

Coaching staff	B	Tom Coughlin proved to his doubters that his way can work in the NFL. A workaholic, Coughlin appears to have adjusted to the NFL player, which should make him a better coach. The big question will be how Chris Palmer takes over for Kevin Gilbride, but he is respected. Defensive coordinator Dick Jauron is one of the more underrated coaches in the league.
Offensive backfield	A	Mark Brunell has developed into the best young quarterback in the league. In the final half of the 1996 season, he became a much better pocket passer, his feel for the game much better. He still has great athletic ability, but now he's more of a quarterback. Natrone Means will carry most of the time, and a 1,500-yard season is possible. Backup James Stewart is a capable reserve who is solid catching the football.
Receivers	B	In Jimmy Smith and Keenan McCardell, the Jaguars have a solid tandem. Smith, the deep threat, has quietly developed into one of the best receivers in the AFC. McCardell, the precision route runner, does most of his damage in the middle of the field. Third receiver Willie Jackson doesn't always run the right route, but he is tough after the catch. Curtis Marsh and Reggie Barlow need to have breakout seasons. Tight end is still a concern with Derek Brown and Pete Mitchell, but the team has high hopes for rookie Damon Jones.
Offensive line	B	The tackles, Tony Boselli and Leon Searcy, are as good a pair as there is in the league. Boselli is the best pass-blocking tackle in the league, while his run-blocking has made big strides. Searcy is a solid run blocker, who has improved as a pass protector. Guards Ben Coleman and Brian DeMarco are huge, but they need to be more consistent. Look for Michael Cheever to beat out veteran Dave Widell at center.
Defensive line	B -	There is a lot of depth, and the team likes to rotate players on a regular basis. The ends, with veterans Clyde Simmons and Jeff Lageman the likely starters, are solid. Second-year man Tony Brackens is a future pass-rush star. Joel Smeenge is undersized, but he is a capable pass rusher. Inside, John Jurkovic and Don Davey are scrappers who make up for physical deficiencies with hard play. Kelvin Pritchett has been a free-agent bust, but the team thinks he can bounce back for a big 1997.
Linebackers	B	It wasn't long ago that this was a team weakness. Now it's a strength. Outside linebackers Kevin Hardy and Eddie Robinson are both coming off solid seasons, with Robinson leading the team in tackles after a slow start. Hardy is an all-purpose linebacker who is adept at coverage and attacking the quarterback. The return of 260-pound linebacker Bryan Schwartz from knee surgery will help the run defense. Tom McManus is a solid reserve.
Secondary	C	The cornerbacks have been a major concern the first two seasons, but the team feels better about that position than at any other time. Dave Thomas and Aaron Beasley will be the starters, and both are physical players. Free-agent signee Deon Figures will be the nickel back. Free safety Chris Hudson needs to play better than he did a year ago, while Dana Hall is a veteran leader at strong safety.
Special teams	C	The coverage teams were of major concern last season, but the team feels it has improved there by adding team speed. Punter Bryan Barker had an off year last season, but he is still a top-flight punter. Kicker Mike Hollis is solid, but his kickoffs were poor. The return game isn't much, although Bucky Brooks has potential as a kickoff returner. Look for rookie Mike Logan to take over the punt-return duties.

Coaching staff	B -	The Chiefs faltered miserably last season, failing to make the playoffs after a 4-0 start. This underachievement is rare, however. Six straight playoff appearances from 1990 through 1995 attest to that. Still, Marty Schottenheimer and his staff haven't found a way to get the Chiefs over the hump and into the Super Bowl.
Offensive backfield	B	The Chiefs gambled to an extent by making largely unproven Elvis Grbac their starting quarterback. He seems to have the proper talent to fit their offense. Behind him, the club has a versatile collection of backs. Greg Hill, newly installed as the featured back, has tremendous speed and game-breaking ability.
Receivers	C	The lack of a receiving tight end crippled the passing game for several years. If first-round tight end Tony Gonzalez is the real deal, the Chiefs have a bargain. He should help take pressure off the wide receivers, a collection of good possession players. But that group lacks a dangerous downfield threat.
Offensive line	B -	The Chiefs have one of the best cores in the NFL in guards Dave Szott and Will Shields and center Tim Grunhard. Trouble looms at tackle, where veteran John Alt was pondering retirement and Ricky Siglar was available in the free-agent market. Jeff Criswell and Trezelle Jenkins, their probable replacements, have done little to inspire confidence.
Defensive line	C	This unit needs to rebound from a subpar 1996 season. Losing a major talent like Neil Smith isn't a great start. Moving Derrick Thomas to end should help improve the pass rush, which turned timid last season. Inexperienced end John Browning needs to have a big season.
Linebackers	B	The signing of veteran free agent Terry Wooden should be a good one. His speed will fit nicely into the Chiefs' defensive scheme. The other outside linebacker, Anthony Davis, also runs well. If young Donnie Edwards succeeds in ousting veteran Tracy Simien on the inside, the Chiefs will have one of the fastest trios in the NFL.
Secondary	B +	This is a veteran unit that has yet to show its age. The club MVP award won by since-released free safety Mark Collins last season was well-earned. Brian Washington plays the run as well as most strong safeties. One cornerback, Dale Carter, is spectacular. The other, James Hasty, is well-suited to play the Chiefs' aggressive bump-and-run style.
Special teams	C -	Kicker Pete Stoyanovich and punter Louie Aguiar need to bounce back from subpar seasons. Coverage units need to patch some leaks that popped up last season. Tamarick Vanover, if healthy, remains one of the NFL's most dangerous returners.

Coaching staff	A	How do you argue with a coach who has won two Super Bowls in six seasons? Perhaps the most impressive thing about Jimmy Johnson in his year-plus with the Dolphins is that he has avoided the temptations of big-money free agency and stayed true to his principles of building through the draft.
Offensive backfield	B +	If this were four years ago, Dan Marino would merit an A all by himself. But three injuries later, the questions about Marino's reliability make it tough. Even an improved cast of running backs to help him and an emphasis on the running game don't make up for the questions.
Receivers	B	The explosiveness is so much better now with the addition of first-round pick Yatil Green and the overall depth should be excellent. A full, healthy season by Fred Barnett is needed. A real deep threat could help open the running game by getting safeties to back off.
Offensive line	C	The talent rates a B, but the attitude is just not there yet. Richmond Webb, Keith Sims and Tim Ruddy just aren't the nastiness guys in the world. Somehow, the coaching staff has to whip this group into a frenzy.
Defensive line	B -	If tackles Daryl Gardener and Tim Bowens play up to their potential, this grade should go way up. They are every bit as talented as any pair of tackles in the league. The depth is good, but this group, like its offensive counterpart, is just not consistent enough.
Linebackers	B -	Zach Thomas is a marvel and fun guy for fans to cheer for. He also has great instincts and makes people around him better. But he isn't a game-changing player just yet and he can be accounted for, as opponents showed late last season. In addition, the outside linebackers are average at best.
Secondary	C +	The improved depth could have this grade shoot way up by the end of the season. But that's supposition. Until then, the Dolphins are an inconsistent coverage team that doesn't have a true playmaker in the secondary. This also isn't a great tackling group, particularly at cornerback.
Special teams	B +	This may sound high for a team that doesn't have a proven kicker, but Joe Nedney has huge potential and the rest of the special teams are so technically sound and create so many plays that this could be the best part of the team. Johnson and assistant Mike Westhoff certainly emphasize it enough.

Coaching staff	B	If Dennis Green were able to win in the post-season, the Vikings would have themselves A material. But Green has the respect of his players and is a sharpe judge of personnel. Defensive coordinator Foge Fazio motivates and did wonders with virtually no depth and no nose tackle last year.
Offensive backfield	B	QB Brad Johnson has yet to prove it for 16 games, but showed more than flashes of potential in 1996. Randall Cunningham provides an intriguing but risky backup option. Lead runner Robert Smith hasn't stayed healthy long enough to become a star, thus Leroy Hoard will come in handy.
Receivers	A -	With Cris Carter and Jake Reed on hand, the Vikings can't rate anything but the upper percentile. Carter remains a ballet artist in pads, and Reed was second in receiving yardage in '96. A third, speed receiver must emerge, and tight end remains a position the Vikings get little pass-catching from.
Offensive line	B +	Only right guard is a question mark. With perennial Pro Bowler Randall McDaniel at left guard, and book-end first-round picks Korey Stringer and Todd Steussie at the tackles, the line is above average. Center Jeff Christy is a solid fourth and oversized guard David Dixon is serviceable.
Defensive line	B	The unit is a nose tackle away from being a force. With Pro Bowl regular John Randle leading the way, and left end Fernando Smith emerging, the pass rush made strides. The run-stopping, especially at the nose, needs work. Right end Derrick Alexander and nickle-end Duane Clemons should get better.
Linebackers	B -	The Vikings prefer light, quicker linebackers, but that caused problems last year when power running teams steamrolled the defensive front. Ed McDaniel, the Vikings' leading tackler in 1995, returns from knee surgery, but depth could again be a problem. No. 1 pick Dwayne Rudd should help.
Secondary	B -	The Vikings improved at two of the secondary spots in '96, but still lack the strong coverage they were once known for. Cornerback Dewayne Washington rebounded, but Corey Fuller is better suited to a third corner role. Safety Orlando Thomas is coming off knee surgery and depth is not a strength.
Special teams	C -	The team's punting, kick returns and coverage units need improvement. Scott Sisson made some big kicks, but missed some makeable ones. Punter Mitch Berger also kicks off and may not be able to do both. Punt returner David Palmer is solid, and rookie Robert Tate will return kickoffs.

Coaching staff	C	Pete Carroll has a limited resume as a coach, with one season and six wins to his credit. Defensive coordinator Steve Sidwell had consistent success in New Orleans and Houston, and his aggressive, blitzing style fits Carroll's philosophy. Offensive coordinator Larry Kennan is a respected veteran. But this is the first year this staff has been together. Chemistry could take time.
Offensive backfield	A	Drew Bledsoe and Curtis Martin went to the Pro Bowl last season. If he hadn't been hurt late in the year, fullback Sam Gash might have joined them. This is one of the best groups in the league. Bledsoe and Martin have to stay healthy, though, because there is no depth.
Receivers	A	With Terry Glenn and Shawn Jefferson outside and Ben Coates inside, the Patriots had a formidable 1-2-3 punch. They should be better this year, their second together as a group. If VIncent Brisby can stay healthy (he didn't have a catch last season because of a chronic hamstring problem), this will be A-1 material, as good as any in the league.
Offensive line	C	There are plenty of question marks here. Bruce Armstrong had a Pro Bowl year in 1996 and should be at that level again. Armstrong and center Dave Wohlabaugh, who went through a sophomore slump, may be the only starters back in the same spots. Zefross Moss could have problems at right tackle, and Max Lane hasn't played left guard before. The Patriots have to improve their run blocking.
Defensive line	C	Carroll thinks end Willie McGinest can be an all-star and will use him like the 49ers and Cowboys used Charles Haley. If rookie Brandon Mitchell can develop consistency to go with his quickness, he can help the interior pass rush. The same is true for Ferric Collons. Pio Sagapolutele and Mark Wheeler are OK against the run but aren't factors in the pass rush.
Linebackers	B	As long as Chris Slade keeps his intensity level up, he is the team's best pass rusher. By the end of last season, Ted Johnson was peerless as a run stopper at inside linebacker. Todd Collins is the best athlete among the linebackers and can make things happen. There isn't much depth, though.
Secondary	B -	Rookie Chris Canty and free-agent pickup Steve Israel, a former 49er, are the keys. They're going to be asked to play a lot of man coverage in Carroll's aggressive system. If they develop like Ty Law did, the Pats are in good shape. Free safety Willie Clay should be more of a playmaker in this system, and strong safety Lawyer Milloy has the potential to be a high-impact player.
Special teams	B	David Meggett was a Pro Bowl selection last year, and the coverage units were generally solid, providing a consistent advantage in field position. Punter Tom Tupa is dependable, and if Adam Vinatieri can sustain his strong rookie performance, the Pats should again have quality special teams.

Coaching staff	B -	Mike Ditka has assembled a knowledgeable, veteran staff featuring seven assistants—Walt Corey, Tom Moore, Dick Stanfel, Willie Shaw, Harold Jackson, Bobby April and Mike Woicik—who collectively own 13 Super Bowl rings. Stanfel, Corey and Moore have 29, 24 and 20 years coaching in the NFL. But, interestingly, Ditka chose two first-time NFL coordinators in Danny Abramowicz (offense) and Zaven Yaralian (defense).
Offensive backfield	C -	Heath Shuler is unproven and Heisman Trophy winner Danny Wuerffel is, well, an NFL rookie. Regardless of who the quarterback is, he will need play-makers surrounding him, as last season proved. Mario Bates and Ray Zellars are unproven commodities as running backs. Third-round pick Troy Davis could surprise.
Receivers	D	This was the least productive area on the team in 1996, and changes have been virtually negligible. Six individual NFL players caught as many or more passes (94) as starters Michael Haynes and Torrance Small. Ex-Raider Daryl Hobbs may make Haynes expendable. The healthy return of tight end Irv Smith is a big positive.
Offensive line	C +	This could end up as the offense's strongest position, but to do so this group finally must prove it can run block. All-Pro left tackle Willie Roaf, center Andy McCollum and right guard Chris Naeole, the club's No. 1 pick, are potential anchors. The probable loss of left guard Jim Dombrowski hurts a lot.
Defensive line	B -	Depth appears to be better, and if Darren Mickell, who is moving inside from end to left tackle, supplies the run support that's anticipated, this unit should be solid. Right tackle Wayne Martin and right end Joe Johnson are quality players. Left end is a question mark.
Linebackers	C -	Mark Fields and Winfred Tubbs are entering their third and fourth seasons as inside 'backers in the 4-3 and they finally should be ready to take off. Fields has star-power ability. How well they play will go a long way in determining the defense's improvement from No. 27 in the league in defending the run.
Secondary	B -	This group was the defense's strongest unit in 1996, but two new starters have been inserted in left corner Alex Molden and free safety Je'Rod Cherry. They own two career starts and both belong to Molden as a nickel back. Right cornerback Eric Allen's leadership will be needed.
Special teams	D -	Coach Bobby April lost one of the NFL's top return men in Tyrone Hughes, who joined the Bears via free agency. But Doug Brien returns as kicker and the loss of Hughes was offset by the addition of several rookies who should improve the coverage teams. Terry Guess was an electrifying returner in college, but must prove he can consistently field punts. Mark Royals is the new punter.

Coaching staff	B +	Coach Jim Fassel has taken charge and won the respect of the players with his knowledge and organization. He is being trusted to change the offense because of his track record. Fassel also will be able to get along with the conservative front office and deal with the New York media. His staff is versatile and experienced.
Offensive backfield	C +	The biggest question of the season is whether quarterback Dave Brown will enjoy his breakout year. The key among the backs is Tyrone Wheatley, who has been unpredictable and injury-prone. Rodney Hampton is aging, so he can't be counted on, and rookie Tiki Barber is unproven. Charles Way is one of the league's best young fullbacks.
Receivers	B -	The competition for jobs should be interesting among a group that includes No. 7 overall draft pick Ike Hilliard, along with Amani Toomer, Thomas Lewis and Chris Calloway. The tight ends are led by Aaron Pierce, who should catch a lot of passes in Fassel's scheme.
Offensive line	C -	Other than center Brian Williams, there are plenty of questions. They begin at left tackle, where lumbering Greg Bishop apparently will remain the starter. The line will be OK if the mammoth right side of tackle Scott Gragg and guard Ron Stone develops into a force.
Defensive line	C	The four starters—Michael Strahan, Keith Hamilton, Robert Harris, Chad Bratzke—are back, but a key might be the contribution of reserves like Cedric Jones, Jamal Duff and Christian Peter. No one on the team had more than five sacks in 1996.
Linebackers	B -	Jessie Armstead, Corey Widmer and Corey Miller were better than expected last season, but the team still lacks star power. The big news this season is the depth at linebacker, featuring Ben Talley and rookies Ryan Phillips and Pete Monty.
Secondary	A -	There is plenty of uncertainty at safety beyond Percy Ellsworth, but that is made up for by one of the best groups of cornerbacks in the NFL. Starters Phillippi Sparks and Jason Sehorn are as good as any. They are backed up by former starter Thomas Randolph and Conrad Hamilton.
Special teams	B	This grade rises if rookie punter Brad Maynard is as good as advertised. Already proven is kicker Brad Daluiso, who always has had a strong leg but in '96 showed finesse. Toomer has proven to be a top-notch return man. Barber is expected to supplement the kick-return game.

Coaching staff	A	Bill Parcells is one of the premier coaches in the NFL. He has won two Super Bowls and one AFC title. Sure, he's a stubborn control freak, but he knows how to drive a team to its potential. Parcells has an experienced, top-shelf staff, some of whom have been with him since the early 1980s.
Offensive backfield	B	One of the strengths of the team. QB Neil O'Donnell is coming off a poor season, but he has proven he's capable of winning. Adrian Murrell is one of the top five backs in the AFC. FB Lorenzo Neal is strictly a blocker, but a good one.
Receivers	B +	Terrific depth. The Jets have three potential starters in Jeff Graham, Keyshawn Johnson and Wayne Chrebet. The X factor is Johnson. If he reaches his potential, watch out. The Jets must get more production out of the tight ends, who had only 23 catches last season.
Offensive line	C	Same group that finished last season. It can be a very good line, but only if tackles Jumbo Elliott and David Williams avoid their usual back problems. The interior—Roger Duffy, Matt O'Dwyer and Harry Galbreath—won't dominate, but they're not bad.
Defensive line	D	One rising star (DE Hugh Douglas) and a lot of question marks. The two tackle spots are up for grabs, with journeyman Ronnie Dixon and rookie Rick Terry the leading candidates to start. Marvin Washington starts at left end. Otherwise, there's not much here.
Linebackers	C +	Parcells revamped the unit, signing one of his old warhorses, Pepper Johnson, to start in the middle and moving Mo Lewis from the weak side to the strong side. Injury-plagued Marvin Jones, booted out of the middle, will battle top pick James Farrior for the weak-side job.
Secondary	C -	CB Aaron Glenn is a terrific player who improves every year, but the unit suffers a big dropoff after him. The safeties, Victor Green and Gary Jones, are ordinary. The other cornerback job is unsettled, with Ray Mickens and Jerome Henderson the best of the candidates.
Special teams	D +	Parcells is gambling that rookie specialists Dedric Ward and Leon Johnson can improve the woeful return units. Better coaching should help, too. Punter Brian Hansen is solid. Is there a kicker in the house?

Coaching staff	C	Joe Bugel climbs into the top job, hoping to bely his 20-44 record with Arizona. Bugel was an accomplished assistant, but he still must prove he can run the show. Ray Perkins and Fred Whittingham are solid coordinators. The staff includes several assistants (such as Fred Biletnikoff and Willie Brown) with connections to the team's long-ago glory days.
Offensive backfield	B	Jeff George gets his third chance to lift an ordinary team to new heights. George should find plenty of help in the backfield, where Napoleon Kaufman has become one of the league's most explosive backs. Joe Aska is promising and Harvey Williams must adjust to a reduced role. Fullback remained unresolved heading into training camp.
Receivers	B -	Tim Brown deserves his own grade (A, absolutely), given his superb play the last four seasons. James Jett took a sizable step forward last season, but he still needs to become more consistent. Jett and Desmond Howard must blossom, or defenses will continue to devote extra attention to Brown. This is also an important year for tight end Rickey Dudley.
Offensive line	C	Kevin Gogan departed via free agency and Orlando Pace never materialized. So the Raiders begin the season with one huge question at guard and two tackles (Pat Harlow and Lincoln Kennedy) who excel as run blockers but struggle in pass protection. This line should create space for Kaufman; can it keep George healthy?
Defensive line	B +	The line brims with talent, from big Chester McGlockton to quick Lance Johnstone. The Raiders also added top draft choice Darrell Russell to the equation. Now they need to finish the job, sacking the quarterback more often and eliminating the games in which opponents run wild.
Linebackers	B -	This group requires a wait-and-see approach. Much hinges on the comeback of Rob Fredrickson, who missed the final six games last season because of shoulder surgery. Mike Morton replaces Mike Jones, a strikingly athletic linebacker who led the team in tackles. Greg Biekert supplies stout defense against the run.
Secondary	C +	Terry McDaniel and Albert Lewis are hardly getting younger, but they play aggressive, man-to-man coverage. McDaniel's zest for interceptions occasionally costs him, but the Raiders need him to play boldly. Eric Turner should create havoc at free safety, given his speed and penchant for causing turnovers. The Raiders thirst for more turnovers.
Special teams	B	Desmond Howard and Napoleon Kaufman form the league's most explosive kick-return tandem. Opponents often avoided Kaufman last year, but now the alternative is equally dangerous. Kicker Cole Ford must prove himself in pressure situations; punter Leo Araguz, like Ford, shows promise but remains unproven at this level.

Coaching staff	B	Head coach Ray Rhodes has turned the Eagles back into a playoff team after the Rich Kotite debacle. Rhodes' strength is his relationship with players and his ability to get them ready to play. His talent evaluation has been suspect. Offensive coordinator Jon Gruden is among the best and will be a head coach very soon. Line coaches Bill Callahan (offense) and Mike Trgovac (defense) are excellent position coaches.
Offensive backfield	B	Give the running backs an A, and the quarterbacks a C. Ricky Watters causes as many problems on the field for defenses as he does off the field for the Eagles. And that's a lot. Fullback Kevin Turner is among the top three blocking backs in the league and will be utilized more this season as a runner and receiver. Rookie Duce Staley could also be a factor. Ty Detmer and Rodney Peete are both very good backups, and very average starters.
Receivers	B -	The starters, 35-year-old Irving Fryar and third-year man Chris T. Jones and second-year man Jason Dunn at tight end, are fine. The problem comes with depth. Unless someone emerges, or is signed late, the No. 3 receiver will be either former practice squadder Dialleo Burks, oft-injured Nate Singleton, or sixth-round draft pick Antuwan Wyatt. Someone needs to be groomed to eventually take over for Fryar.
Offensive line	C	If center Steve Everitt is over the injuries that caused him to miss half the season in Baltimore last year, the Eagles have a legitimate All-Pro up front for the first time in years. After that it's spotty. Left tackle is being handed to second-year man Jermane Mayberry, who did basically nothing as a rookie. The right tackle is Richard Cooper, who did not play up to his $2.5 million average salary last season. The guards, Mike Zandofsky and Joe Panos are average.
Defensive line	C -	The Eagles are counting on Andy Harmon, after a year of knee injuries that limited him to two games, to bounce back to his near All-Pro form; on Mike Mamula to break out with a big sack number year; on unheralded and undrafted Hollis Thomas to continue his progress and on rookie first-round pick Jon Harris to make an immediate impact. That's a lot to ask. Rhett Hall provides a decent inside rush as a backup.
Linebackers	B -	William Thomas is an All-Pro on the right side, and Darrin Smith is an excellent cover guy on the left. Neither, however, is a big run-stuffer type and the team could be vulnerable against the run. Key backup Ray Farmer is out of the same mold as the starters. Rookie James Darling is being asked to replace James Willis in the middle, and the training camp battle should be interesting.
Secondary	B	Cornerbacks Troy Vincent and Bobby Taylor were both hurt last year by the lack of an effective pass rush. Both are expected to bounce back with big years. The nickel cornerback job is wide open, although a veteran should be signed late. Brian Dawkins did a decent job as a rookie at free safety. He should only get better. The Eagles hope savvy veteran Mike Zordich can give them one more year at strong safety.
Special teams	C	New kicker Chris Boniol helps this unit get a passing grade. Derrick Witherspoon is a good kick returner, but the team for some reason may replace him. Punter Tom Hutton is average. There are no experienced punt returners on the team, and coverage teams were among the worst in the league a year ago.

Coaching staff	B +	Bill Cowher is one of the best, if not the best, young coaches in the game. He is intense, loves his players and is a great motivator. But the team is on its third defensive coordinator in four years, and this one—Jim Haslett—worked with a 4-3, not a 3-4, scheme last year.
Offensive backfield	B -	Jerome Bettis is one of the best backs in the league, combining power with tremendous leg strength and agility. He has a quality backup in Erric Pegram. But the Steelers will have an untested quarterback, whether it's Kordell Stewart or Jim Miller.
Receivers	B -	When healthy, the combination of Yancey Thigpen and Charles Johnson is outstanding. Mark Bruener is a promising tight end who may blossom. But too many losses at this position have turned what was a strength into a question mark.
Offensive line	B	Center Dermontti Dawson is the best in the NFL, but the left side of the line might be starting to show age with tackle John Jackson and guard Will Wolford, each of whom remains among the best in the game. Depth is the biggest problem, especially if Jackson or right tackle Justin Strzelczyk gets hurt.
Defensive line	D	Joel Steed might be the most underrated nose tackle in the NFL, but the loss of ends Ray Seals and Brentson Buckner will hurt the Steelers more than they think. Their replacements, Kevin Henry and Nolan Harrison, won't cause opponents any sleepless nights. Buckner and Seals were 300-plus pounders who could stuff the line. Henry and Harrison are considerably lighter.
Linebackers	A -	Even with the loss of Pro Bowler Chad Brown, this remains the strongest position on the team. Five-time Pro Bowler Greg Lloyd returns to join one of the best inside linebackers in the league in Levon Kirkland. Outside linebacker Jason Gildon came on strong at the end of the season, and inside linebacker Earl Holmes is waiting to shine.
Secondary	C	This is a big question mark because of the loss of Rod Woodson, Deon Figures and Willie Williams. Woodson will be replaced by Donnell Woolford, who is a very good corner. But he's not Woodson. Rookie No. 1 pick Chad Scott will have to step in and start at the other corner spot. Strong safety Carnell Lake is one of the best in the league, while free safety Darren Perry is steady and smart.
Special teams	C	The biggest question will be how well kicker Norm Johnson's 37-year-old leg holds up. He is pretty reliable inside 40 yards. Punter Josh Miller has a strong leg but has to realize his potential. The loss of Ernie Mills, Andre Hastings and Jahine Arnold will hurt the return units, but rookie receiver Mike Adams could step in and provide a spark.

Coaching staff	A-	There are five former NFL head coaches among the assistants, more than any staff in the league. During free agency, the draft and minicamps, Dick Vermeil proved to be a quick study. He has leaned on the likes of Mike White, Bud Carson, Jerry Rhome, Frank Gansz and Jim Hanifan to bridge the gap from the early '80s to the late '90s.
Offensive backfield	C	Even if Lawrence Phillips had been a boy scout in the offseason —and he wasn't—the continued problems with his left knee would be a concern. Craig "Ironhead" Heyward adds versatility and leadership. Jets castoff Ron Moore could surprise. Tony Banks must cut way down on fumbles to become a first-rate quarterback.
Receivers	B	Isaac Bruce proved last season that he deserves to be ranked among the league's elite. Only the Patriots' Terry Glenn had a better rookie season than Eddie Kennison. But there is no proven third receiver. Second-year man Ernie Conwell has promise but still must earn his spurs at tight end.
Offensive line	C	The arrival of left tackle Orlando Pace and line coach Hanifan should be enough to pull this group up to respectability. Pace will struggle some with his pass blocking but should be an immediate force as a run blocker. Hanifan's coaching can improve any group. Gerald Perry's return after a year out of football will help.
Defensive line	D	Leslie O'Neal, 33, slipped to seven sacks last season, the second-lowest total of his career, and could be sliding. At the other end, Kevin Carter is proving to be a solid performer against the run and pass. Starting at tackle are untested Jon Kirksey and D'Marco Farr, who slumped to 4½ sacks in '96.
Linebackers	C +	A year ago, the Rams were easy pickings for runs up the middle and passes to running backs. The addition of free agent Michael Jones should help the coverage. But Robert Jones needs to play more consistently in the middle against the run. Roman Phifer is durable and underrated.
Secondary	B -	If hard-hitting Toby Wright can stay healthy, the Rams could have one of the league's better safety tandems. Keith Lyle shared the NFL lead in interceptions (nine) in '96. Todd Lyght has developed into a steady, dependable cornerback. But will rookie Dexter McCleon be ready to step in at the other corner?
Special teams	C	The team's most curious offseason move was releasing punter Sean Landeta without a clear replacement lined up. Free-agent pickup Jeff Wilkins is one of the top young kickers in the league. Kennison returned two punts for touchdowns last year; Kennison and Johnny Thomas will handle kickoff returns.

Coaching staff	C	Kevin Gilbride, an offensive genius as an assistant coach, gets his first chance as an NFL head coach. He'll be hard-pressed to match the Chargers' last rookie coach, Bobby Ross, who won the AFC West title in his debut. Gilbride appears to be a hit with the players, and he was smart to select two veterans to lead his staff—Nick Nicolau as assistant head coach and Joe Pascale as defensive coordinator.
Offensive backfield	C -	This unit is a mystery. There is some potential here with Gary Brown and Aaron Hayden. But Brown was out of work last year and Hayden was out of sync. Eric Metcalf can't be expected to help much here; Terrell Fletcher will continue to contribute, although he is far from an every-down back. Sixth-round pick Kenny Bynum from South Carolina State has awesome speed, but making the jump from Division I-AA to the NFL will be the ultimate challenge.
Receivers	B	The M & M men should make the passing game exciting to watch. Tony Martin, the team's MVP in '96, has earned his stripes and Metcalf gives defenses fits when he's cradling the ball in the open field. If Charlie Jones can build on his productive rookie year and Bryan Still snaps from his rookie funk, the receivers will be a secondary's nightmare.
Offensive line	C -	This unit has been completely overhauled. Starting guard Eric Moten and center Courtney Hall were waived; they're replaced by Troy Sienkiewicz and Raleigh McKenzie. The tackles will switch sides, with Tony Berti moving to left tackle and Vaughn Parker to the right. The Chargers like Ike Davis at the other guard, but he has to be more consistent.
Defensive line	B	In with the old, out with the fairly new. The Chargers brought in veteran William Fuller and gave Chris Mims the boot. That's a huge upgrade. Fuller, even at 35, remains a force. Mims' work ethic and pride were non-existent. Marco Coleman hopes opposing lines will be so worried about Fuller, he'll shine. Coleman's six sacks hardly made the Chargers' brass do backflips, but he is steady. In the middle, the Chargers resigned Reuben Davis (wise-move) and kept Shawn Lee (questionable).
Linebackers	B -	With All-Pro Junior Seau, some wonder why this unit doesn't get an automatic A. There's no denying Seau is one of the NFL's best, but his supporting staff isn't that special. MLB Kurt Gouveia is on the downside of his career and Lew Bush is adequate, although improving.
Secondary	B -	If CB Dwayne Harper can stay healthy—he couldn't last year—the defensive backfield is a team strength. Opposite Harper—the team's best cover man—is Terrance Shaw. The third-year pro rebounded from a shaky rookie year last season and made his mark with his aggressive style. SS Rodney Harrison has corralled his undisciplined play and isn't far from a Pro Bowl invitation. The biggest question mark is at free safety, where injury-prone veteran Mike Dumas will likely start.
Special teams	A	The addition of the shifty Metcalf to return punts solidifies an impressive special teams unit. The kicking combination of John Carney and Darren Bennett is one of the NFL's best. Carney is the league's fourth-most accurate kicker of all-time; Bennett has set team marks in punting in each of the last two years and Andre Coleman complements Metcalf on kick returns.

Coaching staff	C	While prized veteran coaches such as offensive line mentor Bobb McKittrick and defensive line coach Dwaine Board remain from George Seifert's staff, the club has major question marks surrounding head man Steve Mariucci, new offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg and new defensive coordinator John Marshall. The jury is definitely out.
Offensive backfield	B	Steve Young is an "A", but must remain healthy. If he doesn't, backup Jeff Brohm and rookie Jim Druckenmiller have virtually no experience between them. The halfbacks are strong, with a Garrison Hearst-Terry Kirby combination filling both running and pass-catching needs. If fullback William Floyd gets back to his promised 1994 condition, he's one of the best around.
Receivers	A -	Any group with Jerry Rice probably deserves an A plus, but the 49ers must coax big years out of second-year man Terrell Owens, who had a promising rookie season, and out of J.J. Stokes, who has been injured in each of his first two seasons. Tight end Brent Jones shows no signs of slowing at age 34.
Offensive line	C -	The team is dangerously thin at tackle, where 33-year-old Harris Barton is new at left tackle and Kirk Scrafford is coming off a foot injury. Beyond Scrafford and Barton, depth is an issue at that position. The guards are big and beefy—Ray Brown and Kevin Gogan go over 320 pounds—but must show they can get out on the sweep.
Defensive line	A -	The tackles, Dana Stubblefield and Bryant Young, might be the best tandem in the game. Young has turned into one of the NFL's most fearsome wrecking balls in the middle. The ends are consistent, too: Chris Doleman and Roy Barker play through injuries and produce (23½ combined sacks a year ago). Like the offensive line, depth is a concern.
Linebackers	B	Fourth-year man Kevin Mitchell slides into the starting lineup to replace 37-year-old Gary Plummer. Mitchell has impressed coaches with his tackling and athletic ability. Ken Norton and Lee Woodall fill out the other two slots and are proven Pro Bowlers. A solid group.
Secondary	B -	Free safety Merton Hanks must climb his way back into the big play realm he occupied in 1994 and 1995. Strong safety Tim McDonald must prove he's not getting too old to help out in pass defense. Left corner-back Tyronne Drakeford must silence critics again after an uneven first year starting. Right corner Marquez Pope, meanwhile, must continue his surprisingly physical and effective play.
Special teams	D +	The grade is no knock on special teams coach George Stewart, who did a good job last year. But losing kicker Jeff Wilkins to free agency was a big mistake. A proven, tough field goal kicker must be found for what should be several close games in an evening NFC West. Punter Tommy Thompson is solid, but coverage units must rally behind Pro Bowl free agent Jim Schwantz.

Coaching staff	B	Dennis Erickson guided the Seahawks through two of the toughest years in franchise history. With the threat of a franchise move behind him, Erickson can make his third year a charm thanks to the backing of billionaire Paul Allen.
Offensive backfield	A	The Seahawks have the best one-two halfback punch in the NFL in Chris Warren and Lamar Smith. Because of their unselfish approach to the position, the Seahawks plan on being in the top five of rushing statistics even if Warren doesn't get enough carries to take him back to the Pro Bowl.
Receivers	B +	Last year, the Seahawks had too many slot receivers and not enough outside threats. The Seahawks shuffled the unit a bit by moving speedy Joey Galloway to flanker for big plays and letting Mike Pritchard and Brian Blades work their way to open short routes.
Offensive line	B -	They are young, talented and feisty. Potentially, Walter Jones is the most talented lineman this franchise has ever had. Left guard Pete Kendall and Kevin Mawae are fighters who don't back down to anyone. Balancing everything else out is Howard Ballard's experience at right tackle, which makes James Atkins' transition to right guard so easy.
Defensive line	A -	On passing downs, the Seahawks line up four players — Chad Brown, Cortez Kennedy, Sam Adams and Michael Sinclair — who can each have 10-sack seasons. The key to the unit is how well Antonio Edwards and Phillip Daniels handle the running plays.
Linebackers	B	The Seahawks will look to $24 million linebacker Chad Brown for sacks and interceptions but the key to the unit is keeping Winston Moss and Dean Wells healthy. This trio has great speed in chasing down just about any type of play.
Secondary	A -	This is the most overhauled unit on the team with at least five new players. It should be better. The trio of Shawn Springs, Willie Williams and Fred Thomas is the fastest in the division, which is necessary because of the number of speedy receivers in the AFC West. Safeties Bennie Blades and Darryl Williams will provide leadership and smarts.
Special teams	C -	The concern is the coverage teams. The Seahawks allowed too many big plays on kickoff and punt returns even though they have Pro Bowl talent in safety Jay Bellamy, kicker Todd Peterson and punter Rick Tuten.

Coaching staff	B +	Tony Dungy truly is a players' coach, as long as the player is his type of guy. Dungy has done a wonderful job of weeding out the bad apples from Sam Wyche's regime and he's left with a young roster that believes in his system. He showed remarkable patience last year and quietly assembled a very good defense. The heat will be on offensive coordinator Mike Shula and his players to match the defense's productivity.
Offensive backfield	B	Everything starts with QB Trent Dilfer, and he showed signs at the end of last year that he's finally comfortable with the NFL game. His job should get easier with Warrick Dunn in the backfield. The Bucs envision Dunn as a Dave Meggett-type back, but they plan to use him in more than third-down situations. Mike Alstott developed into one of the league's best FBs as a rookie and earned more carries. Errict Rhett's playing time will depend on how the slender Dunn holds up against NFL defenses.
Receivers	C	The team still is recovering from the damage done by free-agent flop Alvin Harper. His inability to be a go-to receiver hurt Dilfer's development. Horace Copeland returns from knee surgery and the Bucs are hoping he can fill the role Harper never could. Rookie Reidel Anthony will get the first shot at the other starting job.
Offensive line	C -	The left side is solid with T Paul Gruber and dependable G Jim Pyne. C Tony Mayberry is steady. After that, though, it gets pretty scary, unless a couple of rookies come through. T Jerry Wunsch and G Frank Middleton could end up as starters on the right side.
Defensive line	C +	DT Warren Sapp is on the verge of becoming a superstar. Dungy's defense seems to be tailor-made for the athletic Sapp, who could be the team's best lineman since Hall of Famer LeRoy Selmon. Sapp's statistics could go through the rough if second-year players Regan Upshaw and Marcus Jones show improvement.
Linebackers	B -	Hardy Nickerson went to the Pro Bowl and a case could have been made for Derrick Brooks. But the loss of Lonnie Marts will hurt. Rufus Porter is a strong hitter, but lacks Marts' athleticism, which was a huge advantage in the zone blitz. Porter has had some injury problems in the past.
Secondary	C +	John Lynch and Melvin Johnson aren't the quickest safeties around, but both can hit and have great instincts. With Donnie Abraham on one corner, 75 percent of the defensive backfield is in very good hands. But the other corner could be a problem. Veterans Martin Mayhew and Charles Dimry aren't as fast as they used to be and rookie Ronde Barber can't be counted on to have the sudden impact Abraham did last year.
Special teams	B	This was a strength last year and should be even better with Dunn helping out Karl Williams on punt and kickoff returns. Williams will handle most of the punts and he and Dunn will share the kickoffs. Tommy Barnhardt is one of the game's most consistent punters. Kicker Michael Husted is productive, but inconsistent.

Coaching staff	A	This staff has done a remarkable job keeping the team from imploding with over two years' worth of franchise relocation talk, unfriendly Astrodome crowds and a continuing rebuilding effort from the 2-14 debate of 1994. The coaches' only flaw was they didn't always communicate with each other, and Jeff Fisher has addressed that, too.
Offensive backfield	B +	Simply because he has not played much, Steve McNair is difficult to grade. But in the few games he played McNair showed poise, intelligence, leadership and playmaking. He has a rocket arm and brims with confidence; if he does his homework, he could be a star. Dave Krieg at backup is a tremendous help and could step in if needed. Eddie George earns the bulk of the grade for running backs—over 1,300 yards as a rookie gets you an A. The Oilers could use more production from Ronnie Harmon, especially in the third-down situations where he has made a career.
Receivers	C -	Overall this group is better than the numbers they put up last season. Chris Sanders is an exceptional talent who needs to step to the forefront, while Willie Davis needs to have more than the 39 catches he had last season. There's room for rookie Joey Kent to step in if he wants it badly enough.
Offensive line	C +	Another group that is better than it showed last season. They did pave the way for George, but were just 11-of-20 on third-and-1 and just 12-of-18 on third-and-2. Kept sacks to a minimum—35—but were slightly worse than the 32 sacks they surrendered in 1995.
Defensive line	D	The Oilers need more production here, especially in the pass rush, especially in the middle of the field. They did not collapse the pocket, did not intimidate many quarterbacks. Play the run well, but suffer in passing downs. Most sacks were the result of coverage in the secondary.
Linebackers	B	If Lonnie Marts can play more consistently than the occasionally superb, occasionally invisible Micheal Barrow, this is a solid group that won't make many mistakes. Joe Bowden is a significantly underrated player.
Secondary	B +	Effective group last season, but faded in the interception department—six in the first four games compared to six in the last 12 games. Play the run superbly, hold coverages for extended periods of time. Surrendered big play late at times to tip the game away.
Special teams	C	This group is probably closer to an A in the kicking game with Al Del Greco and Reggie Roby, but the Oilers were decidedly unspectacular in the return game in a year when the Super Bowl was decided by a kick returner. They had no touchdowns on returns all season. Improvement is needed. Coverage units were solid with only occasional lapses.

Coaching staff	C +	Norv Turner has assembled a well-balanced offense. The special teams have excelled under assistant Pete Rodriguez. However, the defense was so bad despite seven millionaire starters that coordinator Ron Lynn and two of his aides were fired. It's up to new coordinator Mike Nolan, who did a great job with less talent the past four years with the New York Giants, to turn the defense around.
Offensive backfield	B	Terry Allen's hard-nosed running is the key to Washington's attack. Gus Frerotte's not flashy, but few quarterbacks are as efficient or as durable. If the Redskins acquire Jeff Hostetler from Oakland as expected, they'll have a top backup. Marc Logan's not the ideal blocking back, but he's a threat on screen passes. Third-down back Brian Mitchell's a weapon running or catching the ball.
Receivers	B -	No receiver had ever done what Henry Ellard did at 34 and 35, so why expect a dropoff at age 36? Michael Westbrook's still more potential than production, largely because of injuries. Leslie Shepherd's a decent third receiver. Jamie Asher's on the verge of being Washington's top receiving tight end since Jerry Smith's heyday in the late 1960s. James Jenkins and Scott Galbraith are solid blocking types.
Offensive line	B	They're not quite up to the standards of the Hogs, who made blocking famous in the 1980s, but Washington's line is big (325 pounds on average), young (right tackle Ed Simmons is the only projected starter to have hit 30) and good. Although Allen mostly runs behind Simmons and right guard Bob Dahl, left guard Tre Johnson is the lineman the Redskins see as Pro Bowl-bound.
Defensive line	D	This has been Washington's sore point since Hall of Fame coach Joe Gibbs retired after the 1992 season. Adding former Pro Bowl tackle Sean Gilbert didn't make a big difference last season nor did the emergence of end Rich Owens into a pass-rushing force in his second year. Maybe University of Miami end Kenard Lang, Washington's top draft pick, is the answer for this beleaguered unit.
Linebackers	C	Ken Harvey has been to three straight Pro Bowls. Marvcus Patton has led the Redskins in tackles the past two years. So Washington blamed middle man Rod Stephens for the inconsistent linebacker play and cut him. Stephens' replacement, Patrise Alexander, is as raw as sushi, but he'll start unless rookie outside backer Greg Jones progresses quickly and moves Patton inside.
Secondary	B -	Few teams have had two cornerbacks as talented and experienced as Darrell Green, coming off his sixth Pro Bowl, and 10-year man Cris Dishman, signed as a free agent from Houston. New strong safety Jesse Campbell knows the defense after four years with Nolan in New York. If free safety Stanley Richard can live up to his $2 million salary, the secondary could be second to none.
Special teams	A -	Although there was a bit of a dropoff last year, this is still Washington's strong suit. Return man Mitcheli led the NFL in all-purpose yards for a third straight year. Punter Matt Turk went to the Pro Bowl after leading the NFL in net average. Kicker Scott Blanton was perfect inside the 40 and on extra points. The cover teams have plenty of speed, led by Darryl Pounds and Scott Turner.

PLAYOFF PLAN

TIEBREAKING PROCEDURES

DIVISION TIES

TWO CLUBS

1. Head-to-head (best won-lost-tied percentage in games between the clubs).
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the division.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, if applicable.
5. Best net points in division games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

THREE OR MORE CLUBS

(Note: If two clubs remain tied after other clubs are eliminated during any step, tie-breaker reverts to step 1 of two-club format.)

1. Head-to-head (best won-lost-tied percentage in games among the clubs).
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the division.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games.
5. Best net points in division games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

WILD-CARD TIES

If necessary to break ties to determine the three wild-card clubs from each conference, the following steps will be taken:

1. If all the tied clubs are from the same division, apply division tie-breaker.
2. If the tied clubs are from different divisions, apply the steps listed below.
3. When the first wild-card team has been identified, the procedure is repeated to name the second wild card (i.e., eliminate all but the highest-ranked club in each division prior to proceeding to step 2), and repeated a third time, if necessary, to identify the third wild card. In situations where three or more teams from the same division are involved in the procedure, the original seeding of the teams remains the same for subsequent applications of the tie-breaker if the top-ranked team in that division qualifies for a wild-card berth.

TWO CLUBS

1. Head-to-head, if applicable.
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
4. Best average net points in conference games.
5. Best net points in all games.
6. Strength of schedule.
7. Best net touchdowns in all games.
8. Coin toss.

THREE OR MORE CLUBS

(Note: If two clubs remain tied after other clubs are eliminated, tie-breaker reverts to step 1 of two-club format.)

1. Apply division tie-breaker to eliminate all but highest-ranked club in each division prior to proceeding to step 1. The original seeding within a division upon application of the division tie-breaker remains the same for all subsequent applications of the procedure that are necessary to identify the three wild-card participants.
2. Head-to-head sweep (applicable only if one club has defeated each of the others or one club has lost to each of the others).
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
5. Best average net points in conference games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

YEAR IN REVIEW

THE TOP STORIES OF THE PAST YEAR

By VITO STELLINO

If the Green Bay Packers didn't exist, the NFL might have had to invent them in 1996.

The Packers were the feel-good story of the year at a time when the NFL was coping with turmoil and strife on and off the field during its 77th season.

Although the Packers play in the league's smallest city—Green Bay's population of slightly under 100,000 could fit comfortably into the Rose Bowl—the Packers are one team that will never skip town. The community-owned team, founded by the Indian Packing Company in 1919, has 1,195 stockholders who own 4,634 shares of stock. The shares, purchased for $25, never pay dividends, but they're heirlooms in Green Bay.

No team has a heritage to match the Packers, who have won an even dozen titles. Under Curly Lambeau, for whom their stadium is named, the Packers won three consecutive championships from 1929-31 before the league even had a championship game. Under Vince Lombardi, for whom the Super Bowl trophy is named, they won three consecutive NFL championships from 1965-67, including the first two Super Bowls.

That's why when the Packers beat the New England Patriots, 35-21, in Super Bowl XXXI in New Orleans on January, 26, 1997, their fans were awash in nostalgia. Even the fans who were too young to remember Lambeau and Lombardi and the "Ice Bowl" were caught up in the emotion of the moment.

"I think it's time the Lombardi Trophy goes home to Lambeau Field, where it belongs," team president Bob Harlan said.

Coach Mike Holmgren told his players, "This trophy, men, is named after Vince Lombardi. As important as it is to every player in this league, it's even more important to us. This is where it belongs."

There was a larger message in the Green Bay victory. It was that a well-managed, small-market team without a deep-pockets owner still could compete—and win—against the big-market teams in the free-agency era.

The man who ultimately made it all possible, former NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, died at age 70 in Rancho Sante Fe, Calif., of brain cancer on December 6, less than two months before the Packers won the Super Bowl.

Rozelle convinced the owners to share all the TV revenue equally, which made it possible for all teams to compete on an equal level and for Green Bay to survive. Unfortunately, the league has had trouble coping in recent years with the success he helped create as teams continue to search for greener pastures with more luxury boxes and premium seats.

The league didn't even have a team the past two years in Los Angeles, the nation's second-largest market, or last year in Cleveland, a market whose NFL roots date to 1937. It had a lame-duck team in Houston that is heading to Tennessee.

In the past 15 years, five franchises—the Raiders, Colts, Cardinals, Rams and Browns—have relocated, with the Raiders going to Los Angeles in 1982 and returning to Oakland in 1995. The Colts left Baltimore for Indianapolis in 1984, the Cardinals left St. Louis for Phoenix in 1988 and the Rams left Anaheim for St. Louis in 1995. The Browns moved to Baltimore in 1996 and became the Ravens, leaving the Browns nickname and heritage behind for a new team that will play in Cleveland in 1999.

All that instability may be one of the reasons why attendance and TV ratings dropped slightly in 1996. But pro football has surpassed all its rivals to become the nation's most popular sport—the Super Bowl has become a virtual mid-winter holiday—and Green Bay's success showed the NFL can still remember its roots.

THE NFC IS STILL KING

For the first time since the Chicago Bears won Super Bowl XX after the 1985 season, the San Francisco 49ers, Dallas Cowboys, New York Giants and Washington Redskins were shut out of the Super Bowl. Those teams had combined to win 10 consecutive Super Bowls—three each by the 49ers and Cowboys and two each by the Giants and Redskins.

But the Packers' return to the top did keep alive the NFC's amazing string of Super Bowl victories. The conference has won every game since the Raiders beat Washington in Super Bowl XVIII after the 1983 season. The NFC has won 15 of the past 16, with three teams—the 49ers (five) and the Cowboys and Redskins (three each)—combining to win 11 of those 15 titles.

Nobody has yet come up with a clear explanation of why the NFC has managed to keep winning the Super Bowl even though all 30 teams draft from the same common pool, play each other in the regular season and allow executives, coaches and players to switch back and forth from one conference to another.

The Packers' rebuilding program even had its roots in the AFC because general manager Ron Wolf was a long-time Raiders aide and, later, worked for the Jets before he was hired to run the Packers at the end of the 1991 season. He hired coach Mike Holmgren, traded for quarterback Brett Favre in 1992 and signed defensive lineman Reggie White to a $17 million deal in 1993, proving the Packers could lure free agents to the league's smallest market.

The Packers put together an old-fashioned, five-year rebuilding program to get to the top, but the acquisition of Favre was the key. He was the league's MVP each of the past two seasons. He passed for 3,899 yards and 39 touchdowns in 1996. And the Packers are 57-30 with him as the starter.

The Packers, who had lost in Dallas in the playoffs each of the three previous years, found out during the '96 season that they still couldn't climb that hurdle. With their receiver corps depleted by injuries, they lost, 21-6, in Week 12 for their seventh consecutive loss in Dallas. But they won their last five regular-season games and beat San Francisco, 35-14, and Carolina, 30-13, in the playoffs to gain the Super Bowl berth.

In the Super Bowl, Favre burned New England with touchdown passes of 54 and 81 yards and ran for a third touchdown, but return man Desmond Howard won MVP honors by setting up two scores with punt returns and scored himself on a 99-yard kickoff return in the third quarter. That broke the game open after the Patriots had narrowed the deficit to 27-21.

THE OTHER CONFERENCE

The AFC continued to play the role of the Washington Generals to the NFC's Harlem Globetrotters, losing the Super Bowl for the 13th consecutive time. And for the second year in a row, the AFC team with the best record got knocked out at home in the first round of the playoffs.

In 1995, it was Kansas City, which posted a 13-3 regular-season record, then lost its first playoff game to Indianapolis, 10-7.

Last year, it was Denver, which also went 13-3 during the regular season, then lost its first playoff game to Jacksonville, 30-27. Mark Brunell passed for 245 yards and two touchdowns, and Natrone Means rushed for 140 yards as the Jaguars shredded the Denver defense.

The Jaguars then went to New England for the AFC championship game, where they lost to the Patriots, 20-6. The Patriots forced two turnovers in the last five minutes to wrap it up.

That put the Patriots in the Super Bowl for the first time since 1985. Even though they had a coach, Bill Parcells, who had previously led the New York Giants to two of the NFC's Super Bowl championships, the Patriots became No. 13 in the NFC's string of Super Bowl victims.

DETHRONED

The Dallas Cowboys failed in their attempt to become the first team to win four Super Bowls in a five-year span when they were eliminated in the second round of the playoffs at Carolina, 26-17.

But the real failure for the Cowboys was not on the field but off it, where the team was embarrassed by a series of sex, drug and alcohol problems that scarred its image.

It started early in the offseason with reports that the players had rented a so-called "White House" near their training facility where they had parties away from their wives.

Then came the indictment of wide receiver Michael Irvin on drug possession charges after Dallas police found him in a hotel room with two topless dancers and a former teammate. Irvin eventually pleaded no contest to felony cocaine charges in July, ending a trial that exposed several sordid scandals, including a murder-for-hire plot that targeted Irvin and was funded by a Dallas policeman.

Irvin was sentenced to four years' probation, 800 hours of community service, fined $10,000 and warned that he could face 20 years in jail for the next offense. Irvin then was suspended for the first five games by the NFL for violating its substance-abuse policy.

Defensive tackle Leon Lett, who was suspended for four games in 1995 for violating the drug policy, was suspended for a year on December 3. Drug suspensions are nothing new for the Cowboys; of the league's previous 13 suspensions, seven involved Cowboys or ex-Cowboys.

There was another firestorm in late December, during the week before the Carolina playoff game, when a 23-year-old woman charged that offensive tackle Erik Williams raped her while Irvin held a gun to her head. The woman later recanted her charges and was charged with perjury. All charges were dropped against the players, and Williams filed a federal court suit against the city of Dallas and the police for violating his civil rights.

With all this turmoil going on, it was remarkable that the Cowboys still went 10-6, won the NFC Eastern Division and a first-round playoff game against Minnesota before losing in Carolina, where Irvin was injured early in the game after making his first reception.

The turbulent year led to much soul-searching about the future direction of the Cowboys. Owner Jerry Jones addressed the players at their final team meeting and warned them to clean up their act.

As quarterback Troy Aikman said, "With all the problems this team faced, I don't think anyone's real proud of the image. I don't think those in control are real proud."

In April 1997, Jones hired former Cowboys player Calvin Hill and his wife, Janet—better known to the younger generation as the parents of NBA star Grant Hill—to direct a department designed to improve player behavior. Robert Newhouse, another former Cowboy, was named the day-to-day director of the program.

Jones, who may have been concerned that the team's tarnished image would hurt his ability to negotiate lucrative marketing deals, warned that players who do not accept the program will become ex-Cowboys. "The fans of the Cowboys deserve this type of intense commitment to good behavior." he said.

UPS AND DOWNS

Seven of the 12 teams that made the playoffs in 1995 made it back last season. The three newcomers in the AFC were New England, Denver and Jacksonville; they replaced Miami, San Diego and Kansas City. The two newcomers in the NFC were Carolina and Minnesota; they replaced Detroit and Atlanta.

The biggest improvements were made by New England, which went from 6-10 in 1995 to an 11-5 mark and the AFC Eastern Division title; Jacksonville, from 4-12 to 9-7 and a wild-card playoff berth; Denver, from 8-8 to 13-3 and the AFC West title; and Carolina, from 7-9 to 12-4 and first place in the NFC West.

Three of the division champions—Pittsburgh (AFC Central), Dallas (NFC East) and Green Bay (NFC Central)—repeated. New England, Denver and Carolina replaced Buffalo, Kansas City and San Francisco, respectively, atop their divisions.

The biggest plunge was made by Atlanta, which went from a 9-7 wild-card mark in '95 to 3-13, which tied New Orleans for the second-worst record in the league.

EXPANSION TWINS

One of the most remarkable stories of the year was the rise of the Carolina Panthers and the Jacksonville Jaguars, the two 1995 expansion teams, who reached the conference title games in just their second seasons. Carolina won its division title with a 12-4 record. Jacksonville started out 4-7, then rallied to win its last five games and earn a wild-card spot.

The records were tributes to the organizations put together by the two owners, Jerry Richardson of Carolina and Wayne Weaver of Jacksonville.

But there were complaints around the league that the two clubs got deals that were too generous. Each was allotted 28 total draft picks in 1995 and 1996, compared to 14 for the established teams, and were allowed to spend a full salary cap once they counted the salaries of the players in the veteran allocation pool.

"They're not expansion teams, they're free-agency teams" grumbled Green Bay G.M. Ron Wolf, who was with Tampa Bay when the Buccaneers, who did not have similar advantages, started out 0-26.

The league didn't want the expansion teams to struggle the way the Buccaneers and Seattle Seahawks did when they were founded in 1976, but Carolina and Jacksonville weren't expected to become instant contenders.

Although San Diego general manager Bobby Beathard noted the teams had to be given credit for taking advantage of the hands they were dealt, he said, "In my mind, the league was too generous to give all of that for fear maybe it would be an embarrassment to have struggling expansion teams."

Michael Huyghue, the Jaguars' senior vice president of football operations, responded by saying, "What you've seen is two good organizations who have outhustled their competitors. All the teams could have thrown in all their cards and started over if they wanted to."

COACHING DERBY

If you like job security, an NFL coaching job is not an ideal one.

Eleven of the 30 coaches who began the 1996 season failed to keep their jobs. The exodus started with the departures of Jim Mora of the New Orleans Saints and David Shula of the Cincinnati Bengals on October 21, after Week 8. Mora resigned and Shula was fired.

By the time the smoke cleared, nine more coaches—George Seifert of San Francisco, Bill Parcells of New England, Bobby Ross of San Diego, June Jones of Atlanta, Dan Reeves of the Giants, Rich Brooks of St. Louis, Mike White of Oakland, Rich Kotite of the Jets and Wayne Fontes of Detroit—had departed.

Three of the coaches quickly got new jobs. Parcells moved to the Jets after club owner Leon Hess agreed to give the Patriots compensation for Parcells. Ross took the Lions' job and Reeves went to Atlanta.

Bruce Coslet, who led the Bengals to a 7-2 mark after replacing Shula on an interim basis, was named coach on a permanent basis. Coslet, fired by the Jets after the 1993 season, was one of five former coaches to return. Dick Vermeil, who had been away 14 years since quitting in Philadelphia after the 1982 season, got the St. Louis job. Mike Ditka, who was fired in Chicago after the 1992 season, was named the New Orleans coach. Joe Bugel, who was fired by Arizona after the 1993 season, was promoted from assistant head coach/offense to coach in Oakland. And Pete Carroll, who lasted just one year (1994) with the Jets, took the New England job.

Three more coaches, Kevin Gilbride in San Diego, Steve Mariucci in San Francisco and Jim Fassel with the Giants, were named NFL coaches for the first time. This doesn't count Bill Belichick, who lasted six days as the Jets' coach before the team made a settlement with the Patriots to get Parcells.

"I asked (Jets team president) Steve Gutman if he was going to throw a retirement party for Belichick," joked Baltimore Ravens owner Art Modell, who fired Belichick in Cleveland after the 1995 season.

By the time the musical chairs game was over, the average tenure for a coach was 2.4 years in the AFC and 1.7 in the NFC. Marv Levy, who has coached the Bills for 11 years, is the leader in seniority.

The days when Tom Landry could coach 29 years in Dallas, Don Shula 26 years in Miami and Chuck Noll 23 years in Pittsburgh apparently are gone.

Rams president John Shaw, who fired Brooks after just two years on the job, said, "Teams are less patient. You only get four years with a player before he becomes a free agent. A lot of teams now view it as a two- or three-year program, especially when you look at this year's conference championship games."

He was referring to Carolina—which is in the Rams' division—and Jacksonville reaching the conference championship games in only their second seasons. When owners see teams reach success that quickly, they're less patient in waiting for five-year plans to materialize.

Sam Wyche, who has been fired both in Cincinnati and Tampa Bay and is now a TV analyst, said owners should get the blame.

"Any owner who hires a coach and fires him after one, two or three years—that's a failure of the owner," he said. "The owner picked a guy he shouldn't have picked. If an owner will not be patient enough, to me it's a failure of the guy doing the hiring."

FRONT-OFFICE BATTLES

Not all of the coaching changes were garden-variety firings because of losing records. Some were more complicated.

In San Diego, Bobby Ross clashed with G.M. Bobby Beathard; in New York, Dan Reeves couldn't work harmoniously with Giants G.M. George Young. Ross and Reeves wanted more control, and they got it in their new jobs.

In New England, Bill Parcells couldn't co-exist with owner Bob Kraft. When Parcells protested the decision of personnel chief Bobby Grier to select wide receiver Terry Glenn in the first round of the 1996 draft—Parcells felt the team needed defensive help—Kraft backed Grier, and the rift couldn't be healed.

The irony is that Parcells had planned to retire after the 1996 season in the wake of a disappointing 6-10 record in 1995. He even asked Kraft to delete a provision in his contract that obligated Parcells to pay $1.3 million if he didn't fulfill the final year. Kraft agreed, with the stipulation that Parcells couldn't coach any other team in 1997.

Parcells then was energized when the Patriots made the Super Bowl—with the help of Glenn's 90 receptions and six touchdowns—and wanted to return to New York to take the Jets' job.

After commissioner Paul Tagliabue ruled that Parcells' contract tied him to the Patriots in 1997 if he wanted to coach, Kraft refused to release him unless he got compensation. Parcells quit and was ready to sit out for a year if the Jets and Patriots couldn't agree on compensation.

In a deal brokered by Tagliabue, the Patriots, who wanted the first pick in the 1997 draft, instead got third- and fourth-round picks in '97, a second-round choice in '98 and and a first-round pick in '99, plus $300,000 to be donated to a Patriots' charity.

Then there was the San Francisco situation. George Seifert didn't want to go into the 1997 season, the final year of his contract, as a lame duck, so he quit when he didn't get an extension. The 49ers, who seem to think they should win the Super Bowl every year, didn't appreciate Seifert's 108-35 record in eight years, including two Super Bowl victories, and pushed him out the door with a golden parachute.

MINORITY HIRING

Frustrated by the fact that none of the 11 coaches hired was a minority, a group of nine black assistants met with commissioner Paul Tagliabue in New York in March to discuss the league's minority hiring problem.

Even though about 67 percent of the league's players are black, there are only three black coaches: Ray Rhodes in Philadelphia, Dennis Green in Minnesota and Tony Dungy in Tampa.

Art Shell, the former Raiders coach who didn't get an interview for any of the openings even though eight of the 11 coaches hired had previous NFL coaching experience, said of the meeting, "We do feel we had a good start."

Tagliabue, noting he doesn't do the hiring, said, "I told them my role was to make sure our clubs looked at a wide pool of candidates, a diverse pool of candidates."

One of the coaches bypassed was Sherm Lewis, the offensive coordinator of the Packers, even though assistant coaches on Super Bowl teams often advance to coaching jobs. Lewis, who didn't attend the meeting in New York, took a low-key approach, at least publicly.

"If we just keep winning Super Bowls, somebody will eventually say, 'Hey, this guy deserves a shot,' " Lewis said.

But Dungy said of the snub of Lewis: "If Sherman Lewis were white, do you think he would have gotten a job?"

FAN SUPPORT

The fans sent the NFL a warning in 1996: It can no longer take them for granted.

Both attendance and TV ratings dipped slightly last year. Average attendance dropped from 62,682 to 60,885 per game, and the TV ratings slipped on all three networks. Fox dipped from a 12.5 rating to 11.3, NBC from 11.1 to 10.9 and ABC's Monday Night Football dropped from 17.0 to 16.2.

Even the Super Bowl, which got a 46 rating and a 68 share in 1996, dropped to a 43.3 rating and a 65 share for the Green Bay-New England matchup. The audience dipped from 138.5 million to 128.9 million.

Although the networks complained about the way Nielsen compiled the ratings, the real problem could be that the league's instability and off-the-field problems turned off some fans.

But the drop in TV ratings won't hurt the league's leverage when the new TV contracts are negotiated after this season. The league got $4.4 billion for four years in the last TV contract and expects at least a 30 percent hike this time. That CBS will enter the bidding again virtually guarantees that the contracts will go up. Although there's virtually no chance CBS can wrest the NFC package back from Fox, it is likely to bid on one of the other packages.

THE HARD CAP

The NFL's salary cap, which has seemed squishy soft at times in recent years, got a bit harder. That's because the cap went up only slightly, from $40.8 million in 1996 to $41.454 million this year. The cap had jumped from $34.6 million in 1994 to $37.1 million in 1995 and to $40.8 million in '96.

The result was that teams didn't have much extra money to spend and they tended to be leery of free agency after the Jets, who went on a spending spree in 1996 that included a $25 million deal for quarterback Neil O'Donnell, had the league's worst record (1-15).

The conventional wisdom now is that teams are better off spending their money to keep their own players and foster a sense of team unity.

That helps explain why by April 30, 1997, 88 unrestricted free agents and 32 restricted free agents had re-signed with their old teams, while 73 players (69 unrestricted free agents, two transition players and two restricted free agents) had changed teams. Last year, 88 players changed teams by the end of April and a total of 105 changed teams by the time free agency ended on July 15.

Of course, some players cashed in on big deals to change teams. The Seahawks were quick to plunge into the market, signing Pittsburgh linebacker Chad Brown to a six-year, $24 million deal and then signing another Steeler, cornerback Willie Williams, to a four-year, $8.7 million deal.

Quarterback Elvis Grbac left San Francisco for a $20.4 million deal with the Kansas City Chiefs. Offensive lineman Kevin Gogan was lured across the Bay from Oakland to San Francisco for a six-year, $12 million deal. Linebacker Micheal Barrow got a $19 million deal to move from Houston to Carolina, and Chicago gave cornerback Tom Carter, a transition player, a five-year, $13.8 million deal that Washington declined to match.

But some of the best deals went to players who stayed home. Detroit quarterback Scott Mitchell signed a $21 million deal even before the free-agency market opened, and linebacker Derrick Thomas got a $27 million pact in Kansas City. Two of the league's best running backs, Terry Allen of Washington and Jerome Bettis of Pittsburgh, stayed home for $14.8 million and $14.4 million contracts, respectively.

The league has had free agency since 1993, but the owners and players still are learning to live with it. A year ago, the two sides agreed to extend the current collective bargaining agreement through 2000, with options to extend it two more years.

By December 1, 1997, they must decide whether to extend it through 2001. The owners, who want restrictions placed on signing bonuses (which now account for 45 percent of all salaries), have threatened not to extend it. Meanwhile, the NFL Players Association has decided to stop rebating dues to put together a $50 million war chest in case it has to fight another labor war.

In another dispute, the two sides have agreed on a salary cap bank for 1998 that will reduce the increase in the cap after the new TV contract is negotiated. The owners say the reduction in the increase should be $3 million; the players say it should be much less. A special master will have to make the final determination.

STADIUM GAMES

Although voters have approved new stadiums in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Nashville, Detroit and Tampa, the battle to get stadiums constructed always is a difficult one.

In Tampa, even after construction was started, a judge ruled the stadium's financing plan was unconstitutional. The Florida Supreme Court will have to make the final ruling.

Voters in Seattle and San Francisco were to vote in June whether to approve new stadiums in those cities. If the Seattle vote is approved, Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen will exercise his option to buy the Seahawks from Ken Behring.

The owners passed a cross-ownership bill at their March meeting that will allow Allen to own the Seahawks even though he already owns the NBA's Portland Trail Blazers. The measure also allows Wayne Huizenga, who also owns baseball's Marlins and the NHL's Panthers, to keep the Dolphins.

Carolina opened Ericsson Stadium last year, Washington will open its new stadium this fall in suburban Landover, Md., and Baltimore's new stadium will be completed for the 1998 season.

New stadiums are scheduled to be completed in Nashville and Cleveland, which will get an expansion team in 1999 if an existing team doesn't move there first. Nashville will be the new home of the Houston Oilers, but until the new stadium is built, the Oilers will play in Memphis.

MILESTONES

Chiefs running back Marcus Allen is writing his page in the record book. He surpassed Jim Brown (106) and Walter Payton (110) to become the career rushing touchdowns leader with 112. Allen has 134 touchdowns overall and trails only San Francisco's Jerry Rice, who has 165.

Allen also topped Roger Craig (566) to become the career receptions leader for running backs with 576 and topped Mosi Tatupu (199) to become the leader in games played at running back with 205.

In other milestones, Miami's Dan Marino became the first quarterback to pass for 50,000 yards, Rice became the first receiver to top the 1,000-receptions mark and Detroit's Barry Sanders became the first player to rush for 1,000 yards in each of his first eight seasons.

THE LEGAL FILE

The NFL settled two major lawsuits last year.

It reached an agreement with former Patriots owner Billy Sullivan for $11.5 million rather than risk a third trial. Sullivan had won a $114 million judgment after the first trial that was overturned in appellate court; the second one ended in a hung jury. Sullivan sued because he contended the league forced him to sell by not allowing him to conduct a public stock sale.

The league also dropped its suits against Dallas owner Jerry Jones over his marketing deals. It means Jones is free to make his own deals.

But the league's legal woes are far from over. Victor Kiam, another former Patriots owner, is suing because he said he was forced to sell when the league didn't allow him to move his team.

Raiders owner Al Davis once again is suing the league because he says it scuttled his negotiations to remain in Los Angeles. The city of St. Louis is suing to overturn its $29 million relocation fee because Davis wasn't forced to pay one when he moved the Raiders back to Oakland.

Fran Murray, who was once a minority owner of the Patriots and negotiated a deal for the lease at the new stadium in St. Louis when he was trying to obtain an expansion team in that city, is suing the league because he contends the league squeezed him out of both markets. A jury was to hear the case in Philadelphia in the summer of 1997.

INSTANT REPLAY

The return of instant replay fell three votes shy of passing at the March meeting when the owners voted, 20-10, in favor of the measure.

Under the proposed challenge system, a coach would have had to ask for a replay and would have lost a timeout even if the call was overturned. That feature upset Jets coach Bill Parcells, who provided a critical "no" vote. Raiders owner Al Davis also didn't like the challenge feature. Once it was obvious instant replay was going to lose, Dallas owner Jerry Jones provided the 10th "no" vote. Jones opposed replay, but would have voted "yes" if 22 other teams had favored it.

Seven teams have remained opposed to replay under any circumstances, so proponents need to find a system the other 23 teams will support. The debate is likely to heat up every time there is a controversial call, so this issue won't go away.

FINES

The league continued to send a message to the players that conduct it deems detrimental to the game will bring stiff fines.

Chicago linebacker Bryan Cox was fined a record $87,500 for making an obscene gesture to an official in a game against Green Bay. Oakland guard Steve Wisniewski was fined $50,000 for his actions in a game against the Lions—$30,000 for launching himself into a pile and $20,000 for bumping an official. Earlier in the season, he was fined $10,000 and $5,000 for unnecessary roughness, bringing his tab to $65,000,

Minnesota cornerback Corey Fuller was fined $30,000 for poking Green Bay center Frank Winters in the eye, plus $7,500 for a late hit that provoked Winters.

Atlanta linebacker Chuck Smith was fined $7,500 for going at Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman's knees and $25,000 (although he was told $10,000 would be rebated if he had no further incidents) for doing the same thing to Carolina quarterback Kerry Collins.

The league also handed out multiple fines for brawls. A combined 35 Pittsburgh and Houston players were penalized a total of $145,000, although $92,000 was to be rebated if there were no further incidents; 17 Seahawks and Chiefs were fined $73,000; and 14 Packers and Cowboys were fined $64,000.

But the NFL could be nit-picking at times. It fined Dallas cornerback Deion Sanders $5,000 for putting Leon Lett's number on his wristband after Lett was suspended.

The league also decided to start fining players this season if they take their helmets off on the field to celebrate.

DRUG PROBLEMS

If suspensions are a barometer, Dallas is the team with the most serious drug problem. Five Cowboys and ex-Cowboys were suspended in the past year for violating the league's substance-abuse policy. No other team had more than one player suspended.

Cory Fleming, released by Dallas after the 1995 season, reportedly was suspended for four games, although the penalty wasn't carried out because no team signed him. Clayton Holmes, suspended for a year late in the 1995 season and then released by the Cowboys, sat out the 1996 season and was signed by the Dolphins during the offseason.

Michael Irvin was suspended for the first five games of the '96 season and Shante Carver for the first six. Leon Lett, who was suspended for four games in 1995, was suspended for a year on December 3 and will miss the first 13 games of the '97 season.

Larry Webster of the Ravens and Roosevelt Potts of the Colts also sat out the 1996 season under suspensions.

Bam Morris, who was suspended for four games after pleading guilty to a marijuana possession charge, wound up missing five games before he was allowed to take the field for the Ravens after he was released by Pittsburgh.

New Orleans' Darren Mickell, Carolina's Curtis Whitley and St. Louis' Jesse James each served four-game suspensions.

Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre spent several weeks during the 1996 offseason in a Kansas clinic, where he was treated for an addiction to painkillers. But he was not suspended and came back to win MVP honors again. Favre appealed when the league banned him from using alcohol and that prohibition was lifted after the season ended.

GOING NORTH

The NFL entered into a five-year agreement with the Canadian Football League in which the NFL will give the CFL $3 million and assistance in marketing the struggling league.

As part of the agreement, the CFL champion will meet the World League champion and players from the CFL will be eligible to join NFL teams at the end of the CFL season.

Commissioner Paul Tagliabue made this agreement without consulting the owners, and it did not get a warm reception in Buffalo, which is trying to attract fans from Toronto.

HALL OF FAME

Don Shula, the winningest coach in NFL history, headed this year's four-man delegation into the Hall of Fame. Elected with Shula were Wellington Mara, the co-owner of the New York Giants and one of the pioneers of the game; Pittsburgh and Kansas City center Mike Webster; and cornerback Mike Haynes, who played with the Patriots and Raiders.

The four were to be inducted into the Hall in Canton, Ohio, during ceremonies on July 26.

RETIREMENTS

Two of the top quarterbacks of the past decade, Jim Kelly and Bernie Kosar, were among the notable players to announce their retirements at the end of the 1996 season. Kelly is likely to go into TV. Kosar is heading a group trying to bring an expansion team to Cleveland.

Among the other players who retired were Buffalo center Kent Hull, Green Bay tight end Keith Jackson and defensive end Sean Jones, and linebacker Kyle Clifton, who spent 13 years with the Jets.

Offensive tackle Jim Lachey of the Redskins, fullback Steve Smith of the Seahawks and kicker Fuad Reveiz of the Vikings retired before the start of the '96 season.

DEATH OF AN ICON

Pete Rozelle, who did more than any one person to turn the NFL into the success story it is today, died at age 70 in December 1996.

During his tenure as commissioner from 1960-89, Rozelle presided over the growth of the league from 12 to 28 teams. He helped bring about the 1970 merger with the AFL and invented the Super Bowl and Monday Night Football, which are now permanent fixtures on the American sports landscape.

Two owners, Jack Kent Cooke of the Redskins and Robert Irsay of the Colts, also died. Their sons, John Kent Cooke and Jim Irsay, will keep the franchises in their respective families.

HIGHLIGHTS

Hero of the week: Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre picked up where he left off the year before, going 20-of-27 for 247 yards and four touchdowns in the Packers' 34-3 rout of Tampa Bay. Favre, the 1995 NFL MVP, showed no ill-effects after spending six weeks in a rehabilitation center during the summer to combat an addiction to pain-killing drugs.

Goat of the week: Despite throwing for 260 yards, Detroit quarterback Scott Mitchell also threw four interceptions, and they proved critical in the Lions' 17-13 loss at Minnesota. The first interception was returned for a touchdown by cornerback Dwayne Washington (after a lateral from linebacker Ed Brady), and the fourth—at the Vikings' 15 with 20 seconds left—ended the Lions' last scoring opportunity.

Sub of the week: In the first game of his NFL career, Miami running back Karim Abdul-Jabbar rushed for 115 yards on 26 carries in leading the Dolphins to a 24-10 win over New England. Abdul-Jabbar, a third-round pick from UCLA, got the start after veteran running back Irving Spikes was sidelined by a sore hamstring.

Comeback of the week: Buffalo rallied from a 17-0 deficit to defeat the Giants, 23-20, in overtime. Jim Kelly completed a 20-yard pass to Quinn Early on third-and-18 to set up a 39-yard, game-tying field goal by Steve Christie with 7:14 left in regulation. Kelly then drove the Bills into position for another Christie field goal (from 34 yards out) after Chris Spielman recovered a fumble by Dave Brown.

Blowout of the week: The Broncos sacked quarterbacks Neil O'Donnell and Frank Reich a combined nine times (one shy of a team record) in a 31-6 rout of the Jets. The Broncos converted three second-quarter turnovers into 17 points in building a 31-0 halftime lead. Denver outgained New York, 244-33, in the first half.

Nail-biter of the week: Colts cornerback Eugene Daniel broke up two passes intended for Rob Moore in the end zone in the final minute to preserve Indy's 20-13 victory over Arizona. After scoring on a two-yard run with 61 seconds left to pull his team to cut the lead to seven points, Arizona quarterback Boomer Esiason completed four consecutive passes (after a successful onsides kick) to put the Cardinals at the Colts' 22 with 15 seconds left. But Daniel's heroics kept the Cards from scoring.

Hit of the week: By Baltimore rookie linebacker Ray Lewis, who stuffed Oakland running back Harvey Williams for no gain on a third-and-1 play in the fourth period. The Raiders led 14-13 at the time, but the hit seemed to inspire the Ravens, who scored the game's go-ahead touchdown on their next possession.

Oddity of the week: Tommy Vardell, whose nickname at Stanford was "Touchdown Tommy," scored a touchdown on his first carry as a San Francisco 49er in their 27-11 win over New Orleans. Vardell needed more than 100 carries to score the first touchdown of first NFL career, for the then-Cleveland Browns, in 1993.

Top rusher: Barry Sanders ran for 163 yards on 24 carries in Detroit's 17-13 loss at Minnesota.

Top passer: Kelly was 24-of-41 for 313 yards in Buffalo's 23-20 overtime win against the Giants.

Top receiver: Herman Moore caught 12 passes for 157 yards and one touchdown in the Lions' loss to Minnesota.

Notes: The largest crowd in Baltimore football history (64,124) turned out to see the city's newest NFL team, the Ravens, defeat Oakland, 19-14. The Ravens, who moved from Cleveland after the 1995 season in a highly controversial move, outscored the Raiders 12-0 in the second half to win the first game played at Memorial Stadium since the then-Baltimore Colts defeated the Oilers, 20-10, on December 18, 1983. . . . In the first game played at Ericsson Stadium in downtown Charlotte, the Carolina Panthers whipped Atlanta, 29-6. The Panthers sacked Falcons quarterback Jeff George seven times and scored the most points in their two-year history. . . . The NFL's other second-year team, the Jacksonville Jaguars, opened their season with a 24-9 win over visiting Pittsburgh. The Jaguars set club records for fewest points allowed, sacks (four) and yards allowed (187). They also held an opponent without a touchdown for the first time in franchise history. . . . In their first regular-season game since they announced plans to move to Nashville, Tenn., in 1998, the Houston Oilers drew only 27,725 fans to the Astrodome for their game against Kansas City. It was the Oilers' smallest home crowd since 1982. The Chiefs won their seventh consecutive season-opener, 20-19. . . . Tampa Bay's 34-3 loss to Green Bay was its worst ever in a season-opening game. Favre's four touchdown passes increased his touchdown-to-interception ratio in eight career starts against the Buccaneers to 20-3. . . . The Rams scored six times (two touchdowns, four field goals) in their 26-16 win over Cincinnati, but their offense didn't move the ball more than 33 yards on any scoring drive. . . . San Diego beat Seattle for the ninth time in 10 games and Philadelphia beat Washington for the eighth consecutive time. The Eagles' eight wins have come by a total of 30 points. . . . Although Miami beat New England, Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino did not throw a touchdown pass for only the 24th time in 187 regular-season games. Miami's record in such games is 9-15. . . . Dallas' 22-6 loss at Chicago was only its ninth in 37 season-opening games. The Cowboys, playing without suspended Pro Bowl receiver Michael Irvin, were held without a touchdown for the first time in 69 games—a 38-6 loss to Detroit in the 1991 season playoffs.

Quote of the week: Buffalo's white-haired Marv Levy, at 71 the league's oldest coach, talking to reporters after the Bills' comeback win over the Giants: "Fellas, I'm really 34 years old. I just look like this."

Hero of the week: Denver linebacker Bill Romanowski, a free-agent signee from Philadelphia, had eight tackles, two fumble recoveries and an interception in his second game as a Bronco, a 30-20 win at Seattle.

Goat of the week: Much-maligned Tampa Bay quarterback Trent Dilfer did little to quiet his critics in Week 2, going 14-of-34 for 176 yards, no touchdowns and two interceptions in the Bucs' 21-6 loss at Detroit. Dilfer had thrown one touchdown pass in his last 379 attempts.

Sub of the week: In the first start of his five-year NFL career, Minnesota quarterback Brad Johnson was superb, going 15-of-26 for 275 yards and two touchdowns in the Vikings' 23-17 win at Atlanta. Johnson, subbing for the injured Warren Moon, completed five of seven passes on a 13-play, 82-yard drive in the final minutes to set up an insurance field goal with 17 seconds left.

Comeback of the week: Trailing 20-19 midway through the fourth quarter, the Carolina Panthers drove 67 yards in 11 plays to defeat New Orleans, 22-20, on John Kasay's fifth field goal of the game, a 23-yarder with 2:09 left.

Blowout of the week: San Francisco held St. Louis to six first downs and 105 total yards in beating the Rams, 34-0. It was the 49ers' 12th consecutive win over the Rams and their first shutout in seven years. It was the fewest yards the 49ers allowed in a game since 1977. Three Rams quarterbacks combined to complete 11 of 27 passes for a net of 69 yards.

Nail-biter of the week: Buffalo beat New England, 17-10, as four Bills defenders—led by end Phil Hansen—gang-tackled running back David Meggett at the 2 as time expired. The Bills had taken the lead when Jim Kelly and Quinn Early hooked up for a 63-yard touchdown pass on a third-and-23 play with 5:21 left.

Hit of the week: By Colts strong safety David Tate, who stopped Kyle Brady short of the goal line after the Jets' tight end caught a pass inside the 5 and seemed certain to score. Instead, Brady fumbled and the Colts recovered.

Oddity of the week: For the second consecutive season, Chiefs cornerback James Hasty helped to defeat the Raiders at Arrowhead Stadium by scoring a touchdown. On September 17, 1995, he returned an interception 64 yards for an overtime touchdown to clinch a 23-17 victory. In Week 2, he returned a fumble 80 yards for a score in a 19-3 Kansas City win.

Top rusher: Rookie Eddie George carried 17 times for 143 yards and one touchdown in leading the Oilers to a 34-27 win over Jacksonville.

Top passer: Neil O'Donnell was 26-of-46 for 319 yards and one touchdown in the Jets' 21-7 loss to Indianapolis.

Top receiver: Ken Dilger caught seven passes for 156 yards and one touchdown in the Colts' win over the Jets.

Notes: Dilger's 156 yards broke John Mackey's 33-year-old record for most receiving yards in a game by a Colts tight end. . . . Kasay's five field-goal game was his second in two weeks. . . . San Francisco quarterback Steve Young had not thrown a touchdown pass in 18 quarters. . . . In the Cowboys' 27-0 win over the Giants, Troy Aikman threw three touchdown passes in a regular-season game for the first time since 1992. The Dallas quarterback also attained two career milestones: the 20,000-yard mark in passing yardage and 100 touchdown passes. . . . Eight of the Giants' 11 possessions against the Cowboys lasted three plays or less. . . . Heavy rain and lightning caused a 32-minute delay in the Colts-Jets game at Giants Stadium, believed to be the first delay ever in an NFL regular-season game. . . . The Cardinals have never beaten the Dolphins (0-7) in their history or won a home opener since moving to Arizona in 1988. . . . Vinny Testaverde is 0-7 with 11 interceptions in his career against the Steelers. . . . George had a 76-yard run against Jacksonville, the longest run from scrimmage by an Oilers player since Larry Moriarty went 80 yards against the Raiders in 1983. . . . The Raiders have lost eight consecutive regular-season games for the first time since Al Davis took over in 1963. . . . Washington did not allow a touchdown for the first time since 1993 in beating Chicago, 10-3. . . . Denver quarterback John Elway broke Tom Jackson's team record by playing in his 192nd game. . . . A Lambeau Field record crowd of 60,666 saw the Packers defeat the Eagles, 39-13, in the first Monday night game at Lambeau since 1986.

Quote of the week: Dilger, on breaking Mackey's record: "I don't know much about John Mackey, but he's in the Hall of Fame, so he can't be too bad."

HIGHLIGHTS

Hero of the week: Philadelphia quarterback Rodney Peete was 25-of-30 for 284 yards and one touchdown in leading the Eagles to a 24-17 victory over Detroit. He also ran for a touchdown and did not throw an interception.

Goat of the week: New Orleans quarterback Jim Everett threw three interceptions in the second half and fumbled a snap in the Saints' 30-15 loss to previously winless Cincinnati.

Sub of the week: Linebacker Sammie Burroughs, subbing for the injured Steven Grant, had a team-high eight tackles in the Colts' 25-24 win at Dallas. Burroughs, a free-agent rookie from Portland State, also jarred the ball loose and forced a fumble by Cowboys star Emmitt Smith.

Comeback of the week: In the 38th fourth-quarter comeback of his career, Denver's John Elway drove the Broncos 80 yards in 14 plays in the final minutes for the winning touchdown and a 27-23 win over Tampa Bay. Although Elway directed the drive, running back Terrell Davis was its star, carrying eight times for 39 yards and scoring the go-ahead touchdown on a 3-yard run with 3:32 left. Twelve of the Broncos' 14 plays were runs, and the drive took more than eight minutes to complete.

Blowout of the week: New England limited Arizona to 26 first-half yards and one first down in whipping the Cardinals, 31-0. Pats running back Curtis Martin had two touchdowns before the Cardinals—who were outgained by more than 200 yards in the game—got their initial first down. It was the Patriots' first shutout in three years.

Nail-biter of the week: The Colts' 25-24 victory at Texas Stadium was a stunner. Playing without seven injured starters, they erased a 21-3 second-quarter deficit to take their first lead of the game when Jim Harbaugh capped a nine-play, 78-yard drive by throwing an eight-yard touchdown pass to Ken Dilger with 2:42 left in the third quarter. After Chris Boniol regained the lead for Dallas with a 52-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, Cary Blanchard answered for Indianapolis by kicking a 43-yard field goal with 51 seconds left. A 57-yard field goal attempt by Boniol bounced off the crossbar as time expired.

Hit of the week: With the Raiders leading, 10-3, Oakland linebacker Rob Fredrickson blitzed Jacksonville quarterback Mark Brunell as he attempted to rally his team late in the game. Brunell, hit as he threw, fumbled the ball, and Jerry Ball lumbered 66 yards for an insurance touchdown with 2:15 left. The win snapped the Raiders' longest losing streak (eight games) in 33 years.

Oddity of the week: In Ray Rhodes' first 19 games as an NFL coach, the Eagles lost five games by a double-digit margin. In each case, they rebounded to win the following week.

Top rusher: Ricky Watters rushed 27 times for 153 yards and one touchdown in the Eagles' 24-17 win over Detroit.

Top passer: Neil O'Donnell was 25-of-44 passes for 325 yards and three touchdowns in the Jets' 36-27 loss at Miami.

Top receiver: Chris T. Jones caught a career-high nine passes in the Eagles' win over the Lions.

Notes: Green Bay was 3-0 for the first time since 1982 and had outscored its three opponents 115-26. The Packers did not trail in any game. . . . Elway joined Dan Marino and Fran Tarkenton as the only players in NFL history to have more than 45,000 yards in total offense. . . . Kansas City's Marcus Allen, at 36 the league's oldest starting running back, became the eighth NFL player to rush for more than 11,000 career yards. . . . The Bengals had two rushing touchdowns in the same game for the first time in two years. . . . Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe, 24, became the youngest player to throw for 11,000 yards. . . . Ten Washington players threw, carried or caught a ball for a first down in the Redskins' 31-10 win over the Giants. . . . Aaron Glenn's 100-yard interception return against Miami was the longest in Jets history. . . . San Diego's 42-10 loss at Green Bay was the Chargers' most lopsided since 1988. . . . Chicago's Erik Kramer, the only quarterback to take every snap in 1995, had to leave for one play in the second quarter of the Bears' 20-14 loss to Minnesota after taking a hard hit. It ended a string of 1,190 consecutive snaps. . . . Before Week 3, the Colts hadn't beat the Cowboys since January 17, 1971, a 16-13 win in Super Bowl V.

Quote of the week: Dallas coach Barry Switzer, on the stunning one-point loss to Indianapolis: "Sometimes you bite the bear and sometimes the bear bites you. Today, the bear bit us."

HIGHLIGHTS

Hero of the week: LeShon Johnson rushed for a team-record 214 yards and two touchdowns on 21 carries to lead Arizona to its first win of the season, 28-14 over New Orleans. Johnson had 25 yards in the first half and 189 in the second half, including touchdown runs of 56 and 70 yards.

Goat of the week: Rams quarterback Steve Walsh, already in a fight with rookie Tony Banks for his starting job, did nothing to aid his cause in Week 4. In a 17-10 loss to Washington, Walsh threw three interceptions, completed half his passes and was practically booed off the field by St. Louis fans.

Sub of the week: Subbing for the injured Kerry Collins, veteran NFL backup Steve Beuerlein was superb, going 22-of-31 for 290 yards in leading Carolina to a 23-7 win over San Francisco. Beuerlein was 17-of-20 in the first half alone as the Panthers scored on their first three possessions en route to building a 17-0 lead.

Comeback of the week: Trailing 21-17 with five minutes left, Minnesota scored 13 unanswered points in less than four minutes to defeat Green Bay, 30-21. Robert Smith's 37-yard touchdown run with 4:13 left put the Vikings ahead for good, and Scott Sisson kicked two field goals in the final 2:31 to increase the lead.

Blowout of the week: Although the margin of victory was only six points, San Diego's 40-34 win over Oakland was not that close. The Chargers scored three consecutive touchdowns in the first period and led, 40-21, before the Raiders scored two touchdowns in the final 1:29 to narrow the score. In perhaps his best performance in five seasons with the Chargers, quarterback Stan Humphries threw four touchdown passes without an interception.

Nail-biter of the week: New England beat Jacksonville, 28-25, on Adam Vinatieri's fifth field goal of the game, a 40-yarder at 2:36 of overtime. Vinatieri, a rookie free agent from South Dakota State, entered the game on shaky ground, having made only three of his first seven field goal attempts. The Jaguars, who forced overtime on Mike Hollis' 27-yard field goal with 6:34 left, nearly won the game outright on the last play of regulation when Mark Brunell hit Willie Jackson on a desperation 58-yard pass at the goal line as time expired.

Hit of the week: By Vikings defensive tackle John Randle, who sacked and forced a fumble by Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre in the final minutes to preserve Minnesota's nine-point win over the Packers. Derrick Alexander recovered for the Vikings.

Oddity of the week: Before Week 4, Johnson had just 4 yards rushing in the Cardinals' first three games of the season and 101 in his three-year (19 games) NFL career.

Top rusher: Johnson's 214 yards broke the Cardinals' single-game record of 203 yards set by John David Crow in 1960.

Top passer: Jacksonville's Brunell was 23-of-39 for 432 yards and three touchdowns in the Jaguars' overtime loss at New England.

Top receiver: Johnnie Morton caught seven passes for a career-high 174 yards and two touchdowns in Detroit's 35-16 win over Chicago.

Notes: Johnson's record-breaking performance—the NFL's only 200-yard rushing performance of 1996—was witnessed by 34,316 people, the Saints' smallest home crowd since 1980. Both teams entered the game with losing records. . . . Only 30,212 people showed up at Tampa Stadium for the Seattle-Tampa Bay game, the Buccaneers' smallest crowd since the end of the 1991 season. . . . Emmitt Smith rushed for 25 yards on 15 carries in the Cowboys' 10-7 loss at Buffalo, his lowest output ever in a game he started and finished. . . . Dallas' 1-3 start was its worst since 1990. No team has gone on to win the Super Bowl after a 1-3 start. . . . Chicago was 1-3 for the first time since 1983. . . . Kansas City was 4-0 for the first time ever. The Chiefs beat Denver, 17-14, despite Terrell Davis' 141 yards rushing and Shannon Sharpe's 131 yards receiving. . . . New England's 28-25 victory over Jacksonville was coach Bill Parcells' 100th regular-season victory. At 100-78-1, he became the 22nd NFL coach to reach that plateau. . . . Minnesota was 4-0 for the first time since 1975 despite trailing after three quarters in each of its first four games.

Quote of the week: Giants defensive end Mike Strahan, on his team's first victory of the season, 13-6 over the crosstown (and winless) Jets: "I think we're just happy to win a game. We would not have cared whether it was against Parsippany High School."

Hero of the week: San Diego linebacker Junior Seau played like a man possessed in the Chargers' 22-19 victory over Kansas City, the Chiefs' first loss of the season. The seven-year veteran had 12 tackles, a fourth-quarter sack and two interceptions, including one with 5:50 left that resulted in John Carney's game-winning, 33-yard field goal with 3:17 left.

Goat of the week: Seattle quarterback Rick Mirer would just as soon forget his performance against Green Bay. Under pressure most of the game, he was 10-of-30 for 156 yards, no touchdowns and four interceptions in the Seahawks' 31-10 loss. Mirer, who also lost a fumble, finished the day with a quarterback rating of 11.9.

Sub of the week: Subbing for the injured Erik Kramer, veteran quarterback Dave Krieg directed a turnover-free offense on five scoring drives in the Bears' 19-17 win over Oakland.

Comeback of the week: In a battle of bad teams, the Cardinals edged the Rams, 31-28, on Greg Davis' 24-yard field goal at 1:54 of overtime. Kent Graham threw two touchdown passes in the final seven minutes to rally Arizona from a 28-14 deficit, the third 14-point deficit the Cardinals overcame in the game. LeShon Johnson set up Davis' winning field goal by running 66 yards to the St. Louis 8 on the second play of overtime.

Blowout of the week: Detroit whipped Tampa Bay, 27-0, by forcing four turnovers and continually harrassing Bucs quarterback Trent Dilfer, who had an interception returned for a touchdown for the third time in four weeks (this time, Bennie Blades—98 yards—did the deed). The Lions held the Bucs to 74 yards in the second half.

Nail-biter of the week: San Diego's 22-19 win over Kansas City was not sealed until the Chargers' Chris Mims blocked a 47-yard field-goal attempt by Pete Stoyanovich with 28 seconds left.

Hit of the week: By Giants cornerback Jason Sehorn, who hit and forced a fumble by Minnesota quarterback Warren Moon early in the third quarter with the Vikings leading, 7-6. Chad Bratzke recovered near midfield, and the Giants drove 49 yards in 11 plays for the go-ahead touchdown.

Oddity of the week: The Giants improved their all-time record in games before a bye week (since 1990) to 7-1. Their regular-season record in the same span was 37-64.

Top rusher: Earnest Byner carried 24 times for 149 yards in Baltimore's 17-10 win over New Orleans.

Top passer: Kent Graham was 27-of-58 for 366 yards and four touchdowns in Arizona's 31-28 win over St. Louis.

Top receiver: Rob Moore caught nine passes from Graham for 143 yards and one touchdown.

Notes: The Rams had played a league-high 95 consecutive games without overtime before Week 5. . . . Denver running back Terrell Davis tied a team record with his fourth consecutive 100-yard game. . . . In the first regular-season meeting between the NFL's two 1995 expansion teams, Jacksonville beat Carolina, 24-14. Rookie end Tony Brackens had six tackles, two sacks, one pass deflection, two forced fumbles and two fumble recoveries for the Jaguars. . . . Kansas City had won 12 consecutive AFC Western Division games before losing at San Diego. . . . Jerome Bettis became the first Pittsburgh running back since Barry Foster in 1992 to rush for 100 yards in three consecutive games. The Steelers improved their record to 25-2 in games in which when a running back rushes for 100 yards in the Bill Cowher regime. . . . Despite scoring on four consecutive possessions, the Jets lost their ninth game in a row, 31-16 to Washington. . . . The Saints were off to an 0-5 start for the second consecutive year. . . . Jeff Wilkins kicked a team record-tying six field goals in San Francisco's 39-17 win over Atlanta. Ray Wersching kicked six field goals for the 49ers in a win over New Orleans in 1983.

Quote of the week: Steelers defensive end Brentson Buckner gave Oilers running back Eddie George, the 1995 Heisman Trophy winner from Ohio State, a less-than-warm NFL welcome while helping to hold George to 47 yards on 11 attempts: "You're not running against Iowa any more!"

Hero of the week: Green Bay wide receiver Antonio Freeman pierced Chicago for a pair of spectacular touchdown catches, one of which came on a Hail Mary to end the first half, in the Packers' 37-6 victory. Freeman, who finished with seven catches for 146 yards, went up in a tight group that included three players from each team to somehow make the 50-yard touchdown reception before halftime. In the second half, Freeman went right over Kevin Miniefield's back to claim a 35-yard touchdown reception.

Goat of the week: Carolina quarterback Kerry Collins, making his first start in three weeks because of a knee sprain, couldn't shake the rust in a 14-12 loss to Minnesota. He threw no touchdown passes and four interceptions, including one by Dewayne Washington at the Panthers' 36 with 3:08 left that sealed the Vikings' victory.

Sub of the week: Making his first start in place of the benched Rick Mirer, John Friesz led Seattle to a 22-15 upset victory in rainy Miami. Friesz was 18-of-32 for 299 yards and three long touchdown passes, including an 80-yarder to Brian Blades with 2:03 left that erased the Dolphins' 15-14 lead. Friesz also threw touchdown passes of 65 and 51 yards to Joey Galloway.

Comeback of the week: With the Broncos trailing 17-0 late in the first half, John Elway threw four touchdown passes and rallied Denver to a 28-17 victory over San Diego. Elway spurred the comeback by leading the Broncos on a five-play, 80-yard drive late in the first half that culminated with a 20-yard touchdown pass to Shannon Sharpe. Elway, who said he had been inspired by Junior Seau's pregame comment that the Broncos were a team of mostly "average players," threw two more touchdown passes to Sharpe and one to Ed McCaffrey in the second half.

Blowout of the week: Green Bay crushed Chicago, 37-6, in its most decisive victory ever at Soldier Field and one of the most lopsided outcomes in the history of the rivalry. The Packers were carried by Brett Favre's four touchdown passes and a ball-hawking defense that intercepted three passes, giving it 18 for the season.

Nail-biter of the week: Buffalo blew a 10-0 lead, then rallied to defeat Indianapolis, 16-13, in overtime on Steve Christie's 39-yard field goal. In addition to Christie's heroics and a ferocious defense that beat up Jim Harbaugh all day, the Bills received a boost from quarterback Todd Collins, who started in place of hamstring-troubled Jim Kelly. Collins moved the team 58 yards in 11 plays late in regulation to set up a 37-yard field goal by Christie with 15 seconds left in regulation. The victory gave the Bills a 5-0 record in overtime at Rich Stadium.

Hit of the week: With Denver ahead, 21-17, early in the fourth quarter, safety Steve Atwater separated San Diego receiver Charlie Jones from the ball on a fourth-down play from the Broncos' 38. Denver then went 62 yards in 12 plays for an insurance touchdown.

Oddity of the week: After Green Bay scored on Antonio Freeman's Hail Mary catch to end the first half, Chicago linebacker Bryan Cox raised his middle finger to on-field officials and threw his helmet. He then stood in the end zone, helmet in hands, during Chris Jacke's extra-point attempt. Jacke missed.

Top rusher: Rookie Eddie George rushed 26 times for 152 yards and a 45-yard touchdown in Houston's 30-27 overtime victory at Cincinnati.

Top passer: Elway was 32-of-41 for 323 yards and four touchdowns, with one interception, in Denver's 28-17 victory over San Diego.

Top receiver: Sharpe caught a career-high 13 passes (tying a club record) for 153 yards and three touchdowns in the Broncos' victory over the Chargers.

Notes: Buffalo's Thurman Thomas rushed for 68 yards and went over the 10,000-yard mark in his career. . . . San Diego's Darren Bennett boomed three 66-yard punts and added 59- and 56-yarders. All five of those punts were fielded in the air without bouncing. He finished with a 56.7 average on six punts. . . . The 49ers' 28-11 victory in St. Louis gave them a 13-game winning streak against the Rams, dating to 1990. The average score of those victories: 33-12. . . . Baltimore was penalized 13 times for 146 yards in its 46-38 loss to New England. . . . San Francisco tight end Ted Popson, who entered the game with two receptions for 20 yards, caught five passes for 44 yards and two touchdowns against St. Louis. . . . The Rams started the NFL's first all-rookie backfield since 1976 with Tony Banks at quarterback, Lawrence Phillips at tailback and Derrick Harris at fullback. . . . At 19-50, Cincinnati's Dave Shula reached 50 losses faster than any coach in NFL history. . . . Houston's Mel Gray had 263 return yards on five kickoff and three punt returns at Cincinnati. . . . With his 107th career rushing touchdown, Kansas City's Marcus Allen moved past Jim Brown and into second place behind Walter Payton. Allen also moved past Tony Dorsett and into second place on the career combined yardage list. . . . Pittsburgh's Jerome Bettis recorded his fourth straight 100-yard rushing game.

Quote of the week: Jets kicker Nick Lowery, on his injury-riddled team: "I feel like I should be like Scotty on the Starship Enterprise and make sure I have enough 'dilithium' crystals to put a shield around me, so at least I don't get injured, too."

Hero of the week: Linebacker Chad Brown contributed 4½ sacks, four tackles, seven assists, a forced fumble and an interception in Pittsburgh's 20-10 victory over Cincinnati. It was only the fifth start at outside linebacker for Brown, who was moved from the inside after Greg Lloyd's season-ending knee injury in the opener.

Goat of the week: Jim Kelly's nightmarish season continued with a dismal ending in a 21-7 loss to Miami at Rich Stadium. With Buffalo trailing, 14-7, late in the fourth quarter, Kelly hit Andre Reed for a 49-yard reception to Miami's 2. But Kelly was flagged for intentional grounding on the next play, and on fourth-and-10, his pass for Reed was intercepted by Terrell Buckley, who raced 91 yards for a touchdown with 47 seconds left. Kelly suffered three pickoffs in the game, giving him 11 interceptions and two touchdown passes for the season.

Sub of the week: After Robert Brooks went down with a season-ending knee injury, veteran receiver Don Beebe came off the bench to catch 11 passes for a career-high 220 yards in Green Bay's 23-20 overtime victory over San Francisco. Beebe's disputed 59-yard touchdown reception—replays indicated that Beebe had been touched after making a diving reception at the 49ers' 30 and should not have been able to get up and run to the end zone—in the third quarter started the Packers' comeback from a 17-6 halftime deficit.

Comeback of the week: Beebe wasn't the only player to rally Green Bay from a 17-6 halftime deficit. Brett Favre, who threw a team-record 61 passes and completed 28 for 395 yards, led the team to a game-tying 31-yard field goal by Jacke with eight seconds left. Then, in overtime, Jacke connected on a 53-yard field goal that would have been good from 60. It was Jacke's fifth field goal of the game, matching a career high.

Blowout of the week: Carolina dominated every facet of a 45-13 victory over St. Louis. The Panthers' running game, behind Anthony Johnson's club-record 126 yards, pummeled the Rams; quarterback Kerry Collins threw three touchdown passes, including two to tight end Wesley Walls; the defense held the Rams to 219 net yards; linebacker Kevin Greene returned a fumble 66 yards for a touchdown; and Michael Bates returned a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown. The 45 points easily surpassed the franchise's previous best of 29.

Nail-biter of the week: The 49ers had a chance to all but put the Packers away late in regulation when Marquez Pope intercepted a pass and returned it to the Packers' 13. But rather than go for a touchdown, the 49ers played it conservatively, settling for a 28-yard field goal by Jeff Wilkins and a 20-17 lead with 1:50 left. Then when Niners nickel back Steve Israel committed two penalties on the ensuing drive, the Packers were set up for Chris Jacke's heroics.

Hit of the week: Indianapolis' Tony Bennett hit Baltimore quarterback Vinny Testaverde just as he released the ball, helping cause an interception that Jeff Herrod returned 68 yards for a touchdown. The play, the longest return for a touchdown by a linebacker in Colts history, gave the team a 26-14 lead early in the fourth quarter and enough cushion to hold off the Ravens, 26-21.

Oddity of the week: When Houston quarterback Chris Chandler tried to run for a first down late in the first half in Houston's 23-13 victory over Atlanta, he stumbled out of bounds and into Falcons coach June Jones. Georgia Dome fans cheered sarcastically as Jones tumbled to the turf on his head and shoulder. Jones wasn't hurt, but Chandler limped off with a strained groin muscle and didn't return.

Top rusher: New Orleans' Ray Zellars, who had been suspended the previous week for arguing with coach Jim Mora, rushed for 174 yards in 20 carries and a touchdown in the Saints' 27-24 victory over Chicago.

Top passer: Oakland's Jeff Hostetler was 27-of-38 for 295 yards and four touchdowns, with no interceptions, in the Raiders' 37-21 victory over Detroit. Hostetler also rushed four times for 44 yards, tying Joe Aska for the team lead in the game.

Top receiver: Veteran Henry Ellard, who had caught only 11 passes in Washington's first five games, collected eight receptions for 152 yards and a touchdown in Washington's 27-22 victory over New England. Most important, Ellard caught three passes for 65 yards on Washington's final time-draining drive that ended in a field goal with 56 seconds left.

Notes: The Jets' Nick Lowery 20-yard field goal against Jacksonville was the 374th of his career, moving him past Jan Stenerud and into first place on the all-time list. . . . Dallas wide receiver Michael Irvin, back after serving a five-game suspension for drugs, caught five passes for 51 yards in a 17-3 victory over Arizona. . . . With 133½ career sacks, Bruce Smith passed Lawrence Taylor and into second place on the all-time list.

Quote of the week: Running back Thurman Thomas, on Buffalo's 21-7 loss to Miami: "I felt like they were an average football team. The way they played, they made us look like we're an average football team."

Hero of the week: Philadelphia wide receiver Irving Fryar—spurned by new Miami coach Jimmy Johnson, who chose not to re-sign the veteran—burned his old team by catching four touchdown passes in the Eagles' 35-28 victory. Johnson didn't want to discuss Fryar's performance, saying only, "He just got behind us." Fryar tied an Eagles record with his four touchdown receptions.

Goat of the week: Jacksonville's Mark Brunell, who threw only eight interceptions in the first seven games, suffered five pickoffs in the Jaguars' 17-14 loss to St. Louis. Brunell threw for 421 yards and moved the Jaguars almost at will through much of the game, but all five of his interceptions occurred deep in Rams territory.

Sub of the week: Tight end Ted Popson, starting for the injured Brent Jones, caught eight passes for 116 yards and two touchdowns in San Francisco's 28-21 victory over Cincinnati. After the 49ers fell behind, 21-0, Popson helped jump-start the comeback by catching touchdown passes of 17 and 39 yards.

Comeback of the week: A hobbled Steve Young was the catalyst for the 49ers' rally from a 21-0 deficit against Cincinnati. Young, whose groin injury rendered him so ineffective early in the game that he was replaced by Elvis Grbac, was forced to return after Grbac was injured just before halftime. Young threw two touchdown passes in the second half, including a game-tying 45-yard pass to Terrell Owens with 2:08 left, then limped into the end zone on a 15-yard run for the winning points with 1:08 left.

Blowout of the week: In a convincing 34-16 victory, Kansas City rung up Seattle for the 11th time in 12 games. The Chiefs battered the Seahawks for 27 first downs and 340 total yards while holding onto the ball for 35 minutes, 13 seconds.

Nail-biter of the week: Dallas was almost shot down by the run-and-shoot, but the Cowboys were rescued by a 60-yard touchdown catch by Kelvin Martin with 1:42 remaining to secure a 32-28 victory over winless Atlanta.

Hit of the week: With less than five minutes remaining and Houston leading, 16-13, Oilers defensive lineman Gary Walker stripped the ball from Pittsburgh quarterback Mike Tomczak and the Oilers recovered at the Steelers' 5. That set up a clinching 2-yard touchdown run by Eddie George in the Oilers' 23-13 victory.

Oddity of the week: How about these numbers? Jacksonville outgained St. Louis 538 yards to 204, had 36 first downs to the Rams' eight and controlled the ball 41 minutes, 34 seconds. As shockingly dominant as the second-year expansion team was, the Jaguars' ability to squander it all in a 17-14 loss was even more stunning.

Top rusher: Terrell Davis rushed 28 times for a club-record 194 yards and two touchdowns (71, 4) in Denver's 45-34 victory over Baltimore.

Top passer: Vinny Testaverde was 27-of-45 for 338 yards and four touchdowns, with one interception, in the Ravens' loss to Denver.

Top receiver: Jacksonville's Keenan McCardell beat St. Louis on slants all day, catching 16 passes for 232 yards, in the Jaguars' loss.

Notes: With his 92-yard interception return for a touchdown, St. Louis cornerback Anthony Parker tied Deion Sanders for the most touchdown returns (seven) by interception or fumble recovery. . . . With his 100th career victory, San Francisco's George Seifert replaced Vince Lombardi as the coach to reach that milestone the fastest. Lombardi needed 136 games; Seifert took 132. . . . Jerry Rice became the first receiver in history with 11 50 catch-seasons. . . . Steve Christie made a career- and team-record six field goals in the Bills' 25-22 victory over the Jets. . . . With 97 yards against the Jets, Thurman Thomas supplanted O.J. Simpson as the franchise's career rushing leader. Simpson had 10,183 yards from 1969 to 1977. . . . When John Elway drove the Broncos to a go-ahead touchdown against the Ravens, it marked his 39th fourth-quarter saving drive and his 32nd game-winning drive. . . . The Broncos had a club-record 548 yards, eclipsing the 543 set in 1976 against the Jets.

Quote of the week: New Orleans coach Jim Mora, after a 19-7 loss to Carolina (his last game before resigning): "I'm totally embarrassed and totally ashamed. Our coaches did a horrible job. Our players did a horrible job. The second half was an abomination. Terrible, terrible, terrible."

Hero of the week: San Francisco defensive end Chris Doleman intercepted a Steve McNair pass in the final minute and produced two sacks in a 10-9 victory over the Oilers. Doleman led a defensive charge that allowed the 49ers to win without quarterback Steve Young, who suffered a concussion on the third play of the game, and No. 2 quarterback Elvis Grbac, who was inactive with a shoulder injury. Doleman's interception occurred at the Oilers' 15 after Junior Bryant batted McNair's pass. The 49ers then ran out the clock. Earlier in the quarter, Doleman pushed through and sacked McNair for a 10-yard loss on third-and-2 at the 49ers' 30.

Goat of the week: San Diego quarterback Sean Salisbury, starting in place of injured Stan Humphries, suffered four interceptions in a 32-13 loss at Seattle. One of the interceptions was returned 79 yards for a touchdown by safety Darryl Williams, putting the Seahawks up 20-6 at halftime. It was the first start for Salisbury since 1994, when he was with the Vikings.

Sub of the week: Third-string quarterback Jeff Brohm, forced into action after Steve Young was injured early in the game, threw a 20-yard touchdown pass to rookie wide receiver Terrell Owens with 4:27 left to lift San Francisco to a 10-9 victory over Houston. Brohm was 19-of-30 for 176 yards, one touchdown and no interceptions. Backup quarterback Elvis Grbac was inactive with a shoulder injury.

Comeback of the week: Trailing 18-15 in the fourth quarter, New England rallied with a 10-yard touchdown run by Curtis Martin with 1:25 left, then scored again on a 46-yard interception return by Willie McGinest in a 28-25 victory over Buffalo. The Bills scored with 24 seconds left on a 48-yard touchdown reception by Andre Reed to finish the flurry of points in the final two minutes.

Blowout of the week: The Giants scored 23 points in a 4:54 span of the second quarter to hammer Detroit, 35-7, ending the Lions' 10-game home winning streak. Chris Calloway opened the second-period blitz by catching a 24-yard touchdown pass from Tyrone Wheatley on a halfback option. After a field goal, the Giants scored on a 32-yard interception return by Maurice Douglass and a 23-yard touchdown reception by Thomas Lewis. Five Giants intercepted passes.

Nail-biter of the week: For the second consecutive week, winless Atlanta came up a little short against one of the league's best teams. After falling to Dallas in the final two minutes the previous week, the Falcons lost to Pittsburgh, 20-17. The Steelers broke 17-17 tie on Norm Johnson's 20-yard field goal as time expired. That capped a 13-play, 66-yard, 5:55 drive in which Jerome Bettis carried seven times for 32 yards.

Hit of the week: Middle linebacker Bryan Cox forced a fumble from Brad Johnson and recovered it with 1:47 left, preserving Chicago's 15-13 Monday night victory over Minnesota. After Vikings defensive tackle Jason Fisk intercepted a pass near midfield, the Vikings were in position to drive for a game-winning field goal. But Cox sacked and stripped Johnson and recovered the fumble.

Oddity of the week: In a baseball-like move, Detroit coach Wayne Fontes pulled quarterback Scott Mitchell during a second-quarter series against the Giants. Mitchell had thrown three interceptions when he came back on the field with five minutes left in the second quarter. But after Mitchell threw an incomplete pass, Fontes sent in Don Majkowski to replace him. When Mitchell returned to the sideline, he was visibly frustrated and threw his helmet.

Top rusher: Adrian Murrell rushed 31 times for 199 yards and a touchdown to lead the Jets to their first victory of the season, a 31-21 win over Arizona.

Top passer: Dallas' Troy Aikman was 33-of-41 for 363 yards and three touchdowns (with no interceptions) in a 29-10 victory over his former coach, Jimmy Johnson, and the Dolphins.

Top receiver: Wide receiver Michael Irvin caught 12 passes for 186 yards and a 2-yard touchdown in the Cowboys' victory at Miami.

Notes: Denver's John Elway ran for 62 yards in a 34-7 victory over Kansas City, giving him 3,001 yards rushing in his career. He and Fran Tarkenton are the only two quarterbacks to accumulate 3,000 yards rushing and 40,000 yards passing. . . . The Broncos' 27-point victory margin over the Chiefs was Denver's biggest ever against Kansas City. . . . For the first time, the Bills lost a game in which Thurman Thomas gained 100 yards rushing and Andre Reed had 100 yards receiving. With 119 yards, Thomas moved past Ottis Anderson into 10th place on the career rushing list. . . . When the Bills completed a 48-yard desperation touchdown pass to Reed in the final minute of a loss to New England, it marked the third time this season that the Patriots had allowed successful Hail Marys. . . . Washington running back Terry Allen scored three touchdowns in his second consecutive game. The last back to accomplish that was the Giants' Joe Morris in 1985. . . . In Green Bay's 13-7 victory over Tampa Bay, Brett Favre was held without a touchdown pass for the first time in 17 games. . . . Al Del Greco's 56-yard field goal for the Oilers was a franchise and personal record, breaking the 55-yard record set by George Blanda in 1961. . . . The Bears scored their first rushing touchdown of the season. . . . The Falcons opened the season with nine losses for the first time since their first season (1966). The nine consecutive losses also tied the club record matched in 1984. . . . Irving Fryar became the 15th player in history to record 600 receptions.

Quote of the week: Kansas City safety Brian Washington, after the Chiefs' 34-7 loss to Denver: "It's not something we can't come back from, but it's definitely devastating. After the Pittsburgh game (a 17-7 loss three weeks before), we said we had to go back to basics. Hell, I don't know what to go back to now."

Hero of the week: San Francisco wide receiver Jerry Rice caught a 36-yard touchdown pass, set up another score with the 1,000th reception of his career and recovered an onside kick late in the game, helping seal the 49ers' 24-17 victory over New Orleans. Rice became the first player in NFL history to catch 1,000 passes.

Goat of the week: Indianapolis quarterback Jim Harbaugh, who had only five passes intercepted in 1995, was picked off four times as the Colts fell to San Diego, 26-19. Harbaugh, who was intercepted on four of the Colts' first five possessions, also was sacked six times and fumbled once. He was only 18-of-44.

Sub of the week: Quarterback Danny Kanell, who never had taken a snap in an NFL game other than to kneel down, came on in relief for an injured Dave Brown and helped the New York Giants beat NFC East division rival Arizona, 16-8. Kanell, who came into the game in the first quarter when Brown went to the sideline with a bruised back and back spasms, was 14-of-27 for 128 yards and did not turn the ball over despite being blitzed frequently. His 24-yard scoring pass to Thomas Lewis in the third quarter put the Giants comfortably ahead, 13-0.

Comeback of the week: Visiting Cincinnatti rallied from an 18-point halftime deficit and beat Baltimore, 24-21 in dramatic fashion when Doug Pelfrey kicked a 34-yard field goal as time expired. The Bengals, who trailed, 21-3, at halftime, had drives of 88, 77, 45 and 56 yards in the second half. Quarterback Jeff Blake (22-of-39 for 255 yards and one touchdown) led Cincinnati from its 28 to the Ravens' 16 in six plays, setting up Pelfrey's game-winning kick.

Blowout of the week: Jerome Bettis was a one-man steamroller as Pittsburgh flattened St. Louis, 42-6. Bettis gained a huge measure of revenge on his former team as he rushed 19 times for 129 yards and two touchdowns. The Steelers outrushed the Rams, 248 yards to 64, and rookie Lawrence Phillips, drafted to replace Bettis in the St. Louis lineup, rushed for only 6 yards.

Nail-biter of the week: Just when Dallas appeared to be moving in for the game-winning touchdown or, at the least, getting in position for a tying field goal, middle linebacker James Willis saved the day for Philadelphia. With time running out in regulation, Willis intercepted Troy Aikman's pass four yards deep in the end zone, ran it out to the 10 and lateralled to Troy Vincent, who went the final 90 yards for a touchdown that gave the Eagles a 31-21 triumph over their NFC East rivals. The victory vaulted Philadelphia into a first-place tie with Washington.

Hit of the week: With Tampa Bay leading Chicago, 10-6, in the third quarter, Buccaneers running back Errict Rhett was hit by linebacker Joe Cain and fumbled at Chicago's 47. Players from both teams stood around momentarily until Bears linebacker Vinson Smith, realizing the whistle hadn't blown, picked up the ball and returned it 34 yards to Tampa Bay's 19. That led to Raymont Harris' game-winning, 1-yard touchdown run as the Bears won 13-10.

Oddity of the week: Quarterbacks Dave Brown of the Giants and Kent Graham of the Cardinals were supposed to do battle in a showdown of former teammates, but both left the game with injuries in the first quarter. Brown suffered a bruised back and back spasms and Graham suffered a knee injury. They ended up in the Giants' training room, where they watched the rest of the game on television.

Top rusher: Barry Sanders gained 152 yards on 20 carries, including an 18-yard run during which he eluded four tacklers, in Detroit's 28-18 loss to Green Bay.

Top passer: Drew Bledsoe was 30-of-41 for 419 yards and three touchdowns in directing New England to a 42-23 win over Miami.

Top receiver: Tight end Ben Coates caught five passes for 135 yards and two touchdowns in the Patriots' victory.

Notes: The screen pass was a particularly effective weapon for New England. Coates scored an 84-yard touchdown, running the last 80 yards, and running back Curtis Martin turned another screen pass into a 41-yard gain. . . . The milestones continued to pile up for Kansas City running back Marcus Allen. In the Chiefs' 21-6 win over Minnesota, Allen rushed for his 110th career touchdown, tying Walter Payton's NFL record; caught his 566th pass, matching Roger Craig's record for a running back; and played in his 199th game, equaling Mosi Tatupu's mark for backs. . . . Pittsburgh's five rushing touchdowns matched the team record in one game. . . . Green Bay improved to 8-1 for the first time since 1963. . . . Packers quarterback Brett Favre threw four touchdown passes, giving him 25 for the season. . . . Atlanta became the last team to win this season when it upset Carolina, 20-19. The Falcons thus avoided tying the worst start in franchise history—0-9 by the 1966 expansion team. . . . Washington's winning streak was stopped at seven games as the Redskins were routed in Buffalo, 38-13. . . . Quarterback John Elway ran for a career-high 70 yards in Denver's victory over Oakland. . . . The Raiders lost a Monday night game at home for the first time. They had been 8-0 in Oakland and 4-0 in Los Angeles. . . . Buffalo's Jim Kelly became the 11th quarterback in NFL history to surpass 34,000 passing yards. . . . Philadelphia kicker Gary Anderson became the fourth player to score 1,500 points. . . . Minnesota scored 14 or fewer points for the fourth consecutive game.

Quote of the week: Marcus Allen, after the Chiefs rushed for a season-high 202 yards in the victory over Minnesota: "The big picture is to wear a team down. That's what the running game is all about. Passing does not destroy a team's will. You destroy a team's will by running the ball."

Hero of the week: Mark Brunell led Jacksonville to two touchdowns in the final 3:50 as the Jaguars rallied from a 17-point deficit and beat Baltimore, 30-27. Brunell was 24-of-37 for 354 yards, led the Jaguars with 58 yards rushing and scored the game-winning touchdown on a 1-yard run with 41 seconds left.

Goat of the week: Pittsburgh's Norm Johnson was supposed to squib his kickoff with five seconds left in the first half after the Steelers had taken a 17-10 lead over Cincinnati. Instead, he kicked it deep and David Dunn returned it 90 yards for a touchdown that propelled the Bengals to a 34-24 triumph. It was the third consecutive victory for Cincinnati since Bruce Coslet replaced David Shula as coach.

Sub of the week: San Diego wide receiver Andre Coleman, who had lost his starting job to Charlie Jones one week earlier, came into the game after Jones suffered bruised ribs and caught a 46-yard touchdown pass on a desperation throw by Stan Humphries on the final play of the first half. The score gave the Chargers a 17-14 lead en route to a 27-21 win over Detroit.

Comeback of the week: New England climbed out of a hole at Giants Stadium, where it spotted the Jets a 21-0 lead only to roar back for a 31-27 victory. The Patriots rang up 342 offensive yards in the final three quarters. The victory was their fourth in a row over an AFC East rival.

Blowout of the week: One week after getting pounded, 42-6, by Pittsburgh, St. Louis turned around and mauled Atlanta, 59-16. The Rams took a 28-0 lead just three minutes into the second quarter. It was the most points by a Rams team since December 1976 and the most points by any NFL team since Cincinnati beat Houston, 61-7, in December 1989.

Nail-biter of the week: Chicago had first-and-goal at Denver's 1 but failed to score despite getting four cracks in the final 40 seconds, and the Broncos held on for a 17-12 decision. Bears running back Raymont Harris was dropped for losses of 1 and 2 yards on the first two plays; defensive lineman Jim Flanigan, lined up at tight end, dropped a pass in the end zone on third down; and quarterback Dave Krieg couldn't connect with Curtis Conway on a fourth-down pass in the end zone.

Hit of the week: Carolina defensive lineman Greg Kragen punched the ball from the arms of Giants running back Rodney Hampton and recovered the fumble at New York's 14. Four plays later, John Kasay's 28-yard field goal snapped a 17-17 tie and the Panthers went on to win, 27-17.

Oddity of the week: Tampa Bay is only 29-72 in regulation games in the '90s but 5-0 in overtime games after Michael Husted's 23-yard field goal with 3:04 left in OT lifted the Buccaneers to a 20-17 verdict over the Raiders.

Top rusher: Adrian Murrell rushed 31 times for 128 yards and two touchdowns for the Jets, but it wasn't enough to prevent a 31-27 loss to Indianapolis.

Top passer: Boomer Esiason, making his first start since being benched in Week 4, was 35-of-59 for 522 yards and three touchowns, directing the Cardinals to a 37-34 overtime victory in Washington. Esiason, 35, passed for 351 yards in the fourth quarter and overtime combined.

Top receiver: Minnesota's Cris Carter had seven receptions for 142 yards. Unfortunately, his defensive teammates couldn't hold up their end, surrendering 452 yards to Seattle in a 42-23 loss.

Notes: Not even the Washington team that lost, 73-0, to Chicago in the 1940 NFL championship game gave up as many offensive yards as the Redskins surrendered to Arizona (615). . . . Esiason's passing performance was the third-most prolific in NFL history, surpassed only by Norm Van Brocklin's 554 yards for the Rams against the New York Yanks in 1951 and Warren Moon's 527 yards for Houston against Kansas City in 1990. . . . The Vikings were held to 15 rushing yards in 12 carries and suffered their fourth consecutive loss, the first time that has happened in Dennis Green's five seasons as coach. . . . Carl Pickens' 12 receptions in Cincinnati's victory over Pittsburgh tied a team single-game record. . . . Dan Marino reached two more passing milestones—4,000 completions and 50,000 yards—in Miami's 37-13 win over Indianapolis. . . . Chicago's Dave Krieg was sacked only once, but it was enough to tie Fran Tarkenton's

NFL record for most times sacked (483).

Quote of the week: Patriots tight end Keith Byars, after New England's come-from-behind victory over the Jets: "We weren't going to panic. If you panic now, in November, you won't get a chance to panic in January, when they hand out the awards."

Hero of the week: Making his third start of the season in place of Steve Young, San Francisco quarterback Elvis Grbac was 26-of-31 for 268 yards and one touchdown and ran for another in helping the 49ers beat the Ravens, 38-20. His 84 percent completion rate was the fourth best in team history. Grbac's performance came one week after his costly interception in a 20-17 loss to Dallas led San Francisco mayor Willie Brown to call Grbac "an embarrassment to mankind."

Goat of the week: Houston's John Henry Mills, a Pro Bowl special teams alternate the last two seasons, made two costly mistakes in the Oilers' 23-20 loss to Miami. First, Mills missed blocking Kirby Dar Dar, who blocked Reggie Roby's punt, setting up a Dolphins touchdown. Later, Mills failed to see Larry Izzo carrying the ball when Miami faked a punt on fourth-and-9. Izzo gained 26 yards on the play.

Sub of the week: In another attempt to replace injured Robert Smith, Minnesota started peripatetic Leroy Hoard at running back against Oakland. Hoard, playing for his third team this season, sparked a Vikings offense that came into the game ranked 28th in the league in rushing. Hoard carried 20 times for 108 yards and the Vikings rushed for 182 yards overall as they defeated the Raiders, 16-13, in overtime.

Comeback of the week: Tampa Bay spotted San Diego a 14-0 lead, then held the Chargers to only a field goal in the final 49 minutes and 12 seconds as the Buccaneers rallied for a 25-17 victory. Trent Dilfer was 30-of-40 for 327 yards—his completions, yards and percentage (75.0) were career bests—as Tampa Bay won back-to-back games for the first time under coach Tony Dungy.

Blowout of the week: Denver took a 24-0 halftime lead en route to a 34-8 trouncing of New England. The victory improved the Broncos' record to an NFL-best 10-1. Quarterback John Elway, who has never lost to the Patriots in nine games, was 14-of-23 for 175 yards before giving way to backup Bill Musgrave in the fourth quarter. The Patriots rushed a franchise-low nine times for 17 yards.

Nail-biter of the week: Washington, last in defense in the NFL, forced Philadelphia quarterback Ty Detmer to throw four consecutive incompletions from the Redskins' 20 in the final 24 seconds and held on for a 26-21 win. The victory moved Washington into first place in the NFC East.

Hit of the week: A safety blitz by Carnell Lake turned out to be a pivotal play in Pittsburgh's 28-3 victory over Jacksonville. Trailing 14-3, Jacksonville started the second half by driving to the Steelers' 7 as Mark Brunell completed five consecutive passes. But the Jaguars failed to pick up Lake, who forced a Brunell fumble and returned it 85 yards for a touchdown. It was the fifth touchdown of the season by the Steelers' defense.

Oddity of the week: Seattle cornerback Selwyn Jones lost both shoes chasing down Detroit running back Barry Sanders during the third quarter of the Lions' 17-16 victory. Eventually, "Shoeless Selwyn" helped push Sanders out of bounds at the 6 after a 40-yard gain.

Top rusher: Terrell Davis carried 32 times for 154 yards and two touchdowns in Denver's victory over New England. Davis also caught four passes for 56 yards. His 210 total yards were eight less than the Patriots' team total.

Top passer: Frank Reich was 20-of-42 for a career-best 352 yards and three touchdowns for the Jets. But he also was intercepted four times as Indianapolis won 34-29.

Top receiver: Jeff Graham of the Jets caught nine passes for 189 yards and three touchdowns.

Notes: Jacksonville's road record fell to 0-6 with the loss to Pittsburgh. During the game, the Jaguars faced long shot situations of third-and-32, third-and-34 and third-and-39. . . . Making his first start since the Super Bowl, Steelers wide receiver Yancy Thigpen caught four passes for 79 yards and one touchdown. He missed the first half of the season with injuries. . . . The Raiders lost by a field goal in overtime for the second week in a row. Six of their seven losses have been by a combined 19 points. . . . Miami scored a touchdown following a blocked punt for the fifth time this season. . . .

New Orleans' Ray Zellars rushed four times for minus-10 yards and also lost a fumble. . . . Atlanta's Morten Andersen—who equaled his NFL record by kicking three field goals of 50 or more yards in a game against New Orleans, his old team, last season—missed three attempts of 50 or more yards in the Falcons' 17-15 victory over the Saints. . . . San Francisco's win over Baltimore gave coach George Seifert 103 victories—one more than former 49ers coach Bill Walsh. . . . Washington's victory snapped a string of eight consecutive losses to Philadelphia. . . . Houston guard Bruce Matthews played in his club-record 211th game. . . . Cincinnati was penalized on four of the first five snaps in a 31-17 loss to Buffalo. . . . Arizona scored a touchdown in the first quarter for the first time in 19 games. . . . Chris Boniol tied an NFL record by kicking seven field goals in Dallas' 21-6 victory over Green Bay. It was the Cowboys' eighth consecutive victory over the Packers. . . . Tampa Bay won on the West Coast for only the second time in 21 games.

Quote of the week: Denver tight end Shannon Sharpe, after the Broncos' victory over New England in Foxboro: "We are the bullies. Even in someone else's backyard, we come in and beat them up."

Hero of the week: Buffalo's Steve Tasker, a special teams player nonpareil in his previous 11 years who is playing his first full season as a wide receiver, caught six passes for 160 yards and two touchdowns in helping the Bills to a 35-10 rout of the Jets. Tasker, whose sliding catch in the end zone just before halftime gave Buffalo a 21-3 lead, eventually had to leave the game when he suffered a sprained knee on a reverse.

Goat of the week: Following a safety that gave St. Louis a 9-0 lead late in the first half, Rams return man Herman O'Berry watched the ensuing free kick hit the turf and allowed Green Bay's Mike Prior to recover at St. Louis' 37. That eventually led to a 37-yard Chris Jacke field goal on the final play of the half that started the Packers on the way to a 24-9 victory.

Sub of the week: Carolina's Steve Beuerlein, playing in place of the injured Kerry Collins, threw touchdown passes of 30 and 12 yards to Willie Green and a 40-yarder to Wesley Walls as the Panthers routed Houston, 31-6. Beuerlein was 11-of-18 for 165 yards as the Panthers won their third game in a row and stayed in position for a playoff berth.

Comeback of the week: Jacksonville rallied from a 15-point deficit with 13 minutes left in regulation and defeated Baltimore, 28-25, on Mike Hollis' 34-yard field goal with 5:57 left in overtime. Mark Brunell threw fourth-quarter touchdown passes to Pete Mitchell and Willie Jackson—the last one coming with 1:24 left in regulation—then ran for the two-point conversion that tied the game. It was the Jaguars' first road victory since October 1995.

Blowout of the week: San Diego played a near-perfect game as it decisively carved up Kansas City, 28-14. The Chargers allowed no sacks, had no turnovers and committed only two penalties during a game in which they rolled up a 28-0 lead midway through the third quarter. Leonard Russell rushed for two touchdowns and Tony Martin had a pair of touchdowns among his five receptions for 148 yards.

Nail-biter of the week: Arizona survived a wild finish against Philadelphia—the teams combined for 37 points in the fourth quarter—and won, 36-30, when Boomer Esiason threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to Marcus McDowell with 14 seconds left. With the Cardinals out of timeouts, Esiason completed five passes in the game's final minute. Larry Centers' 2-yard scoring reception gave the Cardinals a 29-20 lead with 2:45 left. The Eagles recaptured the lead, 30-29, on Derrick Witherspoon's 95-yard kickoff return and Gary Anderson's 32-yard field goal before Esiason's last-minute heroics.

Hit of the week: New York Giants linebacker Corey Widmer slammed into Dallas wide receiver Michael Irving after a short reception, forcing a fumble that Tito Wooten scooped up and returned 54 yards for a touchdown just before halftime. That gave the Giants a 13-3 lead, and they went on to beat the listless Cowboys, 20-6.

Oddity of the week: Assistants from both the Jaguars and Ravens, making their way from the locker rooms to the press box after halftime, got stuck in an elevator and didn't get to their seats until midway through the third quarter.

Top rusher: One week after rushing just seven times in a 34-8 loss to Denver, New England's Curtis Martin had a season-high 35 carries and gained 141 yards in sparking the Patriots to a 27-13 win over Indianapolis. Martin carried on each of the Patriots' first six plays from scrimmage and on 18 of their first 22 snaps.

Top passer: Esiason was 24-of-43 for 367 yards in the Cardinals' wild win over Philadelphia. He was 13-of-16 for 180 yards in the fourth quarter.

Top receiver: Cincinnati's Carl Pickens caught 11 passes for 176 yards, including touchdown receptions of 61, 7 and 14 yards, as the Bengals outlasted Atlanta, 41-31.

Notes: Detroit's Barry Sanders, who rushed 21 times for 107 yards in a 31-14 loss to Chicago, became the first NFL back to gain 1,000 yards in eight consecutive seasons. He also moved past O.J. Simpson and into eighth place on the career rushing list.... Dave Krieg's three touchdown passes for Chicago gave him 255 for his career, tying him with Sonny Jurgensen for fifth place on the career list. . . . Indianapolis kicker Cary Blanchard set a team record by converting his 13th consecutive field-goal attempt. . . . Jacksonville's victory over Baltimore gave it a 4-0 record over the Ravens (nee: Browns) in two seasons. The Jaguars are just 5-19 against the rest of the NFL. . . . For the second game in a row, kicker Chris Boniol accounted for all of Dallas's points. He has hit on his last 21 field-goal attempts. . . . After gaining just 18 yards on 11 carries, Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith was benched for the first time in his NFL career. . . . With 19 carries for 103 yards, Adrian Murrell became the first Jets running back since Freeman McNeil in 1985 to rush for 1,000 yards in a season. . . . Brett Favre's two touchdown passes in Green Bay's victory over St. Louis gave him 30 in a season for the third time in his career. Miami's Dan Marino is the only other NFL quarterback to have accomplished that feat. . . . San Francisco quarterback Steve Young was 33-of-41, including 20 in a row, during the 49ers' 19-16 overtime triumph in Washington. . . . The Jets have been alone or tied for last place in the AFC East for 32 consecutive weeks.

Quote: Tampa Bay defensive end Chidi Ahanotu, after a 13-7 victory over New Orleans, the seventh consecutive game the Buccaneers had held their opponent to 17 points or less and the sixth game in a row in which the opponent gained fewer than 300 yards: "In past years, there would be wide eyes in the huddle—wide eyes and nervous. You'd wonder what was going to happen. Now, no eyes get wide. They close and get slanted because we're going for the kill. Nothing fazes this defense."

Hero of the week: Green Bay's Desmond Howard broke open a 7-7 game against Chicago with a 75-yard punt return for a touchdown in the third quarter. Howard—aided by excellent blocks—scampered untouched, holding the football up in his right hand at Chicago's 40 after punter Todd Sauerbrun slipped. The Packers added two fourth-quarter touchdowns for a 28-17 victory.

Goat of the week: Miami quarterback Dan Marino turned in a terrible performance against the Raiders, fumbling once and throwing three interceptions. Marino managed a fourth-quarter touchdown pass to Randal Hill, but it wasn't enough as Oakland prevailed, 17-7.

Sub of the week: Kansas City quarterback Rich Gannon, in his first start of the season, led the Chiefs to a 28-24 Thanksgiving Day win over the Lions. Gannon, who started for the benched Steve Bono, was 15-of-18, threw two touchdown passes and rushed seven times for 45 yards.

Comeback of the week: Against Buffalo, Colts kicker Cary Blanchard connected on a 25-yard field goal to tie the game, 10-10, on the second play of the fourth quarter. Neither team scored again in regulation. On the initial drive of overtime, the Bills stalled and punted. The Colts started at their 16, and quarterback Paul Justin—who started for the injured Jim Harbaugh—completed four passes for 59 yards, including a 28-yard pass to receiver Aaron Bailey, to move the Colts to Buffalo's 33. Four plays later, Blanchard booted a 49-yarder for a 13-10 victory.

Blowout of the week: The Patriots crushed San Diego, 45-7, at Jack Murphy Stadium. Quarterback Drew Bledsoe connected on three first-half touchdown passes to three different receivers (Terry Glenn, Keith Byars and Sam Gash) as New England rolled to a 31-7 halftime lead. Two plays into the second half, cornerback Otis Smith picked off a Stan Humphries' pass, setting up Bledsoe's fourth touchdown pass—an 11-yarder to former Chargers receiver Shawn Jefferson—for a 38-7 lead.

Nail-biter of the week: Jacksonville jumped out to a 10-0 lead over the Bengals before Cincinnati quarterback Jeff Blake connected with receiver Carl Pickens for two touchdowns, helping the Bengals to a 17-16 lead at halftime. Both teams hit field goals in the third quarter. On a third-and-10 play late in the quarter, Jaguars quarterback Mark Brunell rolled out and tossed a 48-yard touchdown pass to receiver Keenan McCardell and added a two-point conversion to receiver Willie Jackson for a 27-20 lead. Jaguars kicker Mike Hollis made a 20-yard field goal with about two minutes left in the fourth quarter, extending the lead to 30-20. Blake hit Pickens with a 25-yard touchdown strike with 15 seconds left, but it wasn't enough as the Jaguars held on, 30-27.

Hit of the week: By Patriots defensive end Mike Jones, who knocked San Diego quarterback Stan Humphries out of the game with a concussion. New England led 38-7 in the third quarter when Jones knocked Humphries out of the game. Jones was called for a roughing-the-passer penalty on the play.

Oddity of the week: In the first quarter against Pittsburgh, Ravens quarterback Vinny Testaverde threw a 1-yard touchdown pass to rookie offensive lineman Jonathan Ogden. It was the third time this season Baltimore scored on the tackle-eligible play.

Top rusher: Emmitt Smith rushed 29 times for 155 yards and three touchdowns in Dallas' 21-10 victory over Washington on Thanksgiving.

Top passer: Jacksonville's Brunell was 21-of-34 for 356 yards and one touchdown in the Jaguars' victory over Cincinnati.

Top receiver: Derrick Alexander caught seven passes for 198 yards and a touchdown in Baltimore's 31-17 victory over the Steelers.

Notes: Kansas City's Marcus Allen scored two touchdowns to become the NFL's career leader in rushing touchdowns with 112, passing Walter Payton's mark of 110. . . . At the 70,852-seat Superdome, the Saints played the Rams before 26,310 fans—the smallest home crowd in the team's history. . . . John Elway became the ninth quarterback in NFL history to pass for 250 touchdowns and surpassed 3,000 passing yards in a season for the 11th time in his career, tying Marino. . . . Running back Terry Kirby gained 105 yards to become the first 49er to rush for more than 100 yards in a game since Ricky Watters in 1994. . . . San Diego's Tony Martin caught his 14th touchdown pass of the season, tying Lance Alworth's club record set in 1965. . . . Emmitt Smith became the 12th player in history to rush for 10,000 yards. . . . Minnesota running back Leroy Hoard scored his first touchdown since a January 1, 1995, playoff game. . . . Against the Eagles, the Giants were 1-of-10 on third-down conversions. . . . Jets quarterback Neil O'Donnell, who was set to return after missing six games with a shoulder injury, suffered a pulled calf muscle when he slipped on the wet turf during warmups and did not play against Houston. . . . Jacksonville's Hollis set a team single-game record with five field goals against the Bengals. . . . Buffalo quarterback Todd Collins connected with Quinn Early for a 95-yard touchdown pass against Indianapolis. . . . The Chargers' 45-7 loss to the Patriots was the club's worst defeat since November 27, 1988, when the 49ers beat them, 48-10. . . . With its win over Seattle, Denver clinched home-field advantage throughout the AFC playoffs.

Quote of the week: Jets defensive end Hugh Douglas, after the team's 35-10 loss to the Oilers, on O'Donnell's freak pregame injury and the team's misfortunes: "It kind of makes you want to cry, man, because nothing ever goes your way. What did I do to deserve this? What's going on? That's how you feel. When he went down, I thought, 'That's crazy.' It's so rough. We need to put this on Unsolved Mysteries or something."

Heroes of the week: Quarterback Kerry Collins and cornerback Eric Davis led the Panthers to a big win over the 49ers, 30-24. Collins played one of his best games as a pro, going 22-of-37 for 327 yards and three touchdowns—with no interceptions. Davis, a former 49er, made a one-handed interception of a Steve Young pass to stop a potential game-winning drive with 4:35 left.

Goat of the week: Chargers quarterback Sean Salisbury, subbing for the injured Stan Humphries, struggled mightily against Pittsburgh, going 10-of-29 for 125 yards and an interception in a 16-3 loss. He also fumbled to stop a Chargers drive and was sacked on consecutive plays to end San Diego's last drive of the game.

Sub of the week: Quarterback Kerwin Bell, who had never thrown an NFL pass, stepped in for the injured Paul Justin in the third quarter and led the Colts on a scoring drive against Philadelphia. Starting at his 10, Bell moved the team down the field—culminating the drive in a 20-yard touchdown pass to receiver Marvin Harrison for a 30-3 lead. For the game, Bell was 5-of-5 for 75 yards.

Comeback of the week: The Cowboys' defense, which lost defensive end Leon Lett on December 3 to a one-year suspension for violating the NFL's drug policy, was further depleted by Deion Sanders' absence for most of the first half because of back spasms, as the Cardinals took a 6-0 lead into halftime. Late in the third quarter, quarterback Troy Aikman hit Michael Irvin with a sideline pass, which the receiver broke for a 50-yard touchdown to put Dallas up,.7-6. In the fourth quarter, safety Darren Woodson picked off a Boomer Esiason pass and returned it to Arizona's 23. Chris Boniol made a 31-yard field goal to put Dallas ahead, 10-6, for the final margin.

Blowout of the week: In a game billed as a Super Bowl preview, Green Bay crushed the Broncos, 41-6. Denver, which clinched AFC home-field advantage a week earlier, rested John Elway and his sore hamstring and backup Bill Musgrave got his first NFL start. Green Bay led 6-3 with 51 seconds left in the first half, when Brett Favre moved the Packers down the field and connected with receiver Antonio Freeman on a 14-yard touchdown pass for a 13-3 halftime lead. Early in the third quarter, Jason Elam kicked a 39-yard field goal to keep the Broncos close, but the Packers reeled off 28 consecutive points—including three Favre touchdown passes—to close out the game.

Nail-biter of the week: Detroit's Jason Hanson made a 31-yard field goal midway through the fourth quarter to cut the Vikings' lead to 17-16. With five minutes left, Vikings quarterback Brad Johnson threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to receiver Cris Carter for a 24-16 lead. The Lions countered with a four-play, 71-yard drive, capped by Barry Sanders' 2-yard touchdown run. Detroit tried a two-point conversion, but Scott Mitchell's pass to receiver Johnnie Morton was batted away by safety Robert Griffith to seal the Vikings' victory.

Hit of the week: By Bengals safety Sam Shade, who stopped Ravens fullback Carwell Gardner short of the goal-line with 23 seconds left in the Bengals' 21-14 victory. Ravens quarterback Vinny Testaverde faked a handoff to running back Bam Morris, looked for lineman Jonathan Ogden on a tackle-eligible play, then completed a pass to Gardner, who was dropped by Shade to end the game.

Oddity of the week: Saints quarterback Doug Nussmeier, who made his first NFL start in place of the injured Jim Everett, hooked up with rookie Terry Guess on a 57-yard touchdown pass for a pair of firsts—Nussmeier's first NFL touchdown pass and Guess' first NFL touchdown reception.

Top rusher: Detroit's Sanders rushed 20 times for 134 yards and one touchdown in the Lions' loss to Minnesota.

Top passer: Steve Young was 27-of-41 for 393 yards with three touchdowns in the 49ers' 30-24 loss to Carolina.

Top receiver: Irvin caught eight passes for 198 yards and one touchdown in Dallas' 10-6 victory over the Cardinals.

Notes: Colts kicker Cary Blanchard, who made three field goals against the Eagles, has scored 123 points this season, a club single-season record for points. . . . For the eighth time in nine games, Tampa Bay held its opponent to 17 points or less. . . . Denver's 41-6 loss to the Packers was its worst regular-season loss since 1988, when the Saints beat them, 42-0. . . . For just the third time in Dan Marino's career, the Dolphins scored fewer than 10 points in consecutive games. . . . 24-year old Drew Bledsoe became the youngest player in NFL history to surpass 14,000 career passing yards. . . . The Rams had 13 penalties for 102 yards and two ejections against the Bears. . . . Against the Oilers, Jacksonville quarterback Mark Brunell failed to pass for 200 yards for the first time in 15 games; he finished with 172 yards. . . . Seattle running back Chris Warren, with his 116-yard performance against Buffalo, became the Seahawks' career leader in 100-yard rushing games with 24. . . . Barry Sanders moved into seventh place on the NFL's career rushing list, pushing his career total to 11,472. . . . The Cowboys recorded their 13th consecutive victory over the Cardinals. . . . San Diego's 13 possessions against the Steelers ended with eight punts, two fumbles, an interception, a loss of downs and a 25-yard field goal by John Carney. . . . With its win against the 49ers, Carolina became the first second-year expansion team to make the playoffs. . . . Despite their Monday night loss to Oakland, the Chiefs are 13-2 against the Raiders in the '90s.

Quote of the week: Washington linebacker Marvcus Patton, on the Redskins' loss to the Buccaneers: "We played like crap. Everybody, myself included. With the talent we have and the start we got off to, we should do much better than this. It basically comes down to what we did to ourselves. We played like babies. We didn't tackle. We didn't chase down people. We let it slip away."

Hero of the week: Steve Young, who had suffered a number of injuries during the season—including a career-threatening concussion—turned in a vintage performance in the 49ers' 25-15 victory over the Steelers. Young threw three first-half touchdown passes, including a 20-yarder to Terrell Owens to push the 49ers' lead to 22-0 right before halftime. For the game, Young was 24-of-36 for 253 yards.

Goat of the week: Atlanta quarterback Bobby Hebert threw a last-second interception in the end zone in the Falcons' 34-27 loss to the Rams. The Falcons had the ball at the Rams' 7 with one second left, when Hebert dropped back and tossed a desperation pass into the end zone that was picked off by safety Keith Lyle. The interception was Hebert's sixth of the day, overshadowing his career-best 363 passing yards.

Sub of the week: Pittsburgh's Erric Pegram rushed 20 times for 103 yards in a losing effort against San Francisco. Pegram stepped in for Jerome Bettis, who was limited to six carries because of a sprained ankle. Pegram's performance was the first 100-yard game allowed by the 49ers in 21 games.

Comeback of the week: The Jets, fueled by derogatory remarks by Eagles quarterback Ty Detmer earlier in the week, held a 20-7 lead after three quarters. Detmer, aided by four interceptions by the defense, helped save the day by throwing two fourth-quarter touchdown passes to pull the Eagles even at 20-20. Kicker Gary Anderson tacked on the extra point to complete the comeback, 21-20.

Blowout of the week: The Packers, powered by the punt returns of Desmond Howard and the passing of Brett Favre, cruised by division rival Detroit, 31-3. Green Bay opened quietly, with a 20-yard field goal by Chris Jacke, before Howard busted a 92-yard punt return for a touchdown in the second quarter—striking a Heisman pose once he reached the end zone. Howard finished with 167 yards on punt returns to complement Favre's two touchdowns—a 1-yard run and a 27-yard strike to receiver Antonio Freeman.

Nail-biter of the week: Washington's Scott Blanton connected on his fourth field goal for a 26-24 lead midway through the fourth quarter. On the ensuing drive, quarterback Kent Graham moved the Cardinals downfield, picking up first downs on 16- and 12-yard completions and a facemask penalty. Leeland McElroy ran a 21-yard sweep to Washington's 14 to set up kicker Kevin Butler, who hit a 28-yarder for the 27-26 victory. The loss eliminated the Redskins from playoff contention.

Hit of the week: In the fourth quarter against Seattle, Jaguars quarterback Mark Brunell passed to receiver Jimmy Smith in the end zone. But cornerback Fred Thomas had Smith covered and appeared to have intercepted the pass, when teammate Darryl Williams ran into him, jarring the ball loose to Smith, who held on for a 39-yard touchdown reception. Kicker Mike Hollis added the extra point to give the Jaguars a 14-13 lead.

Oddity of the week: Against Denver, the Raiders nearly achieved a dubious record. Oakland committed 20 penalties, two short of the NFL record of 22 shared by the Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Bears, who set the mark in games played in 1944. Oakland's 20 penalties were the most since October 27, 1976, when Tampa Bay was called for 20 against Seattle.

Top rusher: The Saints' Mario Bates rushed 32 times for 129 yards and one touchdown in a 17-3 win over the Giants.

Top passer: Atlanta's Hebert was 28-of-49 for 363 yards and two touchdown passes in the Falcons' loss to St. Louis.

Top receiver: Rookie Eddie Kennison caught five passes for 226 yards and three touchdowns in the Rams' victory.

Notes: Colts receiver Marvin Harrison tied a team record with three touchdown receptions against the Chiefs. . . . Houston's Al Del Greco made his 30th and 31st field goals of the season, breaking his club single-season record of 29. . . . Isaac Bruce's two receptions against Atlanta pushed his career total to 217 receptions, setting an NFL record for most receptions in the first three years of a career, breaking Andre Rison's mark of 215. . . . Tampa Bay's defense surrendered more than 300 yards for the first time in eight games. . . . John Elway recorded his 126th career victory, passing Fran Tarkenton for the most in NFL history. . . . Buffalo's Steve Christie missed a field goal inside the 30 for just the fourth time in 60 career attempts. . . . The Cowboys' offense failed to score a touchdown for the third time in five games. . . . Desmond Howard's 167 yards on punt returns pushed his season total to 791 yards, shattering the single-season NFL record of 692 by Miami's Fulton Walker in 1985. . . . Saints coach Rick Venturi won just his second game in 18 tries as an NFL coach.

Quote of the week: Detroit safety Bennie Blades, on seeing Packers fans in the Silverdome: "Every time I looked up, I saw those cheeseheads and that awful green color. No matter where you go, you're fighting like you're in a doghouse. But, hey, they support their team."

Hero of the week: Carolina safety Chad Cota picked off a pass in the end zone to secure the Panthers' 18-14 victory over the Steelers. The Steelers faced third-and-goal from the Panthers' 8 when Kordell Stewart dropped back to pass. Cota recognized the Steelers' pass as a play they used earlier in the game, moved inside and made a diving interception with 29 seconds left. Cota's play clinched the NFC West title for Carolina and a first-round bye in the playoffs.

Goat of the week: Kicker Morten Andersen missed a chip shot that would have given the Falcons a 20-19 victory over the Jaguars, who qualified for the playoffs because of Andersen's miss. Andersen, one of the best kickers in NFL history, had not missed a field goal from 30 yards or less since 1989, a streak of 59 in a row. But with four seconds left, Andersen slipped on his follow-through and the ball sailed wide of the left upright, preserving Jacksonville's 19-17 victory.

Sub of the week: Quarterback Steve McNair, starting in place of Chris Chandler, turned in an excellent performance in the Oilers' 24-21 victory over the Ravens. McNair threw a 19-yard touchdown and ran for a 24-yard touchdown to stake the Oilers to a 24-7 lead after three quarters. In his sixth career start, the second-year quarterback completed passes to seven different receivers and was 19-of-24 for 238 yards with no interceptions.

Comeback of the week: The Giants led the Patriots, 22-3, early in the fourth quarter, but quarterback Drew Bledsoe found receiver Terry Glenn for a 26-yard touchdown pass to cut the lead to 22-10. The Giants went four and out and punted to New England's Dave Meggett. who returned the punt 60 yards for a touchdown to cut the lead to 22-17. With 1:23 left, New England faced fourth-and-7, but Bledsoe hit tight end Ben Coates with a 13-yard touchdown pass for the victory.

Blowout of the week: After being eliminated from the playoff picture a week earlier, the Redskins piled up 483 yards and 32 first downs against the Cowboys, who rested starters such as Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith for the playoffs. Behind Gus Frerotte's passing and Terry Allen's running, Washington rolled to a 37-3 lead, before Herschel Walker scored on a 39-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter, Dallas' lone offensive highlight.

Nail-biter of the week: In the fourth quarter against the Bengals, the Colts' Aaron Bailey returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown, tying the game at 24. With 5:27 left, Cincinnati's Jeff Blake passed to Tony McGee for a 9-yard touchdown and a 31-24 lead. The Colts then drove to the Bengals' 19 and faced a fourth down, but couldn't convert. The Colts got another shot, but Jim Harbaugh's desperation pass from midfield was intercepted as time ran out.

Hit of the week: On the second play of the game, Eagles defensive end Mike Mamula got around Arizona tackle Lomas Brown and slapped the football out of quarterback Kent Graham's hand. Mamula picked up the loose ball and ran it back for a 4-yard touchdown—his first in the NFL.

Oddity of the week: Stewart saw significant action as Pittsburgh's quarterback for the first time this season. Once again, Stewart proved why he is the league's most versatile player, as he broke out of the pocket for an 80-yard touchdown run and a 14-9 halftime lead.

Top rusher: Detroit's Barry Sanders rushed 28 times for 175 yards, including a 54-yard touchdown run, in the Lions' loss to the 49ers.

Top passer: Washington's Frerotte threw for a career-high 346 yards on 22-of-31 passing in the Redskins' victory.

Top receiver: Henry Ellard caught seven of Frerotte's passes for 155 yards.

Notes: The Bengals finished 8-8, which included a 7-2 mark after Bruce Coslet replaced Dave Shula as coach, their best record since 1990. . . . Denver's Terrell Davis set club single-season records for most touchdowns (15) and most rushing touchdowns (13). . . . The Redskins, in their final game at RFK Stadium, recorded their 229th consecutive sellout. . . . The Packers won 13 games for just the second time in their history; they were 13-1 in 1962. . . . For the third consecutive game, Eagles quarterback Ty Detmer threw an interception that was returned for a touchdown. . . . For the first time in 16 seasons, the Saints failed to win a game against an NFC West opponent. . . . Rookie Karim Abdul-Jabbar became the first Dolphin to rush for 1,000 yards in a season since Delvin Williams had 1,258 in 1978. . . . The Chiefs failed to make the playoffs for the first time since 1989. . . . Buffalo's Thurman Thomas joined Detroit's Barry Sanders as the only running backs to record eight consecutive 1,000-yard seasons. . . . Curtis Conway became the first Bears receiver to have back-to-back 1,000-yard seasons. . . . For the first time since 1988, Tampa Bay avoided a last-place finish in the NFC Central. . . . The Raiders' 156 penalties tied the NFL single-season record they set two seasons ago. . . . Seattle's Gino Torretta, the 1992 Heisman Trophy winner, played in his first NFL game and threw his first NFL touchdown pass—a 32-yarder to Joey Galloway. . . . Before its 6-2 road record this season, Houston had never had more than five road victories in a season in its 36-year history. . . . Baltimore's Vinny Testaverde became the eighth quarterback in NFL history to throw for 4,000 yards and at least 30 touchdown passes in a season—and the first quarterback to do it with a sub .500 team (4-12). . . . Detroit's Sanders finished the season with 1,553 yards to win his third rushing title and became the first player in league history to rush for 1,500 yards or more in three consecutive seasons. . . . San Francisco's Steve Young won his fifth passing title in six seasons with a 97.2 quarterback rating.

Quote of the week: Atlanta quarterback Bobby Hebert, on Andersen's missed field goal and the team's loss to Jacksonville: "If I was a betting man, I would have bet my life that we win that game. But, shoot, I would be dead right now."

WILD-CARD GAMES

AFC

PITTSBURGH 42, INDIANAPOLIS 14

Why the Steelers won: After trailing, 14-13, at halftime, the team held the Colts to just 22 yards in the second half, including just 2 yards on the ground. While the defense was at work, the offense was using its high-powered ground game to wear down the Colts. The Steelers gained 182 of their 228 rushing yards in the second half, led by Jerome Bettis (55), Kordell Stewart (48) and Jon Witman (48). Bettis tallied two 1-yard touchdown runs, Stewart had a 3-yarder and Witman rambled 31 yards for a score, all in the second half.

Why the Colts lost: They couldn't move the ball in the second half. The Steelers led 13-0 before the Colts scored twice in the second quarter to take a 14-13 lead before the half. Running back Marshall Faulk finished with 25 yards on nine carries and Jim Harbaugh was 12-of-32 for 134 yards.

The turning points:

1. With the Colts trailing, 13-0, in the second period, Indianapolis cornerback Eugene Daniel intercepted a Mike Tomczak pass and returned it 59 yards for a touchdown. Tomczak then threw an interception to cornerback Ray McElroy, setting up a 9-yard touchdown pass from Harbaugh to Aaron Bailey. The two touchdowns enabled the Colts to take a 14-13 halftime lead, although they were outplayed in the first two periods.

2. The Colts might have had the lead at the half, but they never stood a chance when the whistle was blown to start the second half. The Steelers opened the half with a 16-play, 91-yard touchdown drive that lasted 9:30. Bettis scored from the 1 to cap the drive, and Stewart's two-point conversion pass to John Farquhar gave Pittsburgh a 21-14 lead. Harbaugh was intercepted by Levon Kirkland two plays later, then fumbled the ball away on the Colts' next possession.

Notable: The Steelers set team playoff records for most points scored (42), fewest first downs allowed (eight) and fewest rushing first downs allowed (none). . . . Bettis, in the first playoff game of his career, ran nine times for 44 yards on the Steelers' game-winning march, including an 18-yard jaunt up the middle. . . . Pittsburgh had the second-ranked defense in the NFL during the regular season, allowing 273 yards per game. . . . With the loss, the Colts fell to 0-4 at Three Rivers Stadium since 1992. . . . After rushing for 69 yards and zero touchdowns in the regular season, Pittsburgh's Witman had 48 yards and one score against the Colts.

Quotable: Steelers linebacker Chad Brown about his outlook: "The next logical step is to win the Super Bowl. I don't want us to get ahead of ourselves, because we have New England next. But I like our chances." . . . Coach Bill Cowher on the quarterback situation between Kordell Stewart and Mike Tomczak: "They're both going to play in the upcoming weeks. How much, I can't answer." ... Cowher on the team's effort: "This is one of the better games we've played in a while." ... Harbaugh after being sacked four times and having a chipped tooth and a cut in his mouth that needed 15-20 stitches: "It got to be a matter of survival out there, and my mouth didn't. I've got some dental work to be done." . . . Colts coach Lindy Infante on the loss: "We battled for 30 minutes, had ourselves one point ahead at halftime. In the second half, Pittsburgh dominated us on both sides of the football and outplayed us. It's sad for our guys, we had such a gallant season. It's unfortunate it had to end this way."

JACKSONVILLE 30, BUFFALO 27

Why the Jaguars won: In Week 17, the Jaguars defeated Atlanta, 19-17, when Morten Andersen missed a 30-yard field goal with four seconds left. Andersen had not missed a kick from 30 yards or less since the 1989 season. Jacksonville followed that little bit of luck into its wild-card matchup with the Bills. With the game tied at 27 and 3:07 left in the game, Mike Hollis kicked a 45-yard field goal for what turned out to be the winning points. On the kick, Hollis watched from the ground as the ball hit off the the right upright before going through. Jacksonville was able to use a 175-yard rushing performance from Natrone Means and 239 passing yards from Mark Brunell to control the ball for 33:06. Hollis' field goal marked the fourth and final lead change for the Jaguars.

Why the Bills lost: Buffalo couldn't hold a lead, and when push came to shove, Means shoved the Bills to the ground. The Bills' aging stars—Jim Kelly and Thurman Thomas—showed in the first half why Buffalo had played in four Super Bowls. But in the second half, the two were shut down. Kelly threw for 166 yards in the first half, including a 7-yard touchdown pass to Thomas, but was held to only 10 yards in the final two quarters. And Thomas was held to 19 yards after 31 in the first half.

The turning points:

1. With the Bills leading, 7-0, in the first quarter, Kelly attempted a shovel pass to Thomas. This was the second time the Bills had tried this play and Jaguars defensive end Clyde Simmons was prepared. He stepped in front of Thomas for the interception and returned it 20 yards for a touchdown.

2. The Bills took a 14-10 lead late in the first quarter after a 2-yard touchdown run by Thomas. On the ensuing possession, Brunell was intercepted by Thomas Smith. The Bills promptly drove to the Jaguars' 16, where they were faced with a fourth-and-1. A quarterback sneak by Kelly is stopped short of the first-down marker. Six plays later, following a 47-yard pass play from Brunell to tight end Pete Mitchell, Means ran 30 yardsfor a score to give the Jaguars a 17-14 advantage.

3. After a 38-yard interception return for a touchdown by the Bills' Jeff Burris, Brunell responded by leading Jacksonville on a 65-yard touchdown drive, taking 5:37 off the clock. The drive was capped off with a 2-yard touchdown pass from Brunell to Jimmy Smith to tie the game at 27.

Notable: Brunell threw two interceptions, snapping his streak of 129 consecutive passes without an interception. . . . The Jaguars became the first team to beat the Bills at Rich Stadium in the postseason. The Bills had won their nine previous playoff games at Rich Stadium. . . . Means' 175 rushing yards was a team record and marked the first time in team history a Jacksonville player rushed for 100 yards in consecutive games. . . . Thomas' two touchdowns kept him tied with Dallas' Emmitt Smith for the postseason career record with 20. . . . In the regular season, Bills defensive end Bruce Smith was tied for the AFC lead in sacks with 13.5, but he was held to just two quarterback pressures in this game. Second-year tackle Tony Boselli was matched against Smith for most of the game.

Quotable: Bills center Kent Hull on the Jaguars: "They seem like the team we used to be. That was an opportunistic team, and they made the plays when they had to have them. That's the reason they won." . . . Jaguars wide receiver Keenan McCardell on the win: "Everybody said we're too young and we're supposed to lose, but we're hungry and we kept on scratching and clawing to go on." . . . Bills coach Marv Levy on the loss: "We lost a game that was a very bitter loss. This game hurts the most." . . . Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin on the Bills losing: "The end of an era? Well, it's the beginning of one maybe for us. If it's the end or the beginning, I'd rather choose to talk about the beginning."

DALLAS 40, MINNESOTA 15

Why the Cowboys won: Dallas played its most complete game of the season. The defense took control early, forcing four turnovers in the first half. The Cowboys were able to capitalize, scoring 20 points off the turnovers to take a 30-0 halftime lead. The offense had their best game of the season, controlling the line of scrimmage and rushing for 255 yards. As a result of the line's dominance, Emmitt Smith rushed for 116 yards and two touchdowns. The 40 points were a season-high for the Cowboys, exceeding the previous best of 32.

Why the Vikings lost: Minnesota's five turnovers allowed Dallas to score early and often. Not helping the matter was Brad Johnson starting his first postseason game. His inexperience was evident in the second quarter, as he threw two costly interceptions. To make matters worse, the team's defensive front lost the battle in the trenches They allowed 255 yards on the ground, more than double the season average (122.9). The Vikings controlled the ball for only 18 minutes, compared to the Cowboys' 42.

The turning points:

1. After forcing the Vikings to punt, the Cowboys scored on their opening drive when Troy Aikman followed a block from Larry Allen and scored from the 2. The early score was especially important for Dallas since it had scored only 32 points in the last three regular-season games.

2. With the Cowboys leading, 7-0, early, Minnesota running back Amp Lee caught a short pass from Brad Johnson and was on his way to the end zone to tie the game. Before he could get the ball over the goal line, Dallas safety George Teague reached in, forcing a fumble at the 2. The ball bounced out of the end zone, giving the Cowboys possession on the touchback. After the turnover, Dallas drove 70 yards and went up 10-0 on a 28-yard field goal by Chris Boniol.

3. On the Vikings' first possession following a 37-yard touchdown run by Emmitt Smith (made possible by another forced fumble from Teague), Teague intercepted an errant Johnson pass and returned it 29 yards for a touchdown. The touchdown made it 24-0 with just over eight minutes remaining in the first half.

Notable: Teague's interception return for a touchdown was the second in his career. The first was an NFL postseason record 101-yarder in 1994 while playing for the Green Bay Packers. . . . Smith's two rushing touchdowns allowed him to take sole possession of the postseason record for rushing touchdowns with 18. The scores were his 19th and 20th overall, keeping him in a first-place tie with Buffalo's Thurman Thomas. Smith rushed for 100 yards for the seventh time in the postseason, another record. . . . The Vikings' loss was their sixth in a row in the playoffs, including four in a row under coach Dennis Green.

Quotable: Cornerback Deion Sanders on the Cowboys' performance: "We sent a message out there to everybody. Dallas is still the team to beat." . . . Vikings linebacker Jeff Brady on the Dallas offensive line: "What their offensive line did to us was just an awesome display of power." . . . Lee on his early fumble: "You can't put a play like that out of your mind. It was a big turning point, and I accept responsibility for what happened." . . . Aikman on expectations placed on Dallas: "We realize it doesn't matter what we do in the regular season. We're judged on what takes place in the postseason." . . . Wide receiver Michael Irvine on the Cowboys' ability to "turn it on" when they needed to: "When you say you're going to turn it up, that's not physical. That's mental. I think the mind plays a big role in any sport, and we feel we can pretty much accomplish anything if we put our mind to it."

SAN FRANCISCO 14, PHILADELPHIA 0

Why the 49ers won: Three words—Young, Rice, defense. Steve Young led the Niners to both of their touchdowns. The first came on a 9-yard run. The second was a 3-yard pass to Jerry Rice. The touchdown pass was the result of Rice's one-handed, 26-yard reception on the previous play. The 49ers were outgained by the Eagles, but the defense made the necessary big plays and stiffened in the second half. They made two key interceptions with the Eagles in the red zone and held Philadelphia to 8 rushing yards in the second half.

Why the Eagles lost: Starting his first postseason game, Ty Detmer threw two second-quarter interceptions with the Eagles inside the 49ers' 10. Even though the Eagles controlled the ball for 19 minutes in the first half, their inability to score set the tone for the game. After coming up empty in the red zone, the offense stalled in the second half, totaling only 102 yards. Former San Francisco running back Ricky Watters was held in check by his old teammates, rushing for 57 yards on 20 carries.

The turning points:

1. After being forced to punt on the opening drive, Steve Young guided the 49ers on a 74-yard touchdown drive on their second possession. Young completed six of seven passes and finished the drive with a 9-yard run up the middle. He suffered bruised ribs and had the wind knocked out of him on the touchdown run.

2. With the score 7-0 in the second quarter, the Eagles forced the 49ers to punt. A 22-yard return by Mark Seay allows Philadelphia to start with the ball on its 40. Using a balanced attack (five runs, four passes), the Eagles take 5:37 and drive to the 49ers' 7. On third-and-1, Philadelphia chose to use a surprise pass instead of the more conventional running play. The call resulted in an interception by Marquez Pope in the end zone.

3. The Eagles' defense held tough after Pope's interception and forced San Francisco to punt with 3:56 left. Ricky Watters touched the ball on five consecutive plays to start the drive, rushing for 29 yards and two first downs. With two minutes left and the ball on San Francisco's 40, the Eagles decided to try and pass their way into the end zone. Detmer completed three of his next four passes for 30 yards to lead the Eagles to the 5. But two plays later, Detmer's pass intended for Chris T. Jones was intercepted in the end zone by defensive end Roy Barker.

Notable: Eagles coach Ray Rhodes was an assistant on all five of the 49ers' Super Bowl championship teams. And six players on Philadelphia's roster were former 49ers. . . . The shutout was the first for the Eagles in postseason play. . . . The 14 combined points were a record low for a wild-card game. The game was played in rain and winds that reached 51 mph. Conditions were so bad that fans were advised to take public transporation to the game. . . . The game was the first time since 1985 the 49ers did not receive a first-round bye. . . . Young carried the ball 11 times and led the 49ers with 65 yards. . . . Watters led the Eagles with 57 yards rushing. The Eagles are 10-0 when Watters rushes for at least 100 yards and 30-0-1 in the last 31 games in which an Eagles running back has at least 100 yards rushing. . . . San Francisco had its first postseason shutout since a 23-0 victory against the Chicago Bears in the 1984 NFC championship game.

Quotable: 49ers safety Merton Hanks on the team's experience: "We've all been here before. We have guys with Super Bowl rings, and we understand what it takes to get back there." . . . San Francisco safety Tim McDonald on wanting to play the Green Bay Packers again: "We got that shot now. We got a chance to do something about it." . . . Watters on the Eagles' running game: "Up until halftime, we were running on them. We didn't do much of anything the second half." . . . Rhodes on Detmer's game: "That was not a good game for Ty and I think everyone knows that. The turnovers in the red area, you can't do that. You can't leave that area without any points." . . . Eagles guard Guy McIntyre on calling a pass instead of a run on third-and-1 on the 49ers' 7: "I kind of cringed a little when the call came in. I thought we could run it in."

DIVISIONAL PLAYOFFS

JACKSONVILLE 30, DENVER 27

Why the Jaguars won: Coming off an upset at Buffalo in the wild-card playoffs, Jacksonville and quarterback Mark Brunell simply wouldn't be denied at a site—Mile High Stadium—where visiting teams usually have nightmares. Not even a 12-0 first-quarter deficit and 75,000-plus screaming Denver zealots could shake the second-year expansion team. The Jaguars, spurred by Brunell's deft passing and running and Natrone Means' brute-force rushing, rebounded for two second-quarter field goals by Mike Hollis and an 8-yard touchdown run by Means to seize a lead they never relinquished.

Why the Broncos lost: After playing solid defense in the regular season after some sieve-like performances in preceding years, Denver reverted to form and could not stop the Jaguars at key junctures. The Jags wouldn't and couldn't be contained. Most telling was the Broncos' inability to corral Brunell on a fourth-quarter play—Jacksonville was nursing a 23-20 lead—in which the quarterback eluded four Denver defenders and scrambled 29 yards to the Broncos' 21. The play set up the Jaguars' final and clinching touchdown, which came on Brunell's 16-yard strike to Jimmy Smith on third-and-5.

The turning points:

1. When Jacksonville's Keenan McCardell slipped into the clear to take a 31-yard scoring pitch from Brunell in the third period. The play boosted the Jaguars into a 20-12 lead, and any thought that it was inevitable that Jacksonville would crack against this Denver team—the Broncos had started the season with 12 victories in 13 games—was now being reassessed.

2. When Hollis kicked a 22-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter, giving Jacksonville a 23-12 lead and making it five consecutive series in which the the Jaguars had scored on Denver's supposedly sturdy defense. The 17-play, 88-yard drive, featuring Brunell's short passes and Means' bullish rushes, seemed to take the stuffing out of the Broncos, who could only trade scores with the Jags the rest of the way.

Notable: Denver, seemingly mapping its Super Bowl plans since midseason, never seemed to have its head in the game. Defensive lineman Michael Dean Perry's casual jaunt off the field preceding a Jaguars punt near the end of the third quarter told the story. The too-many-men-on-the-field penalty gave Jacksonville a first down when the Broncos should have taken possession, and the blunder led to Hollis' field goal that stretched the Jags' lead to 11 points. . . . Means rumbled for 140 yards on 21 carries, and Brunell threw for 245 yards in an 18-for-29 passing performance. . . . The defeat was only the Broncos' second playoff loss at home in franchise history. . . . Denver's Terrell Davis, who ran for an AFC-high 1,538 yards in the regular season, rushed for 56 yards in the first quarter but, hobbled by a knee strain thereafter, gained only 35 the rest of the game. Davis' ineffectiveness altered the Broncos' game plan, leaving quarterback John Elway—as has been the case so often in his storied career—to carry most of the offensive burden.

Quotable: "Without question, this is the toughest loss I've ever faced," Broncos coach Mike Shanahan said. . . . "Time heals a lot of wounds," said an obviously hurting Elway, "but this is as disappointed as I've been. I thought we had a team that would make it happen." . . ."I don't know if I'll ever be able to completely get over this," moaned Broncos tight end Shannon Sharpe, who had an 18-yard touchdown reception. . . . "People thought we would just be happy to be (in the playoffs) after we beat Buffalo, and this proved we're not," Jaguars defensive end Clyde Simmons said. "We're for real, and we're taking everything very seriously. We believed all year that we could get in, and once you get in anything can happen."

NEW ENGLAND 28, PITTSBURGH 3

Why the Patriots won: They took it to the Steelers' highly touted zone-blitz defense from the get-go. New England, seemingly not fazed by Pittsburgh's .press clippings, scored touchdowns on three of its first four possessions against a defense that had ranked second in the NFL.

Why the Steelers lost: Their offense was, basically, a zero. Pittsburgh's only points—coming on a Norm Johnson field goal—were set up by Chad Brown's third-quarter interception of a Drew Bledsoe pass.

The turning points:

1. When, on the first offensive play of the game, Bledsoe went right at standout Steelers cornerback Rod Woodson and completed a 53-yard pass to rookie Terry Glenn. On the next play, running back Curtis Martin scored from the 2.

2. When, after the Patriots had extended their lead to 14-0 on a Bledsoe-to-Keith Byars pass play later in the first period, Martin set sail on a 78-yard touchdown run in the second quarter. Forced into a dire catch-up situation after New England had bolted to the 21-0 lead, the ground-oriented Steelers were in deep trouble.

Notable: Pittsburgh simply didn't have the wherewithal to mount a comeback—not with backup quarterback Kordell Stewart failing to complete any of his 10 pass attempts, starting quarterback Mike Tomczak hitting on only two completions of more than 15 yards and battering ram Jerome Bettis being slowed by a groin injury. Bettis, coming off a 102-yard performance in Pittsburgh's 42-14 drubbing of Indianapolis in the wild-card round, managed only 43 yards on 13 carries against the Pats. . . . Martin made a third touchdown run in the fourth quarter, a jaunt covering 23 yards, and finished with 166 yards rushing. . . . The Patriots needed a total of only seven plays to score their first three touchdowns. . . . Bledsoe completed his first seven passes for 123 yards. The rest of the afternoon, he threw for only 41 yards—but by then, the damage had been done. . . . Facing a fourth-and-4 on New England's 24 with time running out in the second quarter, the Steelers gambled on a Tomczak pass to Fred McAfee instead of settling for a field-goal attempt. Coach Bill Cowher's decision, coming with his team down by 21 points, went awry as the Pats' Tedy Bruschi threw McAfee for a 2-yard loss. . . . The game at Foxboro Stadium was played in a dense fog, an apt description for the way the Steelers played on both sides of the ball. The conditions were never really a factor in the game, though. . . . The victory meant the Patriots would play host to the AFC championship game. Heading into the weekend, it was assumed that Denver, scourge of the conference in the regular season, would be the home team for the title clash, but the Broncos' surprising loss to Jacksonville and the Pats' easy victory thrust New England into the host role.

Quotable: "That first play (the strike to Glenn) loosened us up," New England guard William Roberts said. "We showed them it was time to get it on." . . . "We hit a few plays early and got a little momentum," Patriots coach Bill Parcells said. "We felt that was important because they would have liked, I'm sure, to run Bettis and play the way they played last week." . . . Parcells said he and the Pats targeted Woodson, one of the best defenders in NFL history. "We wanted him to know we'd throw his way," Parcells said of the game-opening bomb. . . . "You could see their frustration growing," Pats safety Willie Clay said of the Steelers' woeful attempt to play catch-up ball. "(Quarterback) has been their problem all year." . . . "Everybody talked about Denver (as the probable AFC representative in Super Bowl XXXI)," New England offensive tackle Bruce Armstrong said. "And everybody talked about Pittsburgh. But then Denver loses. And now the Pittsburgh people are out, too. The Patriots are still here."

GREEN BAY 35, SAN FRANCISCO 14

Why the Packers won: Green Bay took advantage of rain-soaked, mud-filled Lambeau Field and pounced on the 49ers early, running up a 21-0 lead late in the second quarter. The Packers' running game dominated in every way, from the 139 yards rushing gained by Edgar Bennett and Dorsey Levens to the 117 punt return yards racked up by Desmond Howard, including a 71-yarder for a touchdown.

Why the 49ers lost: The Packers ran all over them. As late as December 10, San Francisco led the NFC in run defense (84.9 yards per game). But in the three games since that date, including this playoff loss, the run defense collapsed and gave up an average of 149.3 yards on the ground.

The turning points:

1. Two minutes and 15 seconds into the game, Desmond Howard fielded a punt and ran through a half-dozen tackles for a 71-yard touchdown. Two failed 49ers possessions later, Howard took another punt and returned it 46 yards, setting up the Packers' second touchdown.

2. After the 49ers took advantage of a pair of miscues on special teams and cut the lead to 21-14, the Packers answered with a 12-play, 72-yard touchdown drive—a drive in which they passed only twice—to put it out of reach.

Notable: The attendance at Lambeau Field of 60,787 included three no-shows. . . . 49ers quarterback Steve Young lasted only two series before the pain of cracked rib forced him to the sideline. . . . Packers quarterback Brett Favre passed for only 79 yards. . . . The 49ers' loss was the third to the Packers in less than a year. . . . It was the second year in a row the 49ers were knocked out of the playoffs by the Packers.

Quotable: 49ers coach George Seifert: "When you come to an opposing team's home stadium and you're down 14 points right away, against such a good football team, it's pretty tough odds to overcome." . . . Seifert on the Packers' drive that put the game away: "The drive following our second touchdown that Green Bay put together demonstrated what type of team they are. They were a damn good football team to take the ball and respond the way they did." . . . Young on the decision to take him out of the game: "It was apparent we were going to need to throw the ball downfield. That just wasn't in my game today. As much as I wish it was. Believe me, it's a very painful thing to watch the season end." . . . Seifert on the decision to play Young: "I'm a little upset with myself for maybe pushing Steve into that situation. He really didn't practice and he's taking shots and he's coming on the field and off the field. I had a sense he might not (stay in). But at the same time, he's such a great competitor." . . . Packers coach Mike Holmgren on the field conditions: "It was hard to throw. It was hard to make breaks. It was hard to handle the football. We changed our approach a little bit. We got some turnovers. It was going to be that kind of game." . . . 49ers strong safety Tim McDonald on the loss: "I thought we had a good enough team to win. I thought we'd come in here and beat these guys."

CAROLINA 26, DALLAS 17

Why the Panthers won: Carolina stopped Emmitt Smith. The league's career leader in playoff touchdowns was stopped six times on three drives inside the Panthers' 5. Combine that with the Cowboys' loss of Michael Irvin to injury early, and the Panthers' defense ruled the day. In addition, Carolina—led by Anthony Johnson's 104 yards—was able to run the football.

Why the Cowboys lost: Dallas' offense was lackluster. It had trouble making third downs and couldn't get a touchdown when it needed one, particularly without star receiver Michael Irvin.

Turning points:

1. On the Cowboys' second offensive play, wide receiver Michael Irvin broke his collarbone while making a 22-yard catch and was lost for the game. Without Irvin, the passing game was severely hampered. Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman completed only 50 percent of his passes for 165 yards.

2. In the second quarter, on third-and-goal from the Dallas 10, Carolina's Willie Green fights off Kevin Smith and makes a diving touchdown catch. That meant that Dallas had allowed touchdowns on consecutive drives to fall behind, 14-3.

Notable: The Panthers made the playoffs in only their second season in the NFL. . . . The Panthers were 9-0 in Ericsson Stadium's inaugural season. . . . The Panthers allowed the Cowboys only six points—two field goals—in the second half. . . . The Cowboys' season ended the same way it began—without Michael Irvin. Irvin was suspended for the first five games after pleading no contest to cocaine possession, then broke his right collarbone on the second offensive play and missed the rest of the game. . . . Troy Aikman, the NFL's most accurate passer, struggled. He was sacked twice and intercepted three times.

Quotable: Panthers coach Dom Capers: "This team has a strong will. They rise to the occasion in the second half. They've been doing it all year long." . . . Panthers safety Pat Terrell: "Everyone in this locker room believed that this is where we were going to be at the end of the season. That's not arrogance. It's just that we have a bunch of believers on this team." . . . Cowboys coach Barry Switzer: "The same old story we had all year long finally caught up with us. You've got to get the ball in the end zone. Simple as that." . . . Panthers linebacker Sam Mills on stopping Emmitt Smith: "That takes a lot of wind out of a team when you do something like that. That was critical for us. We had them on their heels." . . . Panthers linebacker Carlton Bailey on his team's reputation: "I think the whole country put us out of nearly every (big) game. We won eight straight at home, and we were still underdogs. I don't understand it. We proved to everyone there is a good football team in Charlotte."

CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIPS

NEW ENGLAND 20, JACKSONVILLE 6

Why the Patriots won: Their defense came up with big plays to offset a sub-par effort by the offense. The defense forced three turnovers in the final four minutes and helped the offense convert Jaguars mistakes and turnovers into 10 points while scoring six points of its own. Quarterback Drew Bledsoe passed for only 178 yards while Curtis Martin rushed for only 59 yards. But Willie Clay intercepted a Mark Brunell pass in the end zone to thwart a possible game-tying drive late in the fourth quarter, and the Patriots' Otis Smith returned James Stewart's fumble 47 yards for a touchdown with 2:24 left to seal the victory.

Why the Jaguars lost: Their offense kept putting the defense under pressure to come up with a big play. And although the defense responded by forcing two turnovers and holding the Patriots to 234 net yards, it couldn't provide enough opportunities for the struggling offense. After gaining 184 and 203 yards rushing in previous playoff games against Buffalo and Denver, respectively, the Jaguars ran for just 101 yards against the Patriots.

The turning points:

1. After the Jaguars' opening drive of the game stalled, Rich Griffith snapped the ball high to punter Bryan Barker, who couldn't get the punt off and was tackled on the 4. Two plays later, Curtis Martin scored on a 1-yard run to give the Patriots a 7-0 lead.
2. With the Patriots leading 13-6 and less than four minutes to play, the Jaguars marched to the Patriots' 5. But Clay made a leaping interception of Brunell's pass intended for tight end Derek Brown in the end zone. Clay came off his double-team of outside receiver Jimmy Smith, sensing the Jaguars would run a crossing route underneath, to make the play.
3. With 2 1/2 minutes left and the Patriots clinging to the 13-6 lead, linebacker Chris Slade jarred the ball from Stewart. Smith recovered the fumble and went 47 yards for a touchdown, icing the team's second trip to the Super Bowl in 11 years.

Notable: With the win, Bill Parcells joined Don Shula as the only coaches to lead different teams to the Super Bowl. Shula did it with the Colts and Dolphins, while Parcells accomplished the feat with the Giants and Patriots. . . . For 11 minutes during the first half the lights went out at Foxboro Stadium, leaving the game in the dark but adding more fuel to Patriots owner Robert Kraft's fire to lobby for a new stadium. . . . The Patriots gave up nine points in their two playoff games; they held the Jaguars to 289 net yards and three trips inside the 20 without a touchdown. . . . A group of 10,000 fans showed up at Jacksonville Municipal Stadium to watch the game on the stadium's big-screen TVs.

Quotable: Parcells on the ability of the Patriots to limit Brunell's out-of-pocket exploits: "I thought our kids did a great job, especially on their bootleg play. They tried five or six of those today, and we were giving them a lot of trouble." . . . Slade on forcing Stewart to fumble late in the game: "I knew it was a draw play. I just stuck my head in there. Otis made a heads-up play to run it back." . . . Stewart on the fumble: "It's a heart-wrenching feeling for me. The game was so close. Everything was on the line. It's one of those things you're going to think about for a long time." . . . Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin on the team's missed opportunities and mistakes: "The very thing that brought us here left us today." . . . Parcells on the challenge he issued to the team before the season: "At the beginning of the season, we talked about trying to either be club fighters or trying to play like champions. Club fighters have a certain mentality where they go to the gym and work hard and they take a beating and go home. I just told the players that they can't call themselves club fighters anymore. They have shown bigger hearts than that."

GREEN BAY 30, CAROLINA 13

Why the Packers won: After a slow start, during which the Panthers converted two Brett Favre turnovers into 10 points, the Packers stuck to a game plan of running out of four-receiver sets and passing out of the I-formation, which helped to neutralize the Panthers' zone-blitz. Edgar Bennett and Dorsey Levens combined for 187 of the 201 net rushing yards, the third-highest total in Packers playoff history, and Favre threw for 292 yards and was sacked only once. The Packers outgained the Panthers 479 yards to 251 and held the ball 16:06 longer than the Panthers.

Why the Panthers lost: Fullback Anthony Johnson and tight end Wesley Walls, two key players in the Panthers' offense, each had a sub-par game. Johnson gained 31 yards on 11 carries and Walls had three catches for 33 yards. The Panthers' 45 net rushing yards were a season-low. The failure to establish the running game put the pressure to move the offense on second-year quarterback Kerry Collins, who played hesitantly. With the Panthers choosing to go with short drops and quick passing plays, the Packers adjusted by dropping eight men into coverage to blanket the shorter pass routes and limit Walls' effectiveness.

The turning points:

1. When Levens bounced outside to gain 14 yards on his first carry, the Packers had found a way to attack the Panthers' zone-blitzing style. With linebackers Kevin Greene and Lamar Lathon clogging the middle, the Packers could run sweeps to the outside effectively. Levens gained 35 yards on a run that set up the Packers' first score, a 29-yard pass in the second quarter from Favre to Levens, who used spectacular body control to keep his feet inbounds. After the early success, the Packers kept going to Levens, who set career highs in rushing yards, 88, and receiving yards, 117.

2. With the Packers leading 14-10 and 48 seconds left in the first half, Collins threw for receiver Willie Green on the left sideline. But the pass was too long and the Packers' Tyrone Williams made a leaping, one-handed interception at the Packers' 38. It was Williams' first career interception and led to Chris Jacke's 31-yard field goal with 10 seconds left in the half that gave the Packers a 17-10 lead.

3. With the Packers leading 20-13 late in the third quarter, the Panthers' defense appeared to have finally gotten pressure on Favre with their blitz. But Favre threw a screen pass to Levens, who turned what looked like near-disaster into a 66-yard gain to the Panthers' 4. On the next play, Bennett scored to give the Packers a commanding 27-13 lead.

Notable: Favre improved his record to 19-0 as a starter in games played when the temperature is below 35 degrees. The game-time temperature at Lambeau Field was 3 degrees, with a minus-17 degree wind chill. . . . The Packers have won an NFL-record 11 consecutive home playoff games, which includes a 9-0 record at Lambeau and a 2-0 record at Milwaukee's County Stadium. . . . The Packers converted 53 percent of their third-down plays into first downs against the Panthers, who were the stingiest team in the league on third down, giving up first downs 32 percent of the time. . . . In a 15-minute span from the second quarter to the fourth quarter, the Packers scored on five consecutive possessions. . . . The Packers wore down the Panthers' defense with drives of 73, 71, 73, 73 and 74 yards.

Quotable: Packers president Bob Harlan on ending the Cowboys and 49ers' dominance in the NFC: "This is the real America's team." . . . Levens on his increased role in the Packers' offense: "I thought I would contribute a little bit. I never dreamed I would have a game like this. This is definitely a career game." . . . Favre on the long screen pass to Levens: "That was a great call for the blitz. Kevin Greene came from the outside and I just dumped it over his head. There was no one out there really except our linemen to block people."

SUPER BOWL XXXI

AT LOUISIANA SUPERDOME, NEW ORLEANS, JANUARY 26, 1997

GREEN BAY 35, NEW ENGLAND 21

Why the Packers won: They did it with the electrifying returns of Desmond Howard—seven punts for 90 yards and four kickoffs for 154. They did it with Reggie White and the NFL's best defense intercepting Drew Bledsoe four times, sacking him five times and batting down or deflecting 10 passes (the interceptions resulted in 10 Packers points). And they did it with Brett Favre's brilliant playmaking ability—14-of-27, 246 yards, two touchdowns and no interceptions and a 2-yard TD run.

Why the Patriots lost: For a team that had not allowed a touchdown in the postseason (the Patriots allowed one field goal against Pittsburgh and two against Jacksonville), New England allowed far too many big plays— starting with 34- and 32-yard punt returns and a 99-yard kickoff return by Howard, and 54- and 81-yard touchdown receptions by Andre Rison and Antonio Freeman, respectively. Offensively, despite having 1,000-yard rusher Curtis Martin, the Patriots abandoned the running game early in the proceedings—rushing just 13 times for 43 yards while passing 48 times against a defense that could ignore the run and concentrate on putting pressure on Bledsoe.

The turning points:

1. On their second offensive play from scrimmage, the Packers caught New England showing a blitz. A pass was designed to go to tight end Keith Jackson, but Favre recognized the blitz and audibled to a pass to Andre Rison, who turned around cornerback Otis Smith with a fake at the New England 40, caught the ball at the 20 and raced untouched for a 54-yard score just 3:32 into the game.

2. Just 56 seconds into the second quarter, the Packers took a 17-14 lead when Favre gambled that the speedy Freeman could beat Lawyer Milloy in one-on-one coverage. Freeman ran a stop-and-go route and sprinted into the clear for an 81-yard touchdown, the longest from scrimmage in Super Bowl history.

3. In recent playoff games, Favre never had the luxury of a running game to keep the defense honest. A drive at the end of the first half that gave Green Bay a 27-14 lead was highlighted by runs of 9, 6, 8 and 8 yards by Dorsey Levens. Favre took the ball in the end zone himself from the 2. It was the start of a 61-yard rushing day for Levens, who combined with Edgar Bennett (40 yards) for the bulk of the team's 115 yards rushing.

4. With the Patriots scoring what seemed to be a momentum-changing touchdown on Martin's 18-yard run, shrinking the Packers' lead to 27-21 with 3:27 left in the third quarter, Howard dropped back at the goal line to take the kick from Adam Vinatieri. He burst up the middle of the field, bounced off a tackle by Hason Graham at the 30 and dashed to daylight for the back-breaking touchdown.

5. White, put the exclamation point on the victory on the series immediately following Howard's return. Two of his Super Bowl-record three sacks came back-to-back to prevent the Patriots from regaining momentum.

Notable: The Packers, who won the first two Super Bowls, became the NFL champion for the first time in 29 years. . . . The loss marked Bill Parcells' last game as coach of the Patriots. . . . Howard became the first return man to be named Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl. The 1991 Heisman Trophy winner returned three punts for touchdowns during the regular season, then got another in a divisional playoff victory over San Francisco. But he had never brought a kick back all the way during his five-year NFL career. He also became the first player to return both a punt and kickoff for touchdowns in the playoffs.

Quotables: Parcells: "That kickoff was the difference. I thought we might have had them rocking a bit. We were down by six points and had momentum. But he made the big play." . . . Bledsoe: "Year in and year out, Super Bowls are won on big plays. The Packers made more big plays than we did—and they didn't turn the ball over." . . . Freeman: "It's the Vince Lombardi Trophy and now it's going back home."

PRO BOWL

AT ALOHA STADIUM, HONOLULU, FEBRUARY 2, 1997

AFC 26, NFC 23

Why the AFC won: Mark Brunell got a chance to play and Cary Blanchard got a second chance to kick. Brunell, who led Jacksonville on its march into the playoffs, was rewarded with a Pro Bowl berth as an injury replacement for Denver's John Elway. Wise choice. Brunell was 12-of-22 for 236 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown that helped send the game into overtime and a 44-yard pass that set up the game-winning field goal. Brunell was named MVP. Blanchard, of Indianapolis, missed his first attempt at win the game in overtime, from 41 yards. After Brunell's final pass, Blanchard kicked a 37-yard field goal for the winner.

Why the NFC lost: John Kasay couldn't get in sync with his snapper and holder. Kasay, Carolina's kicker, suffered the same problem Blanchard encountered—lack of familiarity and practice time with his special-teams partners. As a result, both found their timing impaired. Kasay missed field-goal attempts from 60, 40 and 39 yards. Washington's Gus Frerotte almost saved the day. He first threw a 52-yard touchdown pass to Cris Carter with four minutes left in regulation, then directed a late drive that put Kasay in position to win the game. Kasay lined up a 39-yard attempt—and missed.

The turning points:

1. With the AFC trailing 15-3, the Patriots' Curtis Martin scored on a 3-yard run at 8:05 of the third period. The AFC had failed to generate much offense in the first half, getting only a Blanchard field goal late in the second quarter. Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe and Baltimore's Vinny Testaverde were a combined 9-for-22 for 135 yards before Brunell provided some spark.

2. The Bengals' Ashley Ambrose started an exciting fourth-quarter rally. Ambrose stepped in front of receiver Irving Fryar to intercept Kerry Collins' pass and went into the end zone untouched. His 54-yard return for a touchdown was a Pro Bowl record and helped put the AFC ahead, 16-15.

3. Carter's touchdown and Frerotte's two-point conversion pass to Carolina's Wesley Walls staked the NFC to a 23-16 lead with 4:07 left. That set up a furious finish, featuring Brunell's 80-yard touchdown pass to Oakland's Tim Brown and the late missed field-goal attempt by Kasay. Carter, of the Vikings, executed a perfect stop-and-go move on cornerback Terry McDaniel, and Frerotte delivered the ball as Carter streaked down the sideline. That looked like it would be the winning score until Brown and Brunell went to work. Brown raced past Aeneas Williams of the Cardinals and went down the right sideline. Brunell's pass found Brown in stride for the 80-yard score with 44 seconds left in regulation. Blanchard's extra point tied the game.

Notable: Two-time NFL MVP Brett Favre hit lineman Randall McDaniel with a 5-yard touchdown pass on a tackle-eligible play. . . . Lance Alstodt proved to be the best kicker of the day. In a halftime promotion, Alstodt, an investment banker by trade, kicked a 35-yard field goal to win $1 million. OK, so the ball was on a tee, and there were no defenders rushing him. But Alstodt, 26, a former high school soccer player, calmly banged the kick through the uprights.

Quotable: Blanchard, on kicking in the Pro Bowl: "Your rhythm really isn't there because of different guys in different places. I just pulled through it (his first overtime kick), but the second one was beautiful. The snap was perfect, the hold was perfect." . . . Kasay, on his kicking: "We tried the best we could, but it didn't work out. We didn't get a chance to work on it that much." . . . Kasay, on Alstodt's kick: "That was exciting. He handled the pressure well. He shouldn't give up his day job. But he made more in one day than I did this season."

BROADWAY JOE

Jets quarterback Joe Namath "guaranteed" a victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III and delivered, leading New York to a 16-7 victory. Although Namath's statistics for the game were modest—17 completions in 28 attempts for 206 yards and no touchdowns—the victory wasn't. It was a landmark win for an American Football League team over the more established NFL, which had won the first two Super Bowl games with ease.

A LONG WAIT ENDS

The Pittsburgh Steelers won their first NFL title with a 16-6 victory over Minnesota in Super Bowl IX. Franco Harris carried 34 times for a Super Bowl-record 158 yards to help Steelers founder Art Rooney visualize his dream of an NFL championship after 42 years of ownership. Before winning the AFC Central Division title in 1972 (their first championship of any kind, their second came in 1974), Rooney's Steelers had finished last 11 times, fourth 10 times and second six times since entering the NFL in 1933.

A SUPER SLUMP

The Minnesota Vikings' knack for losing Super Bowls continued in January 1977 as the Vikings lost in the NFL's big game for the fourth time in eight years, including three of the past four seasons. Minnesota's latest setback was a 32-14 loss to the Oakland Raiders, who jumped out to a 16-0 halftime lead and never looked back. The Raiders rolled up 429 total yards in offense and held Chuck Foreman, the Vikings' star running back, to 44 yards on 17 attempts.

THE BEST EVER?

Such things are subjective, but the 1978 Pittsburgh Steelers could make a legitimate claim for being the best team in NFL history. With Terry Bradshaw at quarterback, Franco Harris at running back and Lynn Swann and John Stallworth at wide receiver, the '78 Steelers steamrolled the rest of the league. Of their 17 victories (including playoffs), 11 were by 10 points or more. The club's two defeats totaled 10 points. Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" defense of Joe Greene, Jack Ham, Jack Lambert and Mel Blount (all Hall of Famers) yielded a league-low 195 points during the regular season. When the Steelers edged Dallas, 35-31, in Super Bowl XIII, it marked their third league championship in five years.

As a result of a 57-day players' strike, the 1982 NFL regular season schedule was reduced from 16 weeks to 9. At the conclusion of the regular season, a 16-team Super Bowl Tournament was held. Eight teams from each conference were seeded 1 through 8 based on their records during regular season play.

Miami finished ahead of Cincinnati based on a better conference record. Pittsburgh won common games tiebreaker with San Diego after New York Jets were eliminated from three-way tie based on conference record. Cleveland finished ahead of Buffalo and Seattle based on better conference record. Minnesota, Atlanta, St. Louis and Tampa Bay seeds were determined by best won-lost record in conference games. Detroit finished ahead of New Orleans and the New York Giants based on a better conference record.

PRO FOOTBALL STRIKES OUT

The NFL was hit by its first in-season work stoppage in history on September 20, 1982, when the players union, unhappy that an impasse had been reached on a new collective bargaining agreement with management, called a strike. When play resumed November 21, the two-month layoff seemed to have had a varying effect. Tampa Bay, for example, may have been helped. After an 0-2 start, the Buccaneers righted themselves to win five of their last six games and qualify for the playoffs. Defending league-champion San Francisco, however, was hurt. The 49ers began the year 0-2 and didn't regain their footing when the season resumed. The Dallas Cowboys, losers of the previous two NFC title games, weren't affected much at all. They went on to lose their third consecutive conference championship game.

BIG BAD BEARS

The Chicago Bears dominated pro football in 1985 like few teams in NFL history, winning all but one game during the regular season and outscoring three opponents, 91-10, in the playoffs (two by shutout). The Bears, in fact, were so confident of their eventual Super Bowl triumph that a number of them recorded a video, The Super Bowl Shuffle, weeks before the playoffs even began. As it turned out, the players were right. The Bears' 46-10 victory over New England was the most lopsided in Super Bowl history. Chicago's defense allowed the fewest points in the league, its offense scored the second-most, and a league-high nine Bears made the Pro Bowl.

COWBOYS' STREAK ENDS

In 1986, sports fans witnessed something they hadn't seen in a generation—a losing season by the Dallas Cowboys. Beginning with their 10-3-1 record in 1966, the Cowboys compiled a string of 20 consecutive winning seasons, the longest of any NFL team and the third-longest such streak in pro sports history. Only the New York Yankees, who had a 39-year streak from 1926-64, and the Montreal Canadiens, who had a 32-year streak from 1952-83, put together longer streaks of consecutive winning seasons.

NINERS ARE FINER

In 1988 and '89, the San Francisco 49ers became the first team since the Pittsburgh Steelers a decade earlier to win back-to-back Super Bowl titles. San Francisco's latest two Super Bowl victories, however, were as dissimilar as night and day. The 49ers' 20-16 victory over Cincinnati in January 1989 was one of the most dramatic in Super Bowl history, undecided until Joe Montana hit John Taylor with a 10-yard scoring pass with 34 seconds left. A year later, San Francisco beat Denver, 55-10, as Montana threw five TD passes in one of the worst thrashings in Super Bowl history.

BILLS BUFFALOED

Symmetry-wise, the 1990 NFL season was a strange one. In the AFC, all three division races were close, with the Buffalo Bills and Los Angeles Raiders winning their divisions by one game and the Central Division winding up in a three-way tie for first. In the NFC, the races looked more like runaways as the Giants, Bears and 49ers dominated. So what happened in the two conference title games? The Bills blew out the Raiders and the Giants edged the 49ers, setting the stage for one of the most memorable Super Bowls ever. The Giants nipped the Bills, 20-19, when Buffalo's Scott Norwood misfired on a 47-yard field goal attempt with eight second left.

COACHING CAROUSEL

The biggest coaching turnover in 14 years occurred in 1992 as nine coaches debuted with new teams. Two of them—Chuck Knox of the Rams and Ted Marchibroda of the Colts—were returning to clubs they had coached previously, while two others (Seattle's Tom Flores and Tampa Bay's Sam Wyche) had prior NFL head-coaching experience. Of the five first-time coaches, three led their teams to division championships: Pittsburgh's Bill Cowher, Minnesota's Dennis Green and San Diego's Bobby Ross.

EX-NINER DOESN'T STRIKE GOLD

After a stellar career with the San Francisco 49ers, quarterback Joe Montana moved east in 1993 in hopes of leading a second team, the Kansas City Chiefs, to a Super Bowl championship. But it never happened. In Montana's first season, the Chiefs won a division title and advanced to the AFC championship game before losing to Buffalo. In 1994, Kansas City finished second to San Diego in the AFC's Western Division and lost in the first round of the playoffs.

*This chart includes passer rating points for all leaders, although the same rating system was not used for determining leading quarterbacks prior to 1973. The old system was less equitable, yet similar to the new in that the rating was based on percentage of completions, touchdown passes, percentage of interceptions and average gain in yards.

*This chart includes passer rating points for all leaders, although the same rating system was not used for determining leading quarterbacks prior to 1973. The old system was less equitable, yet similar to the new in that the rating was based on percentage of completions, touchdown passes, percentage of interceptions and average gain in yards.
